U.S. To Up Viet Forces To 100,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States plans to expand its troop strength in the South Viet Nam war to 100,000 or more by late summer or early fall, it was learned Saturday.

This calls for an increase of at least 33,000 men, including thousands in Army combat units.

American authorities disclosed in Saigon Saturday that current strength reached 67,000 this week with the landing of more U.S. Marines.

Whatever Needed

The expansion will remain "open ended." President Johnson pledged himself Friday to commit whatever manpower is needed to halt Communist aggression from the north.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Ambassador-designate Henry Cabot Lodge will begin next week one of the most significant reviews of Viet Nam strategy and military requirements since American aid to embattled South Viet Nam started.

With Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other officials, they will fly to Saigon next Wednesday night and spend a week conferring with retiring Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor and surveying the military situation.

While they are certain to return with recommendations the continuing buildup has already been largely plotted. It has been running at a rate of about 14,000 to 15,000 men a month.

President Johnson prepared the public for the impending increase at a news conference Friday. He said the war "would get worse before it gets better."

Ordinarily, additional troops have been sent into Viet Nam with little fanfare. On other occasions the Pentagon has made announcements. But this time it was the President who laid the groundwork for the expansion. He told newsmen:

—The Communist Viet Cong forces have increased and they are "swinging wildly. . ."

—Beyond the previously announced American buildup goal of 75,000, "there will be others that will be required. Whatever is required, I am sure will be supplied."

The President's remarks and other information available to UPI indicated that no minor increase in troop strength was in the offing. It appeared to observers that major units of two or three Army divisions likely were to join the Marine division now deployed in Viet Nam.

New Contract Letting Slated For I-20 East

A contract for 7.77 miles of new construction on Interstate 20 east of Monroe to Richland Parish at an estimated cost of $4,800,000 will be let July 28 in Baton Rouge, according to James Moore of Monroe, vice-chairman of the Louisiana Highway Department.

The contract for the local construction is the largest single contract of a group totaling over $14 million to be let on the July date, Moore said.

Other projects included in the letting are:

A 4.1 mile stretch from Bawcomville to Eros, Louisiana Highway 34 to be resurfaced at a cost of about $525,000.

The overlaying of Louisiana Highway 15 from Clayton to Sicily Island in Catahoula Parish at a cost of about $200,000.

Rebuilding of roads in Jackson and Caldwell Parishes at a cost of about $295,000.

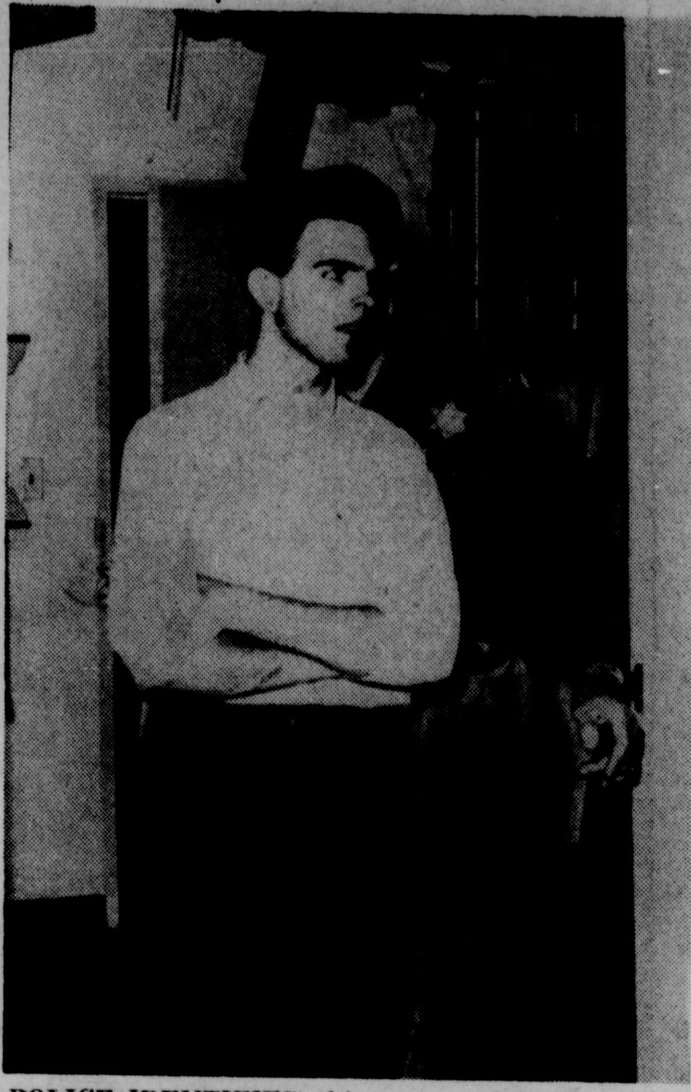
A new bridge and approaches over Bayou Bartholomew on Louisiana Highway 593 in Morehouse Parish.

British Doctors Talk Of Striking

SWANSEA, Wales (AP) — British doctors Saturday threatened a mass walkout from the national free health scheme unless they are permitted to charge consultation fees — and thus discourage hypochondriacs and malingerers.

A resolution to this effect was passed by voice vote at the annual conference of the British Medical Association after one of the 500 delegates, Dr. Alan L. Bussey, told the meeting:

"Let there be no mistake — the present system of free access has resulted in a national soup kitchen of health."



POLICE IDENTIFIED this man as John Frederick Anderson, 20, of Riverside, Calif., a sophomore at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles. He was booked in connection with the fatal shooting of a barber. Two other persons also were wounded. (AP Wirephoto)

After Car Crashes Shop

Barber Is Fatally Shot, 2 Wounded

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Pursued by police, a car smashed into a barber shop Saturday. Officers said the driver shot and killed the barber and wounded two customers.

The barber, Howard G. Morford, 50, was shot in the back as he tried to help a customer already wounded. Morford stumbled across the street and died on the steps of a tavern.

A cab driver, Genevieve V. Jennings, 52, was shot earlier. She was in critical condition at a Vancouver hospital.

The customers who were wounded were Dennis Charles Jones, 18, Battle Ground, Wash., in critical condition with a stomach wound, and Edgar Allen Waser, 20, La Center, Wash., in serious condition with a wound in the upper leg.

Held For Queries

Police held John Frederick Anderson, 20, a sophomore in journalism at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles, for questioning. Officers identified his parents as Mr. and Mrs. Billy L. Anderson of Riverside, Calif.

Police gave this account: A taxi was called to a Vancouver airport and Mrs. Jennings, whose husband Stanley owns the De Luxe City Cab Co., responded. The rider shot Mrs. Jennings four times and stole the cab.

At Ridgefield, about 10 miles north of Vancouver, the taxi was spotted and a 100-mile-per-hour pursuit by police began.

The cab missed a curve and crashed into the barber shop. The driver jumped out and shot Jones twice with a .22-caliber pistol.

When the barber, Morford, tried to carry Jones to safety, he was shot in the back as he left the shop. Waser also was wounded as he tried to escape.

Marshall Hal Huffstutler of Battle Ground fired two bullets into the shop where the gunman hid behind the barber chair. The man threw up his hands, kicked out a window and surrendered.

Cannoneer

Ex-West Monroe High School student, Pvt. Michael K. Hooks, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferrell H. Hooks of Rt. 2, West Monroe, has completed advanced training at Fort Sill, Okla., as a cannoneer under the Reserve Enlistment Program at the Army Artillery and Missile Center there. Hooks was trained in preparation, loading and firing of field artillery guns and howitzers.

Campers

A group of Monroe youngsters, 15 in all, traded the baseball diamond for the camping ground this weekend. The boys, members of a little league team sponsored by the Monroe police department, made camp at Caney Lake in Minden Saturday and will return to Monroe today.

Along with the boys were Major George Whitlow of the Monroe police, A. S. Daniel, Vincent Shurr, John Porter, W. P. Reynolds and C. W. Cain.

Judge Rules For Bogalusa Rights Force

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A federal district judge halted Bogalusa, La., officials Saturday from interfering with civil rights forces spearheading demonstrations in that city.

U.S. Dist. Judge Herbert W. Christenberry of New Orleans issued a preliminary injunction which blocked city and county officials from interfering with the constitutional rights of Negroes while staging civil rights activities.

Power To Delay

Earlier the same court had denied Bogalusa officials an injunction against civil rights forces. But Christenberry added that under previous court rulings, the city has the power to delay, postpone or halt marches if the safety of the marchers or others was involved.

Immediately after the two court orders were issued, a spokesman for the Congress of Racial Equality in Bogalusa, Mike Jones, said there would be another march Saturday. Jones said the marchers would go to city hall to press grievances which CORE claims include police brutality and discriminatory employment practices.

But the president of the Bogalusa Civic and Voters League, A. Z. Young, later told the Bogalusa Negroes not to march. He said that if they marched, they would violate city ordinances.

Young then left the meeting hall with James Farmer, national director of CORE. They were driven away by a member of the Deacons of Defense and Justice. On the seat beside the driver was a small-caliber pistol.

The Deacons of Defense and Justice are an armed group of Negroes who stand guard over the Negro section of Bogalusa at night.

Bogalusa, population about 22,000, is 65 miles north of New Orleans. A nearby white resident, Alton D. Crowe Jr., 26, was shot and seriously wounded at Thursday's protest march. Two Negroes arrested after the shooting were held at an undisclosed jail for investigation of aggravated battery.

Christenberry's sweeping order against city officials in the racially troubled area ordered authorities to protect civil rights workers from "physical assaults and beatings, harassment and intimidation . . ."

Tornadic Winds Damage Planes At Selman Field

Tornadic wind gusts up to 70 miles per hour caused major damage to 17 light planes at Selman Field as a thunderstorm swept into the Monroe area shortly after 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Jack Pfrimmer, chief of the control tower at Monroe Municipal Airport, said one of the planes at the field landed atop an office building of Fleeman Flying Service.

"All seven planes belonging to Mid - South Flying Service are damaged," Pfrimmer said. The trailer house office building of the flying service was also blown down. The company is owned by Gordon P. Jordan of Monroe.

Damage was done to some hangars and to several planes inside the hangars, the chief said.

All lights were out at the airport and the emergency power was being used. Portable lights were in operation on the runways, he said.

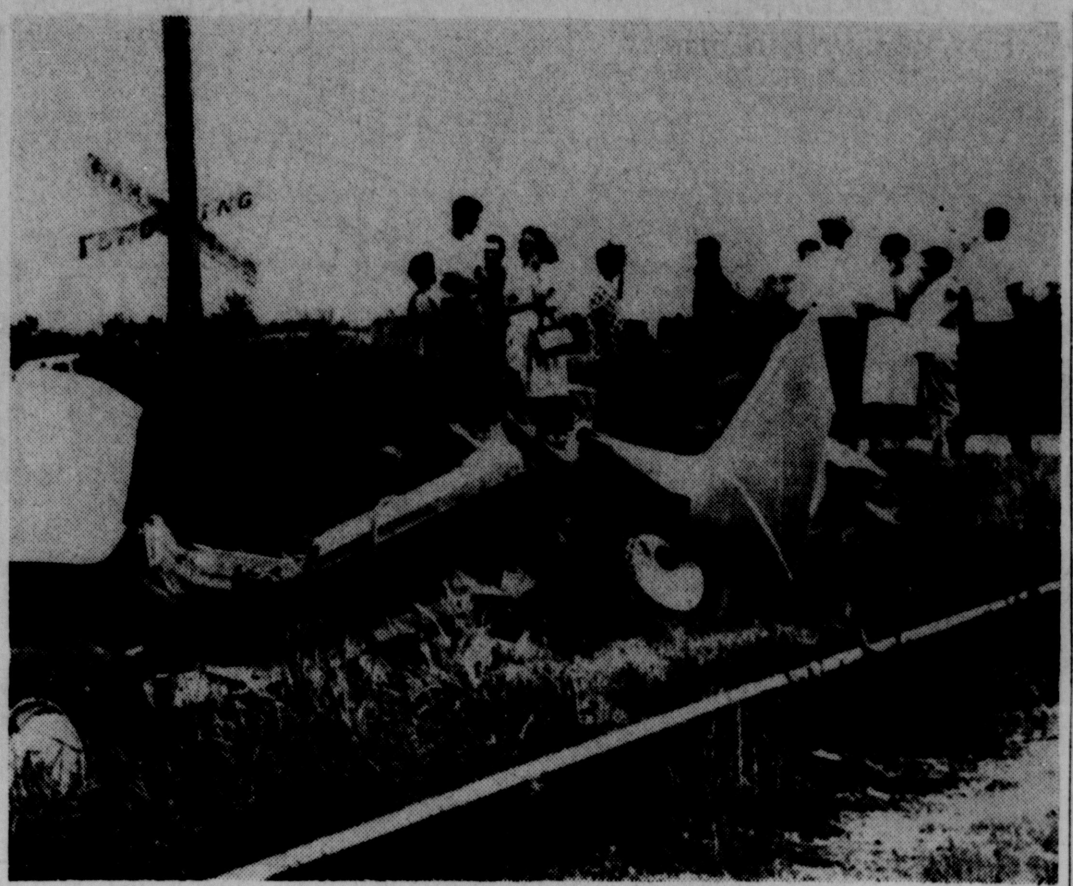
Telephone lines in the area were also reported down shortly before midnight.

During the first 20 minutes of the storm 1.01 inches of rain were recorded by FAA at Selman Field. Other areas of the Twin Cities received downpours but not as heavy. Most of the rain fell between 10:30 and 11 p.m.

Partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures are again expected in the Monroe - West Monroe area today, complete with a few afternoon and evening thundershowers.

High forecast today is 90 to 95 degrees with an overnight low of 70 to 75. High Saturday was 94 and the low was 77.

Southerly winds of five to 15 miles an hour should prevail.



THIS IS the remains of a pickup truck in which nine persons were killed Saturday, after it was struck by an Atlantic Coast Line freight train. A tenth person, the driver of the truck, is in critical condition in a Laurinburg, N. C. hospital. (AP Wirephoto)

Truck-Train Crash Claims Nine Persons

MAXTON, N.C. (AP) — An Atlantic Coast Line railroad freight train struck a pickup truck near this southeastern North Carolina town Saturday, killing nine of the 10 persons in the truck.

The accident occurred at a high-banked rural crossing about 2 ½ miles southeast of Laurinburg near the South Carolina line.

Bodies Strewn

Mangled bodies were strewn over the track.

Two of the dead were members of the Red Hill Blue Devils, a Lumbee Indian sandlot baseball team from the Red Hill community in Robeson County.

The team was en route to a game at Bowmore, 11 miles from Maxton.

The other victims were spectators accompanying the team whose other members had gone in two cars. All the victims were of Rt. 3, Maxton.

The lone survivor, Angush Blue, 31, was driving the truck which he owned. He was taken to a Laurinburg hospital in critical condition with head and chest injuries.

The dead players were Cecil Locklear, 21, and Eddie Jacobs, 21.

The other victims were identified as Jesse Clark, 46, his wife, Elizabeth Clark, 42; Howard Locklear, 34, his wife, Vioia Locklear, 28; Marlen Blue, 12, and his cousin, Roy Blue, 9, and Hethrow Lowery, 42.

The wreck occurred about a mile from a filling station where the two players and other victims were picked up.

The truck was behind the two cars which continued for some distance before noticing the truck was no longer in sight.

Robeson County police said the truck apparently did not stall on the track but pulled into the path of the train. They said apparently there were no eyewitnesses to the accident.

Robert Collins, 29, who was to have umpired the game, said he declined to make the trip in the truck because he said it was overloaded. He stayed behind and later helped identify the victims.

Wealthy Latin Gains Support

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Hector Garcia Godoy, a wealthy businessman and onetime foreign minister under former President Juan Bosch, gained support Saturday for the presidency of a provisional government.

Garcia Godoy won unqualified endorsements from the Organization of American States peacemakers and the rebel constitutionalist forces of Col. Francisco Caamano Deno.

President Names Air Force Chief

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson waded through a batch of resignations and appointments Saturday and in the process lost his U.S. Information Agency director and named a new secretary of the Air Force.

And on a day of mingled work and relaxation around the LBJ Ranch, Johnson predicted that July 9 — the date of Senate passage of a health and hospital care bill and House passage of a voting rights measure—"will be the Everest of this session."

Victory For All

The President described House action on a measure designed to reinforce the right of the Negro to the ballot as "a victory for every American who believes the strength of our democracy rests on the right of every citizen to share in its direction."

But the top-ranking Negro in the executive branch of the government, Carl T. Rowan, is stepping out as director of the U.S. Information Agency to resume a career in journalism.

Rowan was one of Johnson's first major appointees and, presidential aides said, the first to leave. He was sworn in as head of the USIA, which spreads information on America through foreign lands, on Feb. 28, 1964. No successor has been chosen.

The President announced the resignation of Eugene M. Zuckert, who has been secretary of the Air Force for 4½ years.

The announcement gave no reason for Zuckert's resignation.

The White House said Johnson told Zuckert in a letter: "You have served in your present office longer than any previous secretary of the Air Force. Both the Air Force and the nation are permanently indebted to you for the singular achievements of your years in this critical and demanding position." There was no word on Zuckert's plans for the future.

The new secretary will be Dr. Harold Brown, the Defense Department's director of defense research and engineering.

In the Treasury Department, James A. Reed has resigned as assistant secretary and the job will go to William True Davis Jr., now U.S. ambassador to Switzerland.

Then, in a change closer to the White House family, Johnson agreed to release Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton as his military aide so he can retire and become vice president of a New York management advisory firm. The President picked the commander of his small, official Jetstar plane, James U. Cross, to take over as military aide.

Winners List Grows In Snapshot Contest

The Monroe Morning World and News-Star sponsored local phase of the Newspaper National Snapshot Awards competition moved through its fifth week with an increasing number of entries. The $25 in prize money distributed for the four winning photos, brought the awards total thus far in the contest to $125.

The latest round of winners in the contest which is open to amateur photographers for black and white pictures taken since July 1, 1964, are:

1 — Syl Breard, 400 Eason Place, Monroe, for photograph captioned "Summer Delight," showing two boys enjoying a refreshing drink of water from an outdoor faucet.

2 — L. A. Henderson, 700 Hilton St., Monroe, beautiful western scene with rustic fence in foreground, snow - capped mountain in background with bank of fleecy clouds above.

3 — Mrs. F. A. Brown, 1108 Roselawn, Monroe, picture of three cute, smiling little girls in front of a fireplace where stockings are hung, apparently in anticipation of a visit from Santa Claus.

4 — J. W. Cunningham, 1310 North 3rd St., Monroe, closely cropped photo of a young man's face with a big smile.

Weekly awards in the contest which will run through the week of July 25, are $10 first, $7.50 second, $5 third, and $2.50 fourth place. At the close of local competition four grand prize winners will be selected for $12.50 awards each. These will be entered in the national phase of the contest where five expense - paid vacation trips and 100 awards of $100 each, are being offered for the top entries.

Deadline for entries in this week's phase of the contest is Thursday noon. Winners will be announced in the Sunday World. Entries should be sent to the photo Contest Editor, Monroe News-Star—World, Monroe, La. On the back of each print should be this information: Name and address of photographer, if negative is available on request, and if releases are available on any recognizable persons in photo. If there is something unusual in the photo it might be well to tell something about it briefly.

Contest rules, which are published frequently, should be followed.

Craft Make Deep Entry Into N. Viet

SAIGON (UPI) — Two U.S. Air Force F4C Phantom jets using air-to-air missiles Saturday shot down two Communist MIG17 fighters 70 miles from the border of Communist China during the deepest U.S. aerial penetration of North Viet Nam to date.

It was the first "kill" for U.S. Air Force planes since the Korean War. Three Migs, downed previously over North Viet Nam were bagged by Navy pilots from U.S. 7th Fleet carriers.

Fight Near Hanoi

The dogfight took place 75 miles northwest of Hanoi, the North Vietnamese capital, during one of 11 missions in the area by American planes. The F4Cs and six Air Force F105 Thunderchief jets also attacked the Yen Sen ammunition depot and several bridges with rockets and bombs.

During a morning bombing attack on Yen Sen pilots saw three unidentified Migs but the Communist planes fled.

A U.S. military spokesman said the 1,200-mile-an-hour F4Cs were flying cover at 25,000 feet for the F105s Saturday afternoon when they detected the enemy Migs on radar.

The Migs attacked with cannon fire and the Air Force planes turned loose their air-to-air rockets. One Mig went "straight down" and the other exploded through a cloud bank, the spokesman said.

Identify Airmen

America's newest jet heroes, later were identified as Capt. Kenneth Holcombe of Detroit, Mich., and Capt. Donald C. Anderson of Fairbanks, Alaska—aboard one plane—and Capt. Thomas S. Roberts of La Grange, Ga., and Capt. Arthur C. Clark of McAllen, Tex., flying the other.

Two Air Force jets were shot down early this year when Migs swooped down out of a cloud bank cover and surprised the bomb-laden American planes.

The Mig17 is one of the older models of the Soviet-built jet fighter. The series began with the Mig15 and has progressed to the Mig21.

The Communist planes shot down Saturday presumably were flown by North Vietnamese pilots. It was not known whether they came from the direction of Hanoi or the Chinese border.

While the dogfight was taking place, six F105 Thunderchiefs dropped a full bomb load on the ammunition dump, destroying five buildings and damaging four others.

Blast Bridges

Then they regrouped with the F4C fighters and destroyed two bridges 80 and 85 miles northwest of Hanoi. This was farther north than any U.S. planes have flown since the air strikes against North Viet Nam began.

The bridges were situated midway between Hanoi and the city of Lao Kay on the border of Communist China on an important highway and railroad running through the Red River Valley which links Hanoi and Red China.

In other air and ground actions, 241 Communist Viet Cong were reported killed.

A U.S. helicopter crewman also was killed 35 miles south of Saigon and a U.S. spokesman confirmed that two U.S. Marine sergeants were captured and executed by Communist guerrillas near the Da Nang airbase.

Solons Plan Bid To Keep Poll Tax Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —House negotiators prepared Saturday to fight to keep a poll tax ban in President Johnson's Negro voting rights bill. But they also were determined not to let the measure die over the issue.

Legislation containing the ban on poll taxes as a requirement for voting in state or local elections was approved by the House Friday night by an overwhelming 333-85 vote. The Senate earlier had rejected this approach in favor of a prompt court test of the levies.

Both bills are expected to go to a House-Senate conference committee meeting sometime soon so a compromise can be worked out. House managers of the bill indicated they did not think the poll tax dispute would be serious enough to delay agreement or jeopardize the legislation.

The two versions agree on the essential purpose of wiping out the last resistance to Negro voting in the South. Both would suspend state literacy tests and provide for federal registrars to sign up Negro voters in all or parts of seven Southern states.

Literacy and other voter qualification tests can be suspended and federal registrars sent into other areas where the attorney general proves to a federal court that discrimination is practiced.

There are provisions to assure that eligible Negroes actually are permitted to cast ballots, as well as heavy penalties for attempts to harm or threaten voters.

Two Senate amendments, which the House rejected could provoke a stiffer fight in the conference committee than the poll tax question. One would enable Spanish-speaking Puerto Ricans to vote in New York City. The other would exempt areas from coverage by the bill where 50 per cent or more of the non-white population was registered.

On poll taxes, there were some signs that the House might go along with the Senate's court test plan, which the administration prefers, and the Senate would accept House wording on other provisions.

Retired Farmer Crash Victim

VILLE PLATTE, La. (UPI)—Two pickup trucks collided on Louisiana 10 Saturday killing a retired farmer.

Horace Landreneau, 65, of Ville Platte, died of a broken neck in the collision.

Police said the accident occurred as Landreneau was pulling onto the highway from his driveway at his farm house about six miles west of here.

British Leader Is Assailed On Hanoi Mission

LONDON (UPI) — Opposition Conservative party leader Sir Douglas-Home Saturday accused Prime Minister Harold Wilson of sending a special emissary on a peace mission to Hanoi that could succeed only if Britain pledged support of the Communist line.

Douglas - Home made the charge as informed sources said Wilson's emissary is finding no response from North Vietnamese leaders in his peace soundings in Hanoi.

In a speech before a convention of Conservative party leaders in Edinburgh, Douglas-Home accused Wilson of opportunism in mounting what he termed were ill-fated measures that "can gravely damage Britain's authority at a time when it is most needed in world affairs."

Woman Arraigned In Minutemen Case

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old woman was arraigned Saturday as a material witness in the kidnaping case against Robert B. Depugh, chief of the underground Minutemen.

Cyndra Ellen Melville, described by Depugh as his confidential secretary for three years, was freed on a $3,000 bond.

She was the second Depugh employe put under bond as a material witness in the continuing investigation of Minutemen opreations. Jack Cannon, 35, an employe of Depugh's Independence, Mo., office was released on a $5,000 bond Friday as a material witness shortly after Depugh surrendered on the kidnaping charge.

Depugh also was released under $5,000 bond and all three were ordered to appear for preliminary hearing July 20.

It was at the Independence building that officers found and confiscated a large cache of explosives, explosive compounds, guns, hand grenades and a bazooka.

Lawrence Gepford, county prosecutor, filed the kidnaping charge after two young women, Patricia Lucille Beal, 21, and Linda Frances Judd, 16, had signed statements saying Depugh had abducted them and sought to have them seduce men in high government posts. They said Depugh took them from Independence to Richmond, Mo., on June 4 and held them captive for two weeks.

Depugh, whose home and veterinary supply business are at Norborne, Mo., has headed the Minutemen since the anti-Communist underground order was founded about five years ago. He claims there are 25,000 Minutemen.

Gepford said he would place the whole Depugh-Minutemen investigation before a grand jury Monday.

Both Depugh and Mrs. Melville have denied the kidnaping story told by Miss Beal and Miss Judd. Depugh said the whole story was a plot "to discredit the Minutemen." Mrs. Melville said Miss Beal and Miss Judd probably were two women she knew under different names and who had worked for the Minutemen organization.

"They did work for us but they weren't kidnaped," said Mrs. Melville. She would not elaborate.

Klan Refused Entry In Party

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Membership in the Fulton County (Atlanta) Democratic party has been refused the United Klans of America, a party official said Saturday.

Doris Cromartie, executive director, said the party rejected an unsigned application received from the Klan on Thursday.

"The party's standing policy is not to issue memberships to organizations but to individual Democrats interested in the democratic form of government," she said.

Whites, Negroes To March Today In Torn Town

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — White conservatives and Negro civil rights leaders Saturday night planned rival marches in racially tense Bogalusa today.

The plans were announced at crosstown rallies. Leaders urged that the marches be nonviolent.

"It will be a peaceful march," J. B. Stoner of Atlanta, Ga., told the white rally, held in an open field.

"Leave your hardware at home," James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, told the Negro rally, held in a Baptist church.

The plans were announced hours after a U.S. district judge in New Orleans halted city officials from interfering with civil rights demonstrations here.

Stoner, one-time candidate for vice president of the national States Rights party ticket, told the whites to "dress up like you were going to Sunday School and carry Confederate flags, which stand for the white race and supremacy."

Farmer said he would call for hundreds of volunteers to join in the civil rights work here.

"I have talked with out leadership the past few hours," he said, "and I think that the time has now come for carefully selected additional volunteers."

He also said he had called on the National Council of Churches and religious representatives — Catholics, Jews and Protestants — to come here.

Farmer said today's march would be held to protest "police brutality" and that if police could not provide protection "we intend to formally request" the President and the Justice Department to send U.S. marshals to Bogalusa.

Ruark Buried In Spain Town

PALAMOS, Spain (AP) — American author Robert C. Ruark was buried on a bright sunny afternoon Saturday. A small group of friends and more than 200 inhabitants of this fishing village were present.

Ruark, 49, died of an internal hemorrhage in a London hospital on July 1.

Wagner May Be Candidate For Governor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Political associates of retiring Mayor Robert F. Wagner said Saturday Wagner hoped to make his intended bride, blonde Barbara Cavanagh, the state's first lady by running for governor next year against incumbent Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Mrs. Edward F. Cavanagh Sr. announced Friday Miss Cavanagh, 36, would marry Wagner, 55, in a private chapel of St. Patrick's Cathedral July 26. The ceremony will be performed by Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York.

Both Wagner and Miss Cavanagh are Catholics. Wagner has been a widower since the cancer death of his attractive blonde wife, Susan, the mother of the mayor's two children, Robert Jr. and Duncan. Miss Cavanagh, spinster sister of Deputy Mayor Edward Cavanagh, is "the girl next door," a close friend of the Wagners for years.

Wagner's political associates said the mayor, who retires from City Hall next January 1, would take a vacation and then launch a drive to run Rockefeller out of Albany.

They said Wagner would have preferred to follow in the footsteps of his late father, Sen. Robert Wagner, and run for the Senate.

But they said he was a political realist and recognized the fact that the two Senate seats in New York were held by political powerhouses —Democrat Robert F. Kennedy and Republican Jacob K. Javits.

It is questionable whether Wagner could defeat either of them. But Wagner, who has proved a powerful vote getter, would probably be a formidable foe for Rockefeller, who tried unsuccessfully to win the Republican presidential nomination and then stood aloof from Sen. Barry Goldwater's campaign while the Democrats made a shambles of Goldwater's hopes and the Republican party.

Parish Courthouse To Get 'New Look' If Bonds Voted

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

A favorable vote on a $1.7 million bond issue would buy a new look—inside and out—for the Ouachita Parish courthouse, as well as "critically-needed" elbow room for officials who conduct the parish's business there.

Robert Downing, courthouse committee chairman of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, made that statement in reviewing his group's proposal for major additions and improvements at the 40-year-old facility.

Plans Approved

The police jury has approved plans for the project, as outlined by architect Herbert Land, and will meet a bonding attorney "probably next week" to consider details of financing. A bond election would follow.

"We estimate one mill assessed for 15 years would cover the work, but, of course, nothing definite can be determined until we've talked with the bond attorney," Downing explained.

In a nutshell, the plan calls for extensions at the building's north and south ends, adding 42 by 87 feet of space on four levels — basement and three floors — and 32 by 77 feet of space on each end of the upper floor — the parish jail.

Total floor space would be increased 41,800 square feet from the present 57,500 square feet, a boost in usable space of approximately 40 per cent.

Rearrangement of office space among the various parish agencies domiciled at the courthouse would be a highlight of work in the present structure, allowing additional room for many of the operations. Several would acquire substantial increases of space in the new areas, as well.

"Much-needed" replacements and additions in the building's "worn-out" electrical system are included in the proposal. So too are revamping of the courthouse air conditioning facilities, correcting and making uniform "the mixed up arrangement we have now," Downing said, "with some units hanging out windows, others inside, and so forth."

These features, plus a general clean-up, with extensive marble-polishing and demolition of unnecessary walls, would come under the planned expenditure of $460,000 remodeling and altering the courthouse interior.

Interior improvements also would encompass the installation of safety features, notably the enclosing of stair well areas on the three business floors with fireproof walls and the exchange on the first floor of in-swinging doors with doors that swing out. This also would accord with state fire safety laws.

The three first floor entrance doors on the building's west side would be reduced to a single door.

On the outside, Land pointed out, architecture of the new portions would duplicate as nearly as possible the courthouse's Roman Classic style.

Changes Planned

Floor by floor, major changes planned include:

In the basement—Establishment in the building's south extension of approximately seven-foot ceiling elevations would allow the installation of three levels, instead of two, between the basement and second floor, for an near doubling of record storage space for the clerk of court. The clerk presently utilizes an area of 56 to 69 on basement level only.

A central basement area would be set aside especially for absentee voting, allowing for greater secrecy in balloting.

Several existing walls will be eliminated, permitting the creation of a maintenance and shop facility embracing a full 42 by 28 feet.

An elevator is planned from the first floor clerk's office to the basement, replacing existing steps, while a sheriff's department, elevator running presently from the jail to the first floor, would be extended to the basement.

The sheriff's elevator would connect with a new basement prisoner pickup area, all of which would be accessible from a planned driveway opening off St. John Street.

The north extension would be given over to increased record storage for the sheriff and tax assessor.

On the first floor—

The registrar of voters would be moved from the second floor to occupy space gained from the elimination of part of the present lobby area, parts of several offices, rest room and closet space. The arrangement would double the registrar's working area to 42 by 28 and add a 10 by 26 waiting room.

Other officers on the first floor would be the clerk of court, the tax assessor and the tax collector, in line with recommendations that the three operations not be separated between floors. The tax collector's space would be approximately doubled through the addition of 38 by 36 feet.

Correspondingly, ground space between Wood and Oak Streets and the respective building lines would cut nearly in half, reduced to around 40 feet.

On the second floor—

A new district courtroom would occupy the south extension, with a 12 by 12 witness room and a 23 by 16 jury room planned for the west end of the extension.

In the north extension, next to its present location, the parish police jury would acquire a new 39 by 45 meeting room, with a special horseshoe seating arrangement allowing members to face one another, and seating for 50 visitors. On the northeast corner of the extension, police jury quarters are planned to include a smaller, 25 by 16 meeting room, a 14 by 16 machine room, vault, 16 by 10 supply office, a 23 by 12 secretary - treasurer's office, plus waiting and reception areas.

The jury's old northwest corner meeting room, 36 by 28, would become part of the estimated 40 per cent increase in space for the district attorney. The district attorney also would acquire space now occupied by the registrar, making room for many records stored in the basement.

Between the courtroom and district attorney's office, a 17 by 20 grand jury room would be established, as well as a 17 by 11 witness room. Some space would be unassigned.

Across the hall, the juvenile department, moved from the third floor and greatly expanded, is planned to include a 15 by 28 hearing room, five small offices and waiting space. All would be gained from space now used as a courtroom.

On the third floor—

District courtrooms would be installed in both the north and south extensions, complemented by jury and witness rooms comparable to those on the second floor.

Judges Quarters

Judges quarters would be redesigned to provide offices for the three present district judges, as well as office space for a fourth, plus waiting and secretarial areas. Across the hall, on the east front, space is planned for three court reporters and for a 16 by 20 law library.

The present third floor courtroom would become part of the sheriff's department, part of an estimated 50 per cent increase in space for that operation. The sheriff would realize an additional 32 by 28 feet on the building's west front, and 15 by 28 feet on the east.

On the fourth floor (the jail)—

The north extension would include two 10 by 15 counselling rooms, and a 16 by 15 coroner's office.

Cell space additions of 32 by 77 feet are planned at each end of the building. A storage area of 21 by 36 feet would be added. Left unassigned at the respective ends are areas of 21 by 34 and 16 by 34.

Redesigning of existing parts of the jail covers single-cell facilities on the building's west front, along with infirmary quarters, storage, visiting rooms and a guard room. On the east face would be a contagious ward, space for women prisoners and a kitchen.

Space for the jail administrator would be moved from the south central section to north central, near the sheriff's elevator.

Negro Bishop Raps Meredith's View Of Whites

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — The first Negro bishop to preside over a predominantly white area in the Midwest declared Saturday he "disagrees completely" with James Meredith's view of the white man's role in the civil rights struggle.

Meredith, the first Negro graduated from the University of Mississippi, told the Indiana University convocation Friday night at Bloomington, that no whites should try to lead the Negro civil rights movements.

Bishop James S. Thomas of Des Moines, Iowa, Saturday, issued a strong rebuttal after addressing 5,000 delegates to the National Conference of Methodist Men at Purdue University.

"Historically," he said, "any group aimed at the uplift of the Negro has been an interracial enterprise. I disagree completely with Mr. Meredith's statement that white people should not be involved in civil rights groups."

Bishop Thomas said Meredith in effect was saying that "only Negroes are interested in the extension of full democracy."

Meredith said that white people could do more for the civil rights cause by cooperating and working outside the Negro organizations. Instead, he said, the real Negro leaders are being pushed aside, "their voices are not being heard and their opinions are not being sought."

Parking Ban Set In DeSiard Area

The Monroe police department Saturday announced a ban on all parking on DeSiard street between 9th street and the Louisville-DeSiard-Sterlington Road intersection all day Tuesday.

The one-day ban will be placed along the street to allow the striping of traffic lanes, major George Whitlow, head of the traffic division, announced.

In making the ban announcement, Major Whitlow asked for the cooperation of the motoring public.

ROY ACUFF
. . . Opry Star Hurt

Crash Injures Country Music Star Roy Acuff

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP) — "Grand Ole Opry" star Roy Acuff, one of America's best-known country music entertainers and twice a Republican candidate for governor of Tennessee, was seriously injured in a two-car collision near here Saturday.

Two companions, guitarist Harold B. (Shot) Jackson of Nashville and Agnes June Burdett, 26, of Nashville, also were injured.

Acuff suffered broken ribs, pelvis and collarbone. Dr. Donald Brandley of Sparta said he decided against allowing Acuff to be flown to Nashville "because he goes into shock every time we move him."

The doctor said Jackson, with fractures of the skull and ribs and internal bleeding, is in critical condition at the hospital here.

Mrs. Burdett, who sings under the name of June Stearns, has a broken leg.

The driver of the other car, Eddie Blish, of Smithville, was flown to Veterans Hospital in Nashville after emergency treatment here. The doctor said Blish's jaw and teeth were smashed, temporarily hampering his breathing.

Acuff and his companions were en route to a performance in Terrell, N.C., when the accident occurred on rain-slick U.S. 70, six miles west of here.

Often called the "king of country music," Acuff and his Smoky Mountain Boys have toured four continents and entertained in more than 15 countries.

Acuff, a native of Maynardville, Tenn., has traveled more than three million miles during his career. Recently he entertained U.S. troops in the Dominican Republic.

'Y' Swimming Classes Slated

A new series of swimming classes for beginners will begin this week at the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A.

For the first time this summer tennis instruction will be offered girls at the Y.M.C.A. Miss Barbara Mulhearn will be in charge of the class which will meet for three weeks on Monday and Wednesday morning at 11 a.m.

Medicine Cases Arrive In Hanoi

TOKYO (AP) — Forty-five cases of medicines presented by the Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, arrived in Hanoi on Saturday, Hanoi radio announced.

The broadcast said the gift was "an expression of the Cambodian people's solidarity with the Vietnamese people in their struggle against the U.S. imperialist aggressors."

McNamara Seeks To Blunt Offensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara will take a close look this week at U.S. strategy and tactics in Viet Nam, seeking to gauge what reinforcements will be needed to blunt the Communist offensive.

This, in sum, is the purpose of McNamara's first on - the - spot size up of the South Viet Nam war situation in 14 months.

He is to leave Wednesday night with a small party of top officials, including Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The mission will take about a week.

President Johnson said Friday the U.S. military buildup will exceed the 75,000 men so far announced. It could go beyond 100,000 men by late summer—more than four times as many Americans as were in Viet Nam at the first of the year.

Some sources suggested a possible speed-up in a tentative plan calling for more than 129,000 U.S. troops to be in Viet Nam as of Oct. 1.

Ultimately, the total may go much higher.

The assessment of Communist gains is a somber one. In the past six months, the Reds have cut virtually all the important road and rail communications. They have isolated parts of the country. And they have extended control over a larger percentage of South Viet Nam's population.

The next two months of the Communist rainy season offensive are regarded as a time of vital test, although not necessarily a make or break point for either side.

U.S. paratroopers and Marines recently have engaged in larger scale fights with the Viet Cong. More such actions are expected soon.

These U.S. troops have been committed to battle because the introduction of American air power, greater fire power and mobility have not been enough to give the South Vietnamese forces the edge they need to turn back the Communists.

The United States is prodding South Viet Nam to increase its armed forces by about 100,000 men from the present 550,000.

But that's about the limit of South Viet Nam's ability to muster more soldiers.

Thus, if more combat troops are needed to carry out the strategy, the United States may have to supply them—hopefully, with help from some other countries.

U.S. planners are wary of putting in so many American soldiers that South Viet Nam no longer will bear the chief responsibility for fighting the war.

The strategy now unfolding envisions operating out of a number of secure enclaves along the South China Sea and elsewhere—enclaves centering on ports and bases being developed by U.S. logistical forces.

The strategy calls for helicopter-borne U.S. troops to hopscotch around the country, hitting the Communists constantly wherever they can be located.

The aim is to get the Communists on the run—and to keep them running. This would wrest the initiative from the Reds.

A similar strategy paid off in the Philippines and Malaya, although both Communist insurgencies took years to crush—12 years in Malaya.

The new U.S. Army air mobile division just formed at Ft. Benning, Ga., is considered ideally suited to this kind of warfare. Its purpose is to strike hard and fast deep inside enemy country and its nearly 16,000 men would be carried to battle in a fleet of more than 400 helicopters.

There will be more B52 bomber raids against Communist guerrilla strongholds. This is part of the plan to shake up the Viet Cong, to harry the Communists out of their previously secure bases.

The Map That Couldn't Talk

Maps are fascinating things. They tell of roads, cities, towns and bear odd colors and markings. There are all kinds of maps-relief, aviation, geological and even maps which guide ships over dangerous reefs. There are oil company maps which indicate whether there is a wild tiger in the gasoline tank or merely that a friendly dinosaur has replaced the engine in the family vehicle.

Maps are rather impersonal things. Their task is to present specific information. Generally, they are not in the sales or public relations business. They are quite unable to describe a town as having friendly people or as being beautiful and filled with interesting sights. Maps cannot tell of the happiness or the sadness of people in the cities which they impassively indicate with only black circles and stars. But, they can do something which they really are not intended to do. They can evoke memories and recall to the mind fun times, sad times, people loved, things accomplished, places visited, and perhaps even the sad goodby at a terminal somewhere.

Few maps indicate more and say less than one called "Commuterland, New York. Like most other maps, it bears the stars and circles, and it points out not only all five city boroughs, but also parts of New Jersey and Connecticut. To those who know and hold fond memories of the magic area, this map can pull thoughts from the deepest recesses of the memory bank. To misplaced New Yorkers, it might even bring sadness. Is there a soul so dead who could forget the Staten Island ferry on Sunday afternoon? Commuterland" shows Christopher street, but it can't paint a picture of the radiant couple emerging from the Little Church Around The Corner. There is a red circle which is Penn Station. No possible way for the map to describe the forlorn wreck which was a tribute to Hellenic beauty and which fell victim to changing times. The stories, of love, hope, happiness and sadness this old building could tell would fill several libraries, but the map can bring forth only memories.

Near the bottom of "Commuterland is the Jersey coast. Sandy Hook, Seabright, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Avon, Spring Lake, and quiet, picturesque little Red Bank. Major Bowes used to have a summer home on the river behind Seabright; there are few important radio and TV personalities who have forgotten the original Amateur Hour. Glenn Miller used to play on the Steel Pier at Atlantic City when band music was really music. Seabright is where one stands on the beach early on a summer morning just as the sun comes up. The heavy surf crashes along the jutties and falls on the soft sand. The froth is cold to bare feet, but it is fun to cast out into the waves and feel the pull of a fish as it hits the silver lure. Down the coast a few miles is Brielle where the charter boats live. There are many summer days off that coast when the water is blue, the skies are friendly, and it's as if the whole world is happy. The tuna can't wait to strike.

"Commuterland

Commuterland" shows the route of the Long Island Railroad but fails to describe the company's fine summer tour program. Detailed though it might be, it doesn't tell of Sagamore Hill, Teddy Roosevelt's beautiful home where history seems to live. A bit farther out, at Huntington, is the home of the good grey poet, Walt Whitman. The friendly Long Island Railroad people even include a visit to the Old Hook Mill which stands today as it did when it was built in 1806 at East Hampton. Little stars and black circles are had put to tell of the restful and lovely little island towns-Pinelawn, Brentwood, St. James or King's Park. One remembers matchless tennis on the courts at Forrest Hills or swimming in the Atlantic when it's warm and the salt spray blows.

In Westchester are little towns on the commuter line where every morning grey or olive flannel suits wait for the 8:05 to Grand Central. There's the quiet lake at Bronxville which shimmers in the summer sun; when the snow falls, it's a winter fairyland. Scarsdale up the line a bit, defies even Carmel-by-the Sea in civic beauty. In southern Connecticut there are gentle hills, and at Mystic, green lawns surround homes which might have seen the Revolution. At Rye and Cos Cob are bright beaches and yacht clubs control the summer waters of the Sound.

On and on one meanders along the blue lines, by the black circles, and over areas of red, white, grey and blue. The mind follows the printed page and suddenly, there is no more. A thought provoker which cannot talk-the Map.

MYSTERY OBJECT

SANTA MARIA, Azores (UPI) — An airport spokesman Saturday said a mysterious flying object apparently stopped all electro-magnetic watches at the Santa Maria Airport when it flew slowly over this island Friday. He said a white cylindrical object was seen flying northwest at an altitude of 33,000 feet and attempts to identify it were unsuccessful.

SALLY RAND
. . . Arrested In Omaha

Officer Claims Sally Rand, 62, Dances In Nude

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Fan dancer Sally Rand, who first attracted wide attention at the Chicago Century of Progress in 1933, was arrested following her first performance in an Omaha night club Friday night.

She was booked for investigation under her real name, Helen Gould Beck, and released on $300 bond. The night club owner, George F. Earl, also was booked and freed on $300 bond.

The Omaha vice squad report said Miss Rand admitted that she was nude during her dance.

Vice squad patrolman Vern Presher said Miss Arand appeared first in a white gown and carried two large feather fans. She started a slow tempo dance to recorded organ music.

The officer said that after about one minute she exposed her body to the audience and danced nude for about six minutes.

After being booked she returned to the club and was back on stage at 1 a.m. but there was no arrest this time.

The 61-year-old dancer said she had been doing the same act since the 1933 Chicago Century of Progress fair.

Space Available For 2 More On College's Tour

RUSTON (Special) — Space is available for only two persons on the air-conditioned bus that will transport Louisiana Tech students on an educational tour into the East from Aug. 9-29.

Dr. G. W. McGinty, head of the social science department and director of the itinerary, said 42 of the 44 spaces already have been reserved for Tech's 15th annual study trip.

The traveling will include 5,000 miles into 19 eastern states, with side trips into Quebec and Ontario.

In addition to an entire day at the World's Fair in New York, the tour will include the Great Smoky Mountain National Park, Winston - Salem, N. C., restored Williamsburg, historic Yorktown and Jamestown. At Cherokee, N. C., the tourists will see the famous play, "Unto These Hills," enacted by native Cherokee Indians in a giant open-air theater on a mountain side.

On the agenda also are visits to several historic homes, among them being those of George Washington at Mt. Vernon, Va.; Andrew Jackson at Hermitage, Tenn.; and Henry W. Longfellow at Cambridge, Mass.

In Detroit an automobile assembly plant and steel mill will be visited. The return trip will take the students through Lexington, Ky., heart of the Bluegrass area.

Cost of the tour is $320, which covers transportation, lodging at first-class hotels, tips and admission to tour-sponsored activities, including the fair.

Six hours of graduate or undergraduate credit in geography or history may be earned by those who wish credit. Those who do not seek credit will be classified as auditing students.

Anyone desiring to reserve one of the remaining seats can make an advance deposit with Douglas Jenkins, Tech comptroller.

Grambling Sets Summer Concert

GRAMBLING (Special)—The first summer band concert at Grambling College is scheduled 8 p.m. Tuesday in the main auditorium.

The program includes selections by well known composers including P. Tchaikowsky, Rinsky - Korsakoff, Josquin Des Pres, John P. Sousa, Keller Bela, S. D. Eisch and Jerry Herman. Conrad Hutchinson Jr., assistant professor of music and bandmaster is concert conductor.

STORM WARNINGS

MANILA (UPI) — The Weather Bureau Saturday issued storm alarms along the coast of Luzon south of Manila as Typhoon Freda bore down on the island with winds of up to 103 miles an hour. Weathermen said the first efects of the storm are expected to be felt Saturday night.

Another Missile Site Learned Of In Hanoi Vicinity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five sites for antiaircraft missiles are being prepared in the vicinity of Hanoi, the capital of North Viet Nam.

This is one more than the figure used by a State Department spokesman last week.

It was learned that the five sites are in position to guard Hanoi from U.S. air attack. The State Department also mentioned Haiphong, a major port about 55 miles east of Hanoi, as guarded by such missile sites.

For the most part, the sites spotted by U.S. reconnaissance aircraft are ranged south of Hanoi, about 15 miles away.

With tier slant range of about 35 miles, this gives the city such protection extending out close to 40 miles.

U.S. authorities are not concerned about these sites, considering them of minor importance unless a decision is made to strike at Hanoi itself — which is considered unlikely for political reasons.

So far U.S. bombers have come no closer than 40 miles to the North Vietnamese capital in the almost daily raids which began in early Feburary.

It is not certain whether Russians are doing the missle site preparation work, although the assumption is that they are there as they were at similar antiaircraft missile bases in Cuba.

It was learned also that the presence of Russian soldier or technicians at these antiaircraft missile sites would not save those sites if the United States determined it was necessary to knock them out.

Such a Russian presence would not be a deterrent, as has been supposed by some observers who believe the United States would hesitate to risk a clash with the Soviet Union and thus would avoid killing Russians helping the North Vietnamese.

Nor is there much concern about the eight or nine overage IL28 bombers which are present in North Viet Nam. The view is that these planes were supplied by Russia.

To do any harm, they would have to get by massed U.S. air power to reach Saigon or important U.S. bases such as Da Nang.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

But, Cartoons?

With Jimmy Hatten

With apologies to our colleagues in the sports department, our mind turns to athletics today. It's summer, and thoughts naturally are on the outdoors.

So what do people do? They go to indoor ballgames at the Astrodome at Houston, Tex.

To our knowledge, we're about the only ones around who weren't overwhelmed by that sports arena, which by the way, the taxpayers around Houston would rather refer to as Harris County Domed Stadium, since the place isn't owned by the Astros baseball team.

Please forgive us for our adverse thoughts, but so much has been written and said about what publicists have tabbed the "eighth wonder of the world," that anything written here could only serve to put it in perspective, anyhow.

What we have in mind has nothing to do with the magnificence of the structure, the technical superiority of its workmanship or the convenience and luxury of the place.

It's just not the best place in the world in our opinion to see a baseball game. It's nice if it's raining; it may be fine for football games when the weather's rough—but baseball — well, it detracts from baseball.

If you're a real baseball fan, you go to a baseball stadium to see the game. One of the prime ingredients of a beautiful park is a good growth of grass.

The grass as the Astrodome, or whatever its real name is, looks pitiful. It's pale. You see, the sunlight can't get to it — and it's gradually turning the same color as the office workers who sit in the plush seats looking at it.

The scoreboard is like a drive-in movie. It runs cartoons as the ballgame progresses. Now who wants to be at a ballgame where the bases are loaded, two out in the ninth, and have a big picture of a bull racing toing toward you out of center field? By the time you can rivet your eyes back to the action on the field, chances are the game's over anyhow.

But the folks at the Astrodome have solved even that problem. They then flash a sign in keeping with the action. So if the Astros pulled it out, the letters in centerfield say: "We Win."

At the Astrodome, they flash signs telling you when to yell, when to be dejected, etc., and between innings they flash advertisements telling you what you should buy. It's like going to drive-in TV.

Before the game starts, just in case you've forgotten them, they flash the words to the National Anthem.

And to top it off, its hard to get a transistor radio to work in case you want to hear the play-by-play.

But maybe we've missed the whole point of the Astrodome. Maybe we should do as the youngster in back of us. He was so taken with the place, he yelled for both teams.

"Strike him out! Hit a home run! Strike him out." Eventually the place gets to you . . .

Earth Science Workshop Set At Grambling

GRAMBLING (Special) — A special summer workshop, emhasizing the earth sciences through a short course in physical geography, opens at Grambling College July 19-23.

Sponsored by the social science department and the Louisiana Department of Education, the workshop will emphasize content, material and methods. Lectures and discussions will be geared to the use of globes, maps and other late projections.

Other lectures will be given on rock and mineral deposits in this region, vulcanism and disastrophism, the atmosphere, weather and climate.

The State Department of Education will send Kenneth Mott, supervisor of social studies, to aid the project. In addition, the college has announced a staff for the project headed by Dr. Lee Perkins, professor of geography. It includes Lathardus Goggins, assistant geography professor; Dr. Robert W. Hunter, dean, division of education; Dr. Charles A. Berry, head, department of secondary education; Dr. A. P. Kennedy, head, department of physical sciences and Thomas Odom, assistant professor of physical sciences.

One hour of credit can be earned toward meeting minimum standards for geography and social studies teachers as required by the State Department of Education.

LONDON (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, arrived Saturday from Geneva for a weekend at the Chequers residence of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Peacemaker Role Can Be Perilous

WASHINGTON — The role of the peacemaker is known to be perilous. He often gets clobbered by both sides.

But Big Bill Simkin, a 6-foot-1 Quaker weighing 220 pounds, has never been clobbered. Never even threatened with violence in about a quarter century as arbitrator or mediator of hot labor disputes.

William E. Simkin, 58, onetime school teacher and university instructor, is now director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, a band of some 260 mediators.

It is important to understand how they work — important to get the inside story, for example, of how Simkin recently staved off a steel strike, for at the present, a maratime strike is in effect and contracts are running out in the aerospace industries (rockets, missiles and planes.)

Federal mediators are really powerless, except for the power that comes from their reputation for integrity, impertiality, know-how, and the capacity to listen endlessly.

It is true the law says that contending parties battling over a new contract must notify the mediation service before resorting to strike or lock-out. But after a mediator moves in on the problem, the quarreling parties could invite him to get out, and there would be nothing he could do. He can suggest, but must do no dictating.

How did Simkin fend off a steel strike? Here's the low-down, not provided by him:

It is evident now that neither side wanted a steel strike. But in April 1965, this was not so evident. The parties were yammering at each other and things looked gruesome.

So Simkin missed his Easter dinner. Flying to Pittsburgh, he renewed acquaintance with the negotiators, studied the situation in detail, conferred endlessly with both sides.

Finally, he locked himself in his hotel room with the feeling that events might be drifting toward disaster. In longhand, he wrote on a piece of paper, starting off with a preamble. The strike deadline of May 1 was too close, he reasoned, to settle all the thorny issues.

Why not postpone the crisis to Sept. 1, meantime agreeing to put in escrow, subject to further bargaining, a certain increase for the workers. Here the paper had a blank on it.

The last thing a mediator wants to do is suggest a figure to pit in a blank like that. The idea is to get the parties to agree on a figure by themselves. But Simkin said that, if pressed mercilessly, he would recommend a figure. He knew by that time pretty well just what each side would settle for, but of course he was barred by the mediator's creed from divulging his information without permission from his sources.

Bishop Requests Aid Of Parents On Immorality

The Rt. Rev. Charles P. Greco, bishop of the Alexandria Diocese of the Catholic Church, Saturday told state officers of the Knights of Columbus that parents must impress upon their children the immorality of pornography, thus accomplishing one of the steps in combatting the rapidly increasing crime.

The bishop expressed the importance of the Knights of Columbus in aiding the halt of such literature and said the tremendous program of pornography must be stopped for the good of all mankind.

Speaking on three different subjects during the first day's session of the two-day state offices convention held at the KC Hall here, the bishop also talked on vocations of the religious life. He told officers there exists today the greatest shortage of all time in the realm of the clergy.

Race relations was the third topic the bishop touched upon, telling those present the Knights of Columbus should urge all members to obey civil authority on this question. He urged all men to recognize they were under the fatherhood of one God.

State Deputy William J. Guste Jr. of New Orleans, also an honored guest at the convention of state officers, stressed the importance of lay people in witnessing for Christ to their neighbors in all areas of life through their contacts from day-to-day.

An 8:30 a.m. Mass today will begin the second day of convention activities at Our Lady of Fatima Church with a 9:30 breakfast following at the KC Hall.

During the morning session the group will study problems and suggest remedies for fund raising projects at the organization's youth camps at Covington and Pineville. The group will discuss the youth expansion program and the work of the various Newman Clubs situated on state college campuses.

Johnson Pressing For Enactment Of Program, Short Session Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is pressing Congress to enact this year as much of his legislative program as possible in order to shorten its 1966 election-year session.

But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana still is aiming for adjournment by Labor Day, even if that means postponing action on some presidential proposals until next year.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Committee, disclosed Saturday that Johnson pointed out at a recent White House conference that the more work Congress does now the less it is likely to have to do next year when all House and 34 Senate seats will be at stake in the elections.

Magnuson said, however, that Johnson was not insisting either that Congress lengthen its current session or that it act on every one of his recommendations before it quits.

Mansfield said in a separate interview Congress may leave some controversial matters hanging. With regard to these, he had this to say:

"We'll do the best we can, but still try to get out of here by Labor Day."

Mansfield noted that, with actions last week, Congress has enacted or brought near to final action what he called the "big four" of presidential recommendations. He listed these as Appalachia aid, educational aid for grade and high schools, voting rights and health and hospital care for the elderly.

The later two measures have been passed by both houses in different form.

Chief difference on the voting rights measure, which the House passed by a 333-85 vote Friday, lies in a House-approved provision for abolishing poll taxes in state and local elections. The Senate rejected such a proposal. President Johnson and Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach have indicated they fear it is unconstitutional.

The Senate passed by a 68-21 vote Friday a measure providing broad protection against medical expenses for citizens over 65 and increasing all Social Security checks. The House had passed a different version, containing the same essential features by a 313-115 vote April 8.

The Senate pumped into the measure additional benefits which would bring its first full year outlays to about $7.5 billion, nearly $3 billion more than Johnson originally suggested and $1.5 billion more than projected in the House bill.

While leaders expected no major difficulties in reaching compromises on these measures, they are well aware that trouble lies ahead on presidential proposals to expand the coverage of the Minimum Wage Act and to amend the Taft-Hartley Act to take away the authority of the states to outlaw the open shop.

Magnuson said he was informed that opponents of this latter proposal are going to counter with amendments to put labor unions under the antitrust laws.

"That's going to cause some real flak around here," he observed.

Crossett Man Dies In Crash Near Bastrop

BASTROP (Special) — Eugene Mayo, 21, of Crossett, Ark., was killed late Friday in a headon collision three miles south of Bastrop on Hwy. 165, according to State Police.

State troopers said cars driven by Mayo and Evans Leo Duncan, 26, of Shreveport, collided at 11:30 p.m. Friday in the southbound lane of the highway. Cause of the accident was still undetermined late Saturday and police said determination of the cause was pending results of tests and further investigation.

Mayo, who was killed instantly, was thrown into the steering wheel of his auto. Duncan, his wife, Mrs. Bernice Duncan, and two stepdaughters, Lana Turner, 12, and Connie Morris, 16, were taken to Morehouse General Hospital here where their conditions Saturday night were termed "fair," according to hospital officials.

All suffered lacerations and Mrs. Duncan sustained a broken leg and arm while Lana was treated for nose injuries and Connie for hip injuries. The two girls were asleep on the back seat of the car and Mrs. Duncan was in the front seat with her husband at the time of the accident.

Funeral for Mr. Mayo will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Temple Baptist Church at Crossett with burial at Pinewood Memorial Park Cemetery there by Jones Funeral Home of Crossett.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Mayo of Crossett and several brothers and sisters.

NEW OFFICERS for the ensuing year elected at the final session Saturday of the 39th annual convention of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Louisiana Rural Letter Carriers Association, include, left to right, Mrs. Robert Childress of Delhi, president; Mrs. Lawrence Adams of Morse, vice president; and Mrs. Jerry McCormick of Haughton, secretary-treasurer. State Rural Carriers Elect Officers

Election and installation of officers for the three organizations of the Louisiana Rural Letter Carriers Association highlighted the final session Saturday of the group's annual convention held at the Penn Hotel.

Re-elected to their posts were officers of the past year. Robert F. Childress of Delhi, state president; Jerry McCormick of Haughton, vice president; R. H. (Bud) Starkey of Baton Rouge, secretary-treasurer; and R. L. Reno of Gibsland, historian.

The convention marked the 49th annual meeting of the men's group and the 39th annual meeting of its Ladies Auxiliary.

Ladies Auxiliary officers named and installed were Mrs. Robert F. Childress of Delhi, president; Mrs. Lawrence Adams of Morse, vice president; Mrs. Jerry McCormick of Haughton, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Lucille Dennison of Longstreet, junior sponsor and Mrs. Lawrence LaJuanie of Carrion Crow, co-sponsor of the junior group.

Junior officers named to preside over meetings of the children of delegates during the coming year were Mike Sharp of Eros, president; Kay Lynn Deloach of Athens, vice president; and Joyce Pugh of Port Sulpher, secretary-treasurer.

During the morning session, delegates heard a talk on a car insurance program for rural letter carriers by Harland S. Herrin of St. Louis, Mo., vice president of the National Insurance Underwriters Co.

Mrs. Leonard Szatkowski of Wausaukee, Wisc., national auxiliary officer, spoke to both groups. Mrs. Szatkowski told LRLCA delegates that the national organization of the Ladies Auxiliary offered wholehearted support of the pursuits of the rural carriers and she said the welfare of the carrier and the service he rendered were of primary concern to the ladies group.

The RLCA group of the 7th Congressional District won two awards during the close-out session. They were for attaining the highest percentage of membership of the area carriers.

The third award presented at the conclave went to the 8th district for being the group with the highest percentage of increase in membership during the past year.

In other activities, delegates to the national convention set for Aug. 8-13 in Boston, Mass., were chosen. Six delegates and one alternate were named from the men's group and four were named for the ladies' group.

Planning and organization of the national convention in New Orleans in 1966 was the last order of business before the farewell message at 12:30 p.m. by Carey W. Hillard of Rome, Ga., vice president of the national association.

CORE Leader Says Bogalusa Help Call Due

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — James Farmer, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality said Saturday he would issue a call for more CORE workers in other states to come here to help in the civil rights struggle.

"This does not mean they will come in thousands," Farmer said, "maybe nearer in hundreds."

Farmer's announcement came a few hours after a federal district judge halted city officials from interfering with civil rights forces spearheading demonstrations here. Farmer said a march would be held Sunday to protest "police brutality."

Meanwhile, Negroes and whites clashed twice briefly in the tense downtown area where civil rights workers stepped up picketing activity.

One scuffle came when two whites emerged from a truck and began arguing with a Negro who was not a picket.

They exchanged blows before state troopers rushed in and arrested all three on charges of disturbing the peace.

The two whites, identified as John A. Miller, 33, and Douglas Pound, in his late twenties, were freed on bonds of $500 each. The Negro, A. V. Roberson, an Air Force man home on leave, remained in jail.

In another brief clash, Delton Graves, 29, a white man was booked with disturbing the peace by fighting with a 14-year-old Negro. The Negro boy was taken away from the area and then released without charges.

Graves was released on $300 bond.

Traffic on busy Columbia Street, clogged with Saturday shoppers, was rerouted during the clashes. About 100 city and state police were in the area.

League action involving the Bogalusa situation took place in New Orleans.

Military Costs Reduced Despite Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara expects to announce soon that he has achieved a $3 billion reduction in military spending, despite a sharp step-up in the Vietnamese war.

Pentagon officials said Saturday the cost of the Vietnamese conflict was but a small percentage of the total defense budget for the fiscal year which ended June 30. In addition, they said, the full financial impact of the war's latest proportions has not yet been felt.

Military spending for the 11 months ended June 1 was $42.7 billion compared to $45.8 billion for the same 11-month period of the previous year. Final figures for June are still being compiled but are not expected to change the picture.

The prospect is for a spending total more than $1 billion below the $49.3 billion estimate given Congress last January for the year just ended. That estimate itself was nearly $2 billion below the $51.2 billion spent in fiscal 1964.

Predawn Blast Fatal For Seven

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—A predawn explosion killed seven persons and gravely injured four when two freight trains — one carrying crude oil — collided near Malatya Province, press reports said Saturday.

The impact blew up oil tanks, spreading flames onto the derailed boxcars and causing considerable damage, the reports said, adding that those killed included engineers and workmen on both trains.

Many Summer Pleasure Seekers Find Misfortune

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

Have you ever considered the many misfortunes of summer?

This time of year is a favorite with many residents of the Twin Cities area because they can indulge in their favorite pastime of swimming, fishing, boating, camping, picnicking, hiking, water skiing and other activities.

However, too often the great outdoors offers a lot more than the pleasure seekers bargain for and the results can be uncomfortable and may cause serious trouble.

An expression used time and time again in these parts during the penetrating cold of winter is "I'll be glad when summer comes."

Well, it's here with its sunny and warm days and area citizens can hardly complain about the lack of penetrating heat from the sun's rays (except when it rains). They run out to revel in sun's glory, often forgetting that it can be excessive.

If a person suffers from a headache, dizziness, red face and has hot, dry skin, a rapid pulse and high temperature — chances are it's sunstroke. The thing to do in case of sunstroke is find a cool place, lay the patient on back with head elevated, loosen clothing and send for a doctor.

Another malady brought on by sun is heat exhaustion, often confused with sunstroke. It is caused when the body becomes overheated, not necessarily from being out in the hot sun too long. The symptoms here are different — the face is pale, skin moist and cool with a great deal of sweating, the pulse is weak and temperature low. The patient should be treated for shock, kept warm, given stimulants and frequent sips of salt water. The body can also be rubbed to restore circulation.

Northeast Louisiana is famous for its many lakes, rivers and bayous, where people flock in summer to fish or participate in other recreation. Frequently, the fisherman catches a number of things besides — or instead of — fish. These include rashes from poison ivy or oak, insect bites which can bring on infection, and sometimes snake bites.

Poison ivy and oak rashes occur from one to nine days after exposure. The rash is very uncomfortable and hardly worth the price one has to pay for a few hours of fun. This does not mean one need give up outdoors activity just because of some leaves. However, precautions can be used by knowing how to spot the nuisances. Poison ivy is a vine of the sumac family with three leaves. Poison oak is also poison sumac, actually a bushy variety of poison ivy.

If plants are touched and the skin erupts with a rash, wash areas with soap and water and rinse with clear water. Calamine lotion is recommended, greasy ointments are not.

In summer it is said a fly can reproduce by 191,000,000,000. It seems that favorite places for their multiplication are favorite places in this area for lovers of nature. This is true especially in the more swampy regions. Not only the fly, but mosquitoes, ants, gnats, bugs, bees, spiders, wasps — on and on — can make great pests of themselves.

The bites of stings can be painful, but the insuing infections cause the harm. Swelling, redness, soreness and pus are danger signs. A doctor should be consulted as soon as possible, but in the meantime, use compresses of warm salt water, elevate the inflamed area and do not move it.

Another danger of summer is the snake bite. Snakes, like humans, seem to prefer to come out in warm weather. And, unlike an old adage, their bite is far worse than their hiss.

If you should encounter snake bite this summer, remember these rules: keep the patient quiet, tie a tight bandage above the place of the bite and loosen the bandage for one minute every 20 minutes, make a one-half inch incision connecting the fang marks and apply suction by mouth for one-half hour, unless a more suitable type pump is available. Treat for shock by placing patient on back with head low and keep warm. Get a doctor as quickly as possible.

Prevalent in summer during outdoor activity are cuts. A sterile bandage should be placed over the wound and direct hand pressure may stop the bleeding. A tourniquet is used ONLY for arterial bleeding — spurting blood of an artery. If a tourniquet is used, it must be applied above the wound, tight enough to stop bleeding, and released every 15 minutes.

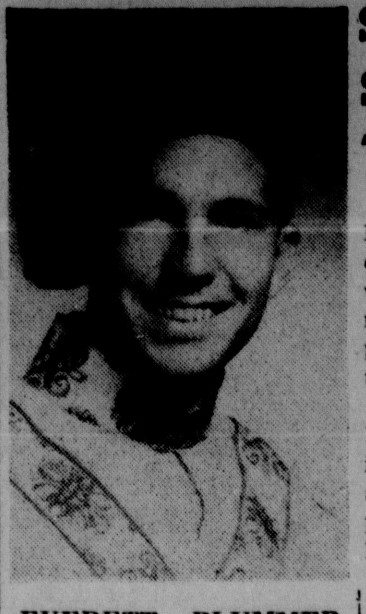
Lakes, ponds, creeks, rivers, bayous and water holes are lures for pleasure seekers looking for a refreshing swim or cool ride on a boat. Drowning could be the result. Unfortunately, a number of such tragedies have already occurred this summer in the Twin Cities area.

Symptoms of drowinng are blue and cold skin, weak pulse and stoppage of breathing.

Artificial respiration is the answer and water should NOT be removed from the lungs by any other method. Also it is wise to try to keep the person warm.

Artificial respiration should be started as soon as possible if breathing has stopped. An approved method is as follows: Lay patient on stomach, one arm out and one arm bent at elbow, with face turned outward resting on hand or forearm; kneel, straddle patient's thighs and place hands on small of back with little fingers touching lowest ribs; swing forward, keeping arms stiff and allow weight of body to gradually be brought to bear on patient until firm resistance is felt; when shoulders are over hands, swing back and rest a moment; repeat 12 or 15 times a minute without interruption.

When weather is ideal and summer fun beckons, it is difficult to refuse. However, if participants would remember to be cautious many misfortunes could be avoided. But, should an accident occur, act promptly, keep your head and remember the foregoing first aid hints.



EVERETT PLUMMER of Jonesboro, a member of the cast which will present "Kiss Me Kate" July 15-16 in the Louisiana Tech auditorium at Ruston.

Church Society Speaker Named

"Christianity in the Canal Zone," will be discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the St. Joseph Holy Name Society 7:30 p.m. Monday at St. Joseph Catholic Church, 506 Benton.

The guest speaker will be Kenneth W. Bryan, who has been a resident of the Panama Canal Zone for the past three years. He and his wife and children are former members of St. Joseph Catholic Church. He also was a member of the parish Holy Name Society.

Also to be discussed at the meeting will be plans for the forthcoming parish picnic and barbecue.

Sophomore Has Star Role In 'Kiss Me Kate'

RUSTON (Special) — Sandra Beaty a sophomore music education major at Louisiana Tech will be seen in her first starring role as Lois Lane in the Tech production of "Kiss Me Kate" to be presented July 15 and 16.

Sandra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Beaty of Shreveport, is holder of a Tech grant-in-aid scholarship in voice and was previously soloist at the First Baptist church, Shreveport.

Directing this ever popular musical by Cole Porter is James G. Smith. This colorful satire on Shakespeare's "Taiming of the Shrew," boasting a twenty peice orchestra, directed by Jimmie Howard Reynolds, will display dozens of actors, singers, and dancers for two performances in Howard Auditorium on July 15 and 16 at 8 p.m.

Other members of the cast are Eulaila Young of Nashville, James G. Smith of Ruston, and Everett Plummer of Jonesboro. The production staff includes choreographer Paul Coates of the Shreveport Ballet Academy, Billy Howell, painting director, Larry Stanley, construction director, and Charlotte Sanford, costume mistress.

Tickets for the show are available at Stinson's Music Box, The Holiday Inn in Ruston or by mail from the La. Tech music dept. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for adults, and $1.10 for students. Tech students are admitted by I. D. cards.

Pioneer Pianist In Critical State

NEW YORK (AP) — Bud Powell, the musician who pioneered many of the techniques for modern jazz piano, was in critical condition Saturday in Brooklyn's Cumberland Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said that although the 41-year-old Negro musician was unconscious, "he had several visitors during the day."

About a year ago Powell returned to the United States after a lengthy residence in France.

GOP Committee Says Democrats OK Vote Fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican Congressional Committee claimed Saturday the vote of 165 House Democrats against a voting rights bill amendment "amounted to condoning vote frauds in this country."

The charge was made in a statement released by Rep. Bob Wilson of California, chairman of the committee, concerning passage of the amendment Friday.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., argued it could be used to hamper Negro voter registration drives.

The amendment, which provides criminal penalities for persons giving fraudulent registration information, was approved by the House, 253-165.

Wilson said in the Republican statement: "The vote of the 165 House Democrats against the clean elections amendment amounted to condoning vote frauds in this country. It is hard to understand how anyone could oppose an amendment like this which would help stop such things as vote-buying and vote-stealing. Honest elections are as vital to our system as universal suffrage."

CLEARED OF MURDERS

WIESBADEN, Germany (UPI) — Former police chief Oskar Christ has been cleared of charges of the World War II murders of six Russians but will remain in custody, it was announced Saturday. A Hesse state prosecutor's office spokesman said Christ will be held until "other related matters" are cleared up but refused to elaborate.

Greek King Tired After Baby's Birth

CORFU, Greece (AP) — Queen Anne-Marie and her newborn daughter were reported doing very well Saturday, but King Constantine had to take to his bed, exhausted.

Early Saturday the queen, 18, the world's youngest, gave birth to a 9-pound, 11-ounce girl, who becomes heiress to the throne of Greece.

A medical bulletin said it was a normal birth "and Her Majesty and the newborn child are doing very well."

But a palace official said the king, 25, exhausted from an all-night vigil and excitement, had retired for a rest.

Constantine, wearing a surgical mask, was in the delivery room for the birth — a specially prepared room in the summer palace on this Ionian island.

Immediately afterward, Constantine telephoned Premier George Papandreou in Athens, touching off a 21-gun salute and the pealing of church bells.

Dressed in an open-neck shirt and slacks, the grinning monarch hastened to the gates of the palace, where a crowd was waiting, and shouted: "It's a girl!"

Two municipal bands marched and played in the Corfu streets as Constantine left the palace and went to a radio station where he broadcast the birth announcement message to Greece.

As church bells echoed across Corfu's green hills and valleys, people ran into the street in celebration. Congratulations flowed in from around the world.

Anne-Marie's mother, Queen Ingrid of Denmark, Constantine's mother, Queen Mother Frederika, and Crown Princess Irene, Constantine's sister, also were present at the birth.

The queen's father, King Frederik IX of Denmark, was roused from bed aboard the royal yacht Dannebrog, at anchor in the port of Aarhus, to hear the news. He will fly to Corfu next week to see his first grandchild.

The royal infant is first in line of succession to the throne, replacing Irene. If a son is born to the couple, however, he will be first in line.

Kidney Donor Returns Home; Doing Just Fine

ANNISTON, Ala. (AP) —John Honeycutt, 41-year-old pipefitter who donated one of his kidneys to his stricken 13-year-old daughter, was back home Saturday and reported "to be just doing fine."

This was the comment from a sister, Mrs. T. B. Hiett, who visited Honeycutt after his arrival from New Orleans.

He had been in Charity Hospital in New Orleans since July 1, when he and his daughter, Jonnie Gail, underwent a kidney transplant operation. Doctors said Jonnie Gail had lost use of both her kidneys and needed the operation for a chance to survive.

The child remains in the hospital while doctors watch her over a critical 40-day period in which the body may try to reject the foreign tissue.

Another daughter, Brenda, 16, said of the wait in the New Orleans hospital: "I just sat by daddy's bed all the time and rocked and rocked."

Mrs. Hiet said her brother will rest for the moment, but has some projects to complete before his Jonnie Gail returns.

"One of John's jobs is to try to get a phone put in his house. Jonnie asked that one be there by the time she gets home."

Chile President Leaves France

PARIS (AP) — President Eduardo Frei of Chile took official leave of President Charles de Gaulle Saturday ending a three-day visit that netted offers of help in several fields.

De Gaulle granted Frei three personal interviews. During the first one, he decorated Frei with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The aims of both countries in their relations with the United States overlap. Chile would like to find some other source of aid and encouragement, and France would like to offer that alternative.

Tech Crew Trapping Mice For Research

RUSTON (Special) — Structures of blood for as many as 50,000 years ahead may be predicted as a result of far-flung mice - catching expedition by Louisiana Tech representatives and subsequent study of hemoglobins of the rodents in the zoology laboratories of the college here.

Tech President F. Jay Taylor announced that the college and the University of Mississippi Medical Center at Jackson jointly have been awarded a grant of $196,000 by the National Heart Institute, a division of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to support this research project for the next five years. The study is titled "Genetic and Physiologic Evolution of Animal Hemoglobins."

The chief Tech "mice-tro" in charge of the research is S. S. Kilgore, associate professor of zoology. The program will be conducted as an undertaking of the zoology department and the division of research of the School of Arts and Sciences.

The portion of the work to be conducted at the University of Mississippi will be under the direction of Dr. Robert B. Thompson, assistant professor in the department of clinical laboratory sciences.

Both the Tech and Mississippi investigators have had considerable experience in blood research. The Mississippi scientist is primarily concerned with the study of human hemoglobins and the Tech professor is interested in animal hemoglobins. In 1964, Kilgore and Dr. Thompson began to compare data on animal and human bloods, which culminated in this cooperative research effort.

This study will deal with the blood of the deer mouse, which is native to the North American continent and exists from the Arctic Circle to south of Mexico City. During the next three years, Tech will send trapping teams into 11 western states, the Pacific coastal islands, Mexico and Canada.

Tech's present mouse trappers include Kenneth Griswold, a zoology graduate student; Glen Manasco, an electrical engineering undergraduate, and Carroll Kilgore, all of Ruston. Young Kilgore, a senior at Ruston High School, is the son of the research professor.

This team currently is moving by camp trailer into Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana. Their destination is the Yukon country and Alberta, Canada. Equipment aboard their vehicle includes 400 traps made of hardware cloth and measuring 3x3x10 inches.

The traps will be placed 25 feet apart, mostly in areas previously scouted and believed to be likely sections for the deer mice. These rodents are widely distributed, some living among Century plant cactus in Mexico, some in tall grass of the plains and others in territories of hardwood trees, Kilgore said. The Tech trappers have obtained state and federal permits to hunt the mice.

To catch these rodents, the trappers use such choice mouse morsels as peanut butter, oatmeal, bacon and bird seed. A day's catch may vary none up to as many as 200, the zoologist announced. All are live-trapped.

Since the mice cannot be shipped by common carrier, they will be brought back to the two educational institutions by the school's means, whenever a collection amounts to 200 or more.

Kilgore estimated that eventually a total of 1,000 mice may be on hand at one time for the experimental project at Tech. He pointed out that although air-conditioned facilities are provided for the guest rodents, they usually die of old age at about three years. Two extra rooms are to be made available for the mice in the Carson-Taylor science laboratories, he stated.

The deer mice are so-called because they are white-footed and have white under sides. They are the "blue bloods" of the genus so far as this research is concerned. But if ordinary field varieties of mice should happen to saunter into some of the traps, these little pip-squeakers will be brought back to the Tech campus, too, and will have the opportunity of serving science in some other capacity here, Kilgore reported.

There is a non-scientific theory that a rodent would not be caught entering a trap in which another has been snared, since they know how to "smell a mouse." Kilgore belittles that notion.

"We have caught two mice in the same trap the same night," he said. "When the cages with the live mice are brought back to the campus they will be unloaded and sent out again."

The three Tech trappers now on the move will return to Tech about Sept. 15. During the fall and winter, another team will operate in the southwestern United States and Baja California, Mexico.

Fifty-two different types of hemoglobin are known, Kilgore pointed out, in explaining the scope of the investigation of bloods.

While much of the research is of a technical nature, at least the safari part of the project already has attracted popular appeal. For instance, some girls, who normally kick over the traces at the sight of a mouse, have expressed a desire to go on one of these expenditions. At another extreme, some "big game hunters" also have inquired about going along, Kilgore reported.

It's all in the interest of science, however, and part of a long-range "'developmental plan."

BURNING MISTAKE

ROME (UPI) — Police reported Saturday that employe Paolo Chiricozzi threw what he thought was a bucket of water on garage owner Aldo Ferretti Friday when a blowtorch set fire to the latter's clothing. The liquid was acid. Ferretti was treated for burns, mostly from the acid rather than the fire.

Five Indians In Training For U.S. War On Poverty

ANNAPOLIS, MD. (AP) — Five Indians, among the first "Peace Corps" volunteers sent to the United States from another country, are in training here for work in America's war on poverty.

The Indians will spend three months at St. John's College, where they are preparing for probable assignment in U.S. slum areas and also helping teach the Hindi language to 93 American Peace Corps volunteers who will go to India.

They will then spend about a year working alongside American volunteers in antipoverty programs in this country.

Harris Wofford, associate director of the Peace Corps, said the program is a pilot experiment which could lead to an international peace corps.

He said the corps has provided a badly needed "exchange of light" between countries, "but so far it has all been outgoing."

"This program would make the corps a real two-way street, which is what we've always hoped it would be," he said.

The program was set up by the U.S. and Indian governments and will be financed by the two governments and by American private foundations.

Wofford said the five Indians who have arrived in the United States within the last two weeks, will be assigned to work in slum areas with Volunteers in Service to America — Vista — the domestic Peace Corps. They will not actually be a part of that program, but will be paid on the same basis — a living allowance and $50 a month to be given them when their service is complete.

"We haven't settled on just where they will go, but we have more invitations than we can accept," Wofford said.

The five trainees, selected by the Indian government, all have at least one college degree and all have considerable experience in community action and social work.

They are Mrs. Stawant B. Singh, 46, from Delhi; S. D. Tyagi, 36, Etawah, Uttar Pradesh; L. K. Gupta, 34, Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh; M. K. Pathik, 27, New Delhi, and Krishna Patankan, 32, Bombay.

If the program is judged a success by Indian and American officials, it could lead to establishment of an Indian peace corps. The five volunteers would use their experience to help such an Indian program get started.

Wofford said Sargent Shriver, the Peace Corps director, had been advocating the idea of an exchange peace corps, and that the interest expresed by the Indian government in setting up a corps offered the opportunity for trying the experiment.

Art works and art centers rning up in all kinds of aces. Naturally with the in eased interest in art by so any, it must follow that a eat deal of experimentation d search for new forms and chniques will be the outcome. As this column has stated be re the aesthetic will survive hile the rest will be replaced day by tomorrow's topic of onversation. Interest in "pop" s not quite what it was and "op" is not as newsworthy as it once was. Those who really created with the methods will become part of the art history of the Twentieth Century. The others will hop on somebody else's artistic bandwagon. Some good will come from most of it. Sometimes turning up in the element of surprise, the unexpected. The "pop" art form (although in some cases the erm has been debatable) has een the inspiration for apparel n all shapes and sizes found in vomen's wear markets this ummer. More recently, Aud Sabol, a housewife of Vil ova, Pa., with partner, Joan om, formed a company to anufacture "pop" jewelry.

One of "pops" more famous ks, an eight foot sign blink EAT, by Robert Indiana, version of it adorns the fa de of the N. Y. State build g at the World's Fair) spark the three inch replica. Sign by the artist, each tiny plas c disk has 25 miniscule light bulbs that blink EAT on and off for eight hours at a stretch. The price $275. I doubt seriously that the are oriented jewels will ever replace diamonds as a girl's best friend, but the Mesdames Sabol and Krom are now working on an "op" gem with 40 itty bitty, blinking lights.

With greater interest and new forms there must be an increase of places to view both the accepted art works and those struggling for survival. And new places there are. America's cultural thrust shows no sign of losing its bounce, vigor or momentum.

Aside from the more conventional museums and galleries that have opened this year, ambitious projects such as the "Artmobile II," sponsored by the Northern Virginia Fine Arts Association, are cropping up all over. "Paris, '20: The T. Batesby Jones Collection" was the most recent exhibit mounted in the trailer, pulled by a tractor, and parked in a parking lot. On sunny days mothers pushing baby carriages on an afternoon promenade can detour through the Artmobile and enjoy canvasses by Matisse, Dufy, Lurcat and other masters . . .

The Ringling Museums in Sarasota, Fla., were built around the private collection of John Ringling and his wife Mabel. Now state supported, the complex includes a 30-room Venetian Pallazzo, a transplanted 18th century Italian theater and an art collection heavily emphasizing the baroquqe.

Rocky Mount, N. C. proves art doesn't need a palazzo; it is quite at home in a converted pumping station of the Atlantic Coastline Railroad. Dubbed "The Little Guggenheim" because of its roundness, the town's new arts center and its current renovations include an art gallery (finished) and an arena theater seating 100 (under construction).

When the new Madison Square Garden opens in 1967, it will also house the National Art Museum of Sports, the first museum in the world devoted entirely to sports . . .

The corporation has long been established as a collector. Other big businesses to join the culture craze as a place to view or purchase original art works include, a most successful venture for a catalog chain store, the opening of a gallery in N. Y. by one of the nation's leading discount chains, and $500,000 in sales chalked up by a Five and Dime store in one week in purchases of original art.

One of the few institutions to escape the art invasion seems to be the supermarket.

Just think when that does happen, replacing the conventional index system, we grocery shoppers may be advised that we can choose a fine chicken at the counter directly under the Chagall, Sunflower seeds under the Van Gogh, and soup under an Andy Warhol creation. The possibilities are numerous and fascinating.

Ban On Traffic

MONTECATINI, Italy (AP) — A nine-day ban on all forms of motor traffic began in this Italian spa resort Saturday to see how people react to quiet, no fumes and complete safety in the streets.

Jes Ramblin'

Admitted

Janet Vanderpool, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Vanderpool Jr., 3410 Loop Road, Monroe, has been admitted as a freshman at Hollins College, Virginia, for the 1965-66 session.

A graduate of Neville High School, she will join over 300 other freshmen in September at Hollins, located near Roanoke, Va., the oldest chartered liberal arts college for women in Virginia.

Retires

Lt. Col. Emily W. Miller of the Women's Army Corps, former Monroe resident and the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Franklin Miller of Waterproof, has retired after completing more than 23 years in service.

Col. Miller entered the WAC in July, 1942 and retired June 30 this year. Her duties included public information work, recruiting jobs, staff advisor posts, supply duties and deputy chief of staff for logistics.

After a world tour, she will make her home in Shreveport.

Scouts Leave For Philmont

Thirteen area Boy Scouts and two adults left Saturday for Philmont Scout Ranch, a 214 square mile ranch in northeastern New Mexico near Cimarron, for the annual camping and training program.

A second group of scouts with two leaders will leave July 18.

Those leaving Saturday were James Johnson, adult leader and Jerry Page, driver, and Dexter Jackson, Byron Stringfellow, Lonnie Smith, Thomas Edward Wright, Ibra Bradford January Jr., Matthew Williams III, Justin January, Louis French, James R. Ross, Melvin Givens, Eugene Gibbs and Donald Foster.

ANOTHER NAME has been added to the plaque of graduating seniors winning the Wall Street Journal Student Achievement Award at Northeast Louisiana State College. Ronald L. Weir (left), son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Weir of 1001 Auburn, Monroe, also received a specially designed silver medal from the Wall Street Journal. Making the presentation recently was Dwight D. Vines (right), dean of the School of Business Administration at NLSC. The award is presented annually in recognition of scholastic achievement.

Monroe Store Notes 50th Anniversary

Johnnie Smith Elbert's, 106 Roselawn, one of Monroe's leading ladies ready - to - wear stores, closes out one - half century of business this month with plans for the continued service to its many customers during the coming 50 years.

Opened originally as Johnnie Smith's, the owner changed the name to Johnnie Smith Elbert's following her marriage, and five years ago incorporated the business.

The business was located in three locations along DeSiard Street, in downtown Monroe, before moving in 1939 to its present location. In making this move, Mrs. Elbert became the first DeSiard Street merchant to move out of the immediate DeSiard street area. In commenting on this move, she said it "was a good move, although everyone thought I was crazy. No one thought it would succeed."

The store was located at 147 DeSiard street for the first two years, but had to move when the small building was razed to make way for the present Bernhardt Building. From there she moved to the Masonic Temple building, where she remained for five years, then back to near the original location, at 202 DeSiard Street. Then in 1939, the business moved to the corner of Roselawn and North Second streets.

Mrs. Elbert said a beauty salon, opened when the store was in the downtown location, is still connected with the business and operated by the original operator, Mrs. Louise Thompson Johnson. She has been with the concern for 40 years.

Also with the ready - to - wear concern for a long time, 47 years, is Mrs. Lillian Mitchell. Another member of the store personnel, Mrs. Gladyn Walters, has been connected with the business for 41 years.

Mrs. Elbert, although busy with the establishment, still has time to enjoy several hobbies, including the propagation of camellias, (she had 1,000 bushes at one time), cooking, and until a year ago, did needlepoint and handiwork.

During the years, too, she has taken time out for trips to Europe twice, Hawaii, Alaska and Canada, and several islands in the Caribbean.

Military Junta Closes Paper

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — The ruling military junta shut down El Tiempo, a Roman Catholic morning daily, Saturday.

The undersecretary of the interior, a police inspector and patrolmen armed with bayonets and tear gas marched in and told Editor Carlos de la Torre his plant was being shut down at once.

El Tiempo is an independent, Roman Catholic daily. It began publication on Jan. 6. It has been outspoken and critical of the junta. On page one Saturday it played up the story of police violence in Guayaquil on Friday night as demonstrators marched to show opposition to a military government.

Its leading editorial said, under the heading "A Regime of Violence" that "An unarmed people wishes for nothing more than peace and well-being. The government is under obligation to provide them."

Liner Leaves Port

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Italy's newest transatlantic passenger liner, the 46,000-ton Raffaello, left this north Italian port Saturday on an inaugural Mediterranean cruise with 1,200 passengers. She will return to Genoa July 17 and leave on her first Atlantic crossing, to New York, July 25.

Mansfield Discusses Senate Conflicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Does Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana find any conflicts between his dual jobs as Senate Democratic leader and representing his state in the Senate? And what about his relations with President Johnson, whom he succeeded as Senate Democratic leader?

Mansfield answered these and other questions in an interview which went like this:

Q.—Have you encountered any conflicts in doing your job as a senator from Montana and your job as the Senate majority leader?

A.—Every senator who has served in a leadership position has encountered instances of conflict as between his state's interests and the responsibilities which go with leadership in the Senate. I am no exception. Fortunately, however, the conflicts have been few and far between during the past 4½ years. It happens that most of the time what is good for Montana is also good for the nation.

Q.—Were there such conflicts when you protested administration orders to eliminate silver from coins?

A.—I joined with other Western senators in opposition to this administration measure, but the administration made a strong case for the change and the Western senators could not prevail in their view in the Senate. So we lost that one.

Q.—If a conflict developed in which you had to choose between the interests of Montana and the Senate leadership, what would you do? And why?

A.—I am a senator of the United States representing the State of Montana, before all else. That is the role consigned to me by the Constitution and by the people of Montana. It is a sworn obligation which must and will remain foremost at all times.

Q.—There have been Senate Democratic leaders who have been defeated for re-election to the Senate. In some cases those effects were blamed on too much leadership interest at the expense of work for their states. Do you consider this a hazard in your case?

A.—I do not know what hazard other Senate leaders may have experienced in their dual role. There is a problem of spreading oneself too thin. But my response to that problem has been to spread more of myself to cover both responsibilities. Montanans have been most tolerant and understanding of my situation and for that support I am deeply grateful.

Q.—How do you view the correct relationship between the Senate leadership and the White House?

A.—The President has his job to do and it is a great responsibility to all the people of the United States. The leadership in the Senate has done and will do everything it can properly do to help him discharge his responsibility for the benefit of the nation.

The majority leader of the Senate is elected by the Senate to serve and to represent the majority party in the Senate. At the same time, a majority leader bears part of the responsibility for the effective cooperation of the Senate with the other branches of the government. He cannot do justice to the second part of the job without faithfully carrying out his primary responsibility to his colleagues under the first. That is the way I see the job. That is the way I try to do it.

Auto Industry Sending Wheels To Washington To Answer Safety Charges

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry will send some of its biggest wheels to Washington this week to answer charges it has dragged its feet on traffic safety.

President of General Motors, Ford and American Motors head the list of witnesses who will appear before a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn. Chrysler Corp. will be represented by two of its top vice president.

Ribicoff, during a preliminary three-day hearing last March, charged the industry had not done all possible in the field of auto safety. He expressed alarm at the nation's increasing annual traffic death toll which reached 47,000 last year.

The demand for more attention to auto safety problems has been heard in many state legislatures this year, as well as in Congress.

The General Services Administration brought the safety problem into further public attention July 1 when it publicized the finalized list of 17 safety d vices which must be on all ca the industry supplies to feder agencies, effective Sept. 1966.

Depression Era Alaskan Pioneers Honored

In 1935 they were called "cream puff pioneers" and "pilgrims in search of a brave new world," among other things. However, today, these sturdy people who traveled from the U. S. to settle in Alaska, are being accorded special recognition for their achievements.

PALMER, Alaska (AP)—Thirty years ago they were front page news.

They were "cream puff pioneers," "pets of the depression," "pilgrims in search of a brave new world," or "new Israelites going to a new Canaan."

Three special trains carried them to the West Coast from Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. A large white Army transport ship, the St. Mihiel, brought them north to what some columnists called "a cold storage El Dorado."

The whole town turned out to greet them at Seward when they landed and there was an even bigger welcome in Anchorage, only a few miles from their destination in Alaska's fertile, but untilled Matanuska Valley.

Today those colonists of 1935 again are accorded special recognition — this time as true Alaska pioneers.

Pioneers' Banquet

They and their children were invited June 6 to a banquet sponsored by the Palmer Pioneers' Lodge and Women's Auxiliary, with initiation into membership, Thirty years of residence in Alaska is a requirement.

There are approximately 350 colonists and their immediate descendants living in Alaska, most of them in the Matanuska Valley. About 100 live in the Anchorage area and others are scattered through the state.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt became president in the depression days, one of the earliest projects in the relief program was aiding tens of thousands of farm families to move off their submarginal lands. In the search for new land, Alaska was a natural.

It was decided that a pilot project would be started in the Matanuska Valley, reachable via the Alaska Railroad. The families were selected in northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan because of similar climatic conditions. Most were of Scandinavian extraction and between the ages of 25 and 40.

Quartered in Tents

They arrived in Palmer in May 1935, and were housed in tents while their log and frame homes were being built. Viewing an old photograph of the tent city recently, colonists exclaimed: "It doesn't look muddy enough."

Social and psychological problems were many as the community of 1,500 human beings set about organizing itself. The unusual human frailties of jealousy, arrogance, impatience and loneliness contributed to the problems. Sixty families gave up in despair and returned to their stateside homes during the first year.

Since it was strictly a relief project, only subsistence farming was permitted at first. The tracts were too small for commercial farming, the buildings inadequate and the colonists forbidden to seek employment away from their land.

With all the publicity, however, officials both in Washington and Palmer had thousands of applicants begging to join the project. When the discouraged left, others came to take their places.

Markets Developed

As the various New Deal programs came to an end, policies found impractical were discarded. Markets were developed at the newly established military bases and in railbelt communities.

With highway construction came a decrease in marketing costs. Increasing population in the Anchorage area absorbed all available produce.

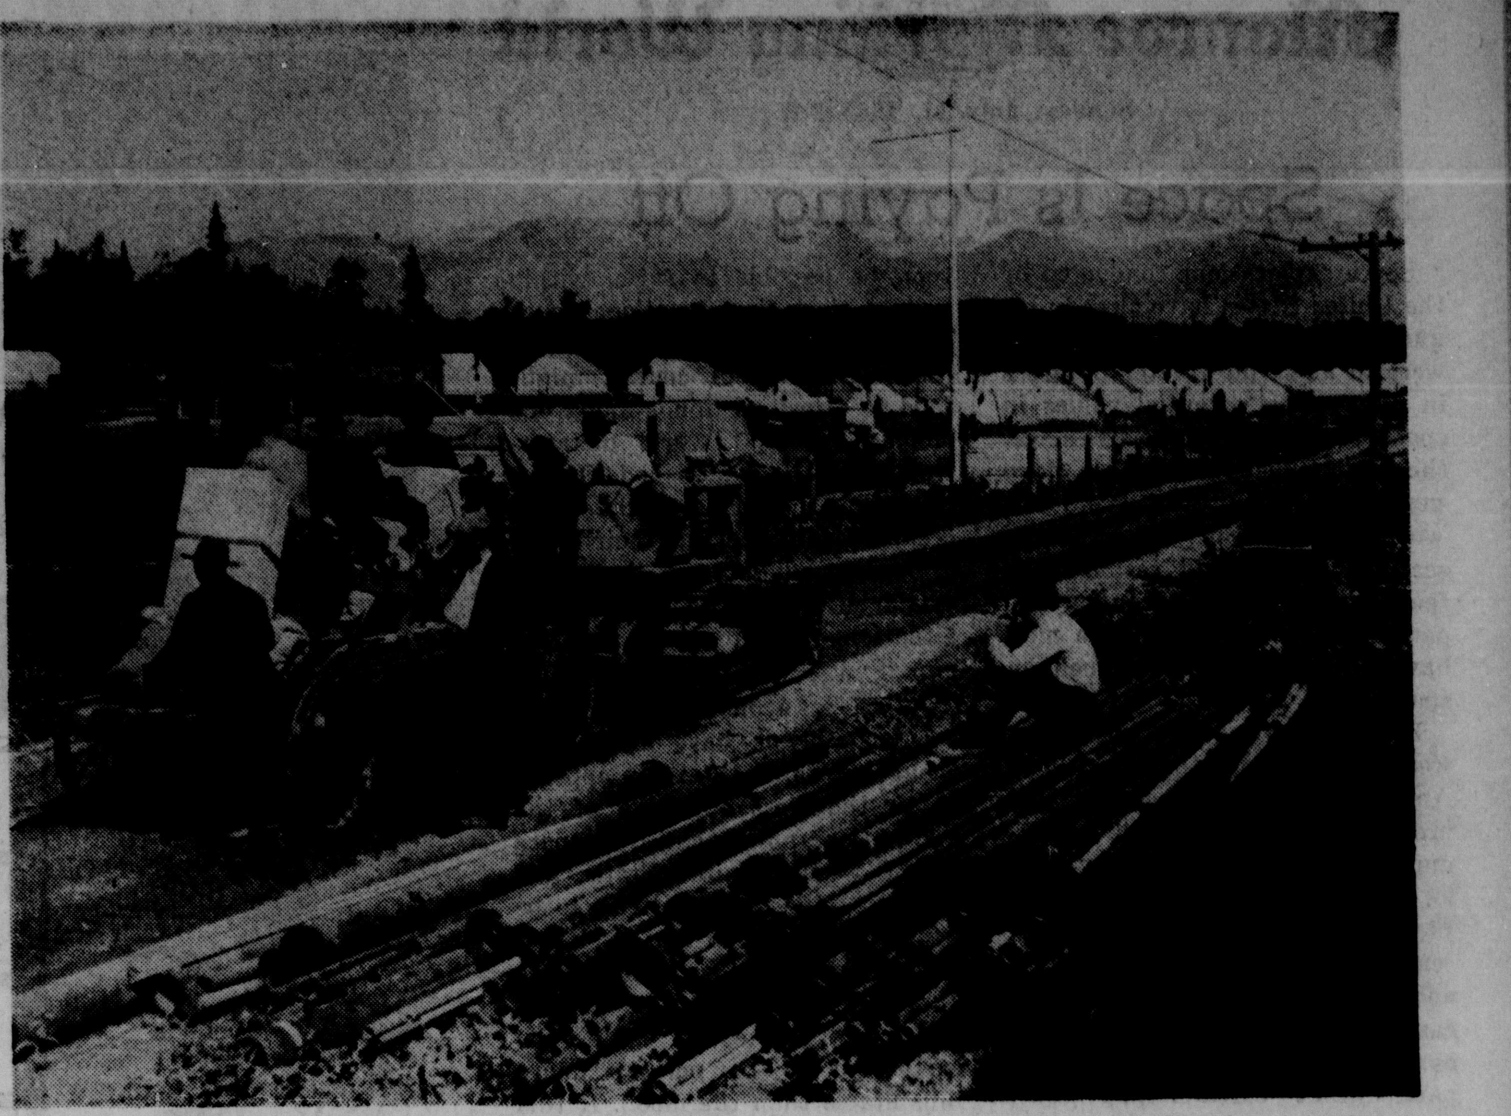
Today the children and grandchildren of the original colonists are carrying on the farming and industrial life of the Matanuska Valley.

The average valley farm is worth $60,000 with dairy products and potatoes the principal commercial items. With a recently completed $1.5 million creamery in Anchorage, Matanuska Maid — formerly Matanuska Valley Farmers Corporation Association — products boast gross sales of $4.75 million.

Although the Matanuska Valley colonization project changed from its original depression day concept, there is no question about its success in the eyes of Alaskans.

THIRTY YEARS after he arrived in Alaska as a pioneer in a New Deal subsistence farming project, Anthony Vickaryous owns about 1,000 acres at Wasilla in Matanuska Valley, where the pioneers settled. He is looking over some of his 120 head of cattle with his grandson, Roland Patrick, 13, on his thriving dairy ranch. The average Valley farm today is worth $60,000.

TWO OF THE 1935 pioneers from the Midwest, Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Herman, now live on the outskirts of Palmer, Alaska, the town settled by pioneers in the Matanuska valley. They sold their orginal 40 - acre homestead. The Hermans here watch two of their many grandchildren, Mark Herman, 8, and Ben Herman, 5, do some planting. Seven of the Hermans' eight children live in the Valley.



REFUGEES FROM the Great Depression, pioneering farmers from the Midwest travel by caterpillar tractor and trailer down the main street of Palmer, Alaska, in August, 1935. The first years were hard for the community of 1,500 set up as a New Deal pilot project with families moved off submarginal land in Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan. But after several years of subsistence farming they developed markets and began to thrive. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

Surgery Buoys Morale

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL

LANSING, Kan. (AP) —"I always cursed this face of mine," said the big man. "It bugged me every time I shaved. It bugged me when I tried to talk to a girl. It bugged me so much it seems I couldn't stop thinking about it."

The man, 31, has been in the Kansas State Penitentiary for four years. He was sentenced to 11 to 35 years for grand larceny and burglary with explosives.

Once in heavy construction work, he now talks of becoming a salesman when he is released. He no longer is appalled when he looks into the mirror.

Dr. John Simons, 32, a plastic surgeon, carved a new face for the man by removing pockmarks and refitting his loosely hanging skin.

Many Assignments

Dr. Simons, senior resident in plastic surgery at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, has been reshaping inmates faces at the rate of two or three a week. He has the enthusiastic support of state prison officials and — particularly — the prisoners.

One inmate, 54, lost his thumb and part of the index finger while working on a prison refrigeration compressor. Dr. Simons made him a new thumb.

"It's the most dramatic operation I've done so far," says Dr. Simons. "I detached the index finger and moved it over. With the loss of the thumb, half of the use of the hand is gone. Taking an index finger away does no damage."

The prisoner, serving 1 to 7 years for forgery, proudly showed it off, still swollen and not fully healed, but already usable.

"This is far beyond any hope I had," he said, carefully touching thumb to the three remaining fingertips. "I'm a commercial refrigeration man and that will be my life when I get back on the street. I won't be a cripple begging for work. I'll be able to work at my trade with the best of them."

Barrier Removal

The object of the surgical program, of course, is to remove one more barrier to rehabilitation.

"Conceivably a facial disfigurement — a misshapen nose, large flapping ears — could be the emotional upset that pushes them over the line," says Dr. Simons. "We don't know, of course, if pinning the ears back will keep a man out of trouble. But we hope that psychologically this will help. These are legitimate operations, even if they are mostly cosmetic."

Dr. Joseph Satten, director of the Division of Law and Psychiatry for the Menninger Foundation in Topeka, puts it this way:

"There are certain kinds of cosmetic repair that are very important. Where a person has a facial abnormality or a disfiguring scar that someone meeting him would shrink from, it will put an additional barrier on him in seeking a job or meeting someone. In that kind of case, cosmetic surgery can help.

"There is some evidence that the obstacle to a man rehabilitating himself is self-confidence, and that sometimes is damaged or hurt by physical blemishes."

Neither Dr. Simons nor Dr. Satten suggests that disfigurement alone will head a man into crime.

May Contribute

The editor of the prison newspaper says:

"It could be an indirect cause for some of them to go wrong. They're afraid to meet people, they feel conspicuous and self-conscious about their physical defect. Many men's problem here is that they feel no one outside cares. What Dr. Simons is doing shows these guys that someone does care."

Another prisoner, who assists Dr. Simons in the operations, says:

"I know one fellow they used to call Bugle Nose. I saw him in the washroom recently in front of the mirror. He was stroking his new nose, turning his head from side to side. Now, any time anybody calls him Bugle Nose, he just grins so big."

Dr. Simons became interested in establishing the program after hearing that it has been done in several other states.

Immediate Success

"At first we were apprehensive about the reaction from the prisoners," he says. "But it was an immediate success. Now we have 140 signed up and the number shoots up every day.

"It gives them a good feeling to be prettied up and they are getting something for nothing.

"The prison remugs them after the operation. If we take a scar off or remove a mole on the forehead, their pictures are taken again and recirculated. Nobody yet has asked me to change their fingerprints—as you see in some old movies."

"I've been going through some of the records," says Sherman H. Crouse, the warden. "There is a man born with a bad ear, worse than any cauliflower ear. He had fights all through his childhood. Now, when the ear is fixed, he won't look at himself as a freak. These things are bound to have a total effect on a man, bound to have an affect socially.

"When a man comes in here, he lacks something and we have to try to determine what it is. It may be education, a vocation or religion. Or it may be the inability to put on a good appearance in public because of some facial deformity that has caused him to withdraw.

"In penal work, every time a man comes through the door you have a new problem. It may be that his looks are that problem. If our hope is in changing the outlook of the inmate — and it is— we may have part of the answer."

AS AN AID to rehabilitation, Dr. John Simons performs plastic surgery on a prisoner in the hospital of Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing. Dr. Simons, senior resident in plastic surgery at the University of Kansas Medical Center in Kansas City, performs two or three operations during weekly trips to the prison. Authorities feel that cosmetic repairs give prisoners new confidence.

Space Is Paying Off

Space explorations conducted by the United States have already begun to pay off. If this country were to make no greater progress in discovering potential values in space than it has already made, the huge expenditures that have gone into this project eventually would prove profitable. This, it seems to us, should assuage the feelings of guilt or fear on the part of those who think we may have been spending too much on space.

Even before the astronauts were space-borne, the short-lived American space program had proved the value of satellite communications. Surveillance by radio, still photographs and moving pictures have been of great significance in military reconnaissance and weather reporting and forecasting. Within a few years of the earliest satellites, it became apparent that earth-circling communications would be cheaper and more widespread through the use of relay stations in space. Worldwide communication by telephone and telegraph has become easily possible.

Recent naming of six young men of science and technology as astronauts is evidence of the expected realization of scientific vistas that lie before us in space.

David Sarnoff, high official in the field of distance communication, says the pioneering in space communications is only a sample of the revolution yet to take place.

At present, ground receiving stations limit the coverage of space communications. But Sarnoff foresees the day when pictures and voices relayed through space satellites can be received directly into the home.

From one point of view, this would mean that the propaganda of one nation could be transmitted to ordinary citizens of another country. As our acquisition of other planets through space development progresses, the earth, in our view, will shrink sharply in size. When we can talk around the world almost as easily as we can phone a neighbor in our home town and when the speed of aircraft makes the world practically a little ball, people of all nations of the world will become more alike. Just as progress along many lines in the United States has made the people in every part of the country talk more alike and act more alike, so will the "shrinking" of the world make all peoples on this earth more alike.

We do not know whether we will find intelligent beings on the other planets, but if we do they will almost certainly differ from earth people just as the people of different nations once differed more than they do now. And the difference between earth people and those of other planets may be far more startling and perhaps more disconcerting. If we find no intelligent beings on other planets, then we shall, indeed, begin to wonder if our solar system, and possibly the universe itself, was created for us.

From another point of view, communication into the homes could open the doors of literacy and education to millions of people now isolated. It thus might soon be possible to raise, within a short time, the educational level, of all so-called under-privileged countries. This, of course, might tend to direct all minds along one channel, so that world dictatorship might be established. On the other hand, nations might be so occupied with seeking their share of space advantages that they would be content to let the earth situation remain about as it is now.

Space is a no-man's-land. Already problems have arisen. Although reaching the moon appears to be the first objective of the two nations now engaged in space travel — the United States and Russia — the moon is likely to be a minor acquisition and explorers will plunge on to such planets as Jupiter and Mars. Jupiter is said to be eight times as big as the earth and to be perhaps more inhabitable than the moon. If this should be found true, it could easily prove to be a roomy mecca for the overflow from the earth's "population explosion."

It is evident that most of the basic testing of man's ability to function in space is past the big hurdles.

With this having been accomplished, it may be necessary, before long, to establish international rules of procedure, just as we have international law for the high seas, except that such rules will be vastly more difficult to draw up and to enforce.

As soon as the barriers to moon travel have been lowered, a rush to stake claims is certain to occur. This will also be true when other planets are reached. Because of the great number of planets available, the exploring nations, such as the United States and Russia, may be likely to plunge onward, while the less progressive countries will take what they can get from what has already been explored.

Important discoveries will lie in the realm of science. Man will want to know more about the history of his planet, and eventually of the others, so he can utilize, or exploit its resources to a greater degree. As men move out to the other planets in our solar systems, there will be increasing interest in the sources of life and the harnessing of energies now beyond our reach. We may learn to accomplish vastly greater speed in space travel at possibly far less cost.

In this project, our government is wise to include scientists, who are learned, stalwart and adventuresome, among the astronauts who move out to conquer new worlds.

What they learn and record will be the basis of textbooks for many years. Thousands of young scholars who may never leave the earth's atmosphere will devote their lives to converting space knowledge into a useful technology for mankind.

Huge as is the cost of space exploration, it is difficult to see how any man of vision could be opposed to a project with possibilities so vast they lie beyond our imagination.

Regulation Ignored

Not long ago, Negro Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of the Harlem district of New York, wanting to put the squeeze on President Johnson, threatened to block the attempt now being made in Congress to repeal Section 14(b) of the Taft Hartley labor law. He promptly found himself in another tighter squeeze, applied by Johnson, and quickly withdrew his threatened opposition to the measure.

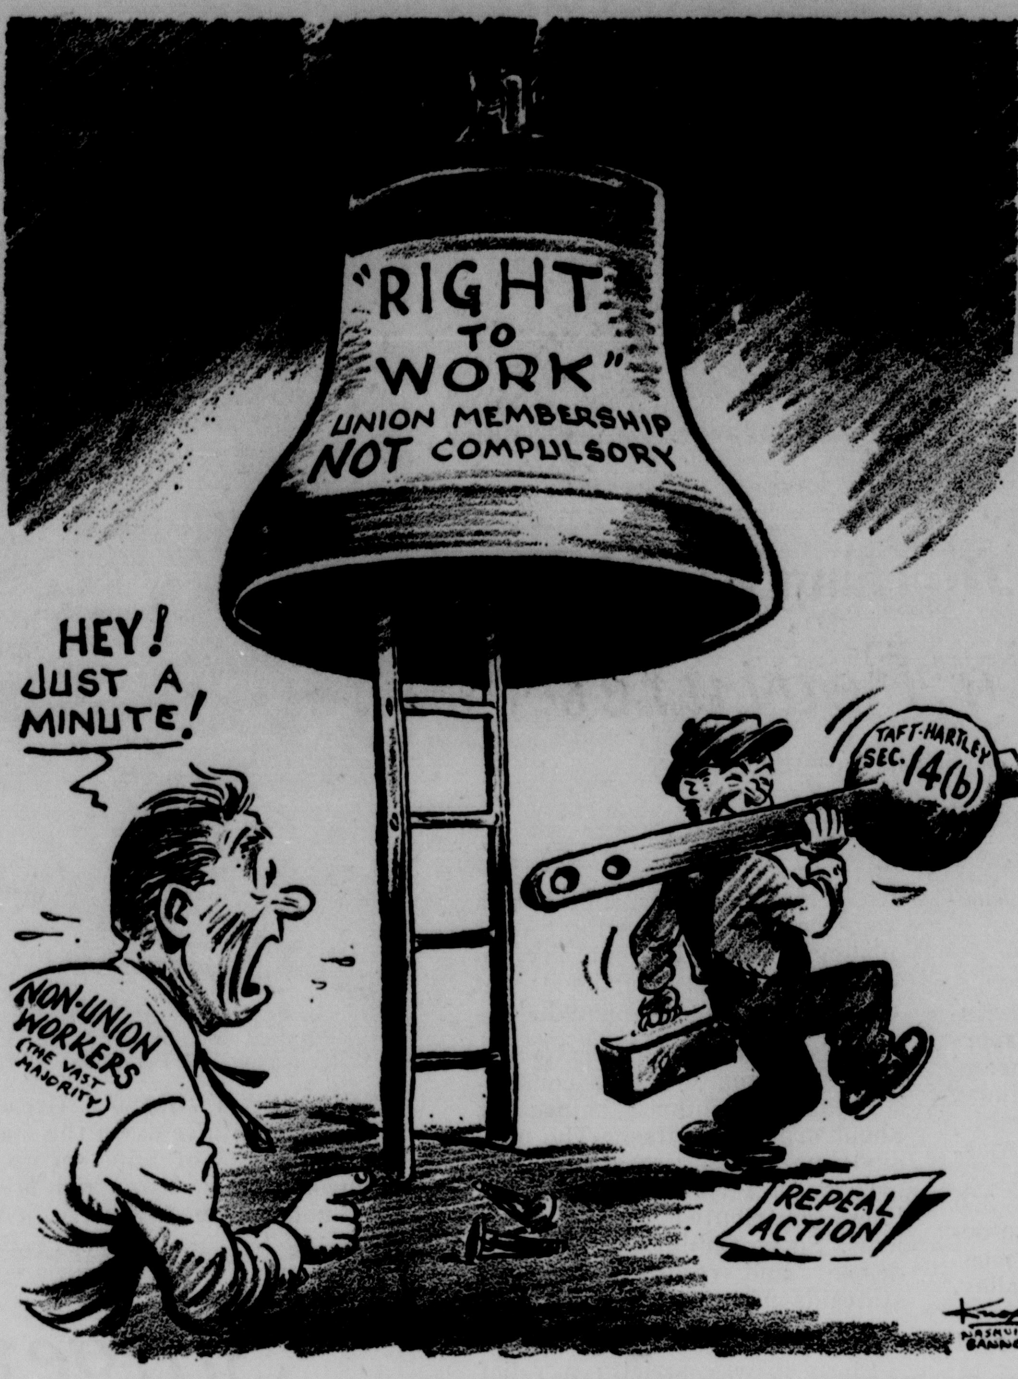
Most Southerners and most conservatives would like to see the proposed repeal of Section 14(b) defeated but their hopes were not raised by Powell's antics. They knew he had his own particular axe to grind.

After Powell made the threat, he was informed that if he opposed Johnson in this matter the $18,907 annual salary paid to his wife, in violation of House regulations, was likely to be cut off.

When this situation arose, Powell called the House clerk and wanted to know if his wife's salary was to be investigated. On being told by the House clerk that that official had no intention of looking into Powell's wife's salary, Powell announced he would not fight Johnson on the repeal measure.

It boils down to this: Powell's wife, who is a Puerto Rican and who owns a home in Puerto Rico and lives there, is being paid the huge salary in violation of a House regulation but as long as Powell will "be good" for Johnson the House won't look into it. That is one of the unpalatable parts of power politics.

That's The Clapper In This Liberty Bell



HENRY J. TAYLOR

McNamara Is Often Wrong

Right To Question Him Undeniable

A WORRIED AMERICA has a right to question Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara's dominant involvement in the Viet Nam war.

This is not easy to do. First, President Johnson seems to regard him as the most valuable man in the Cabinet. Next, Mr. McNamara lives inside an iron cocoon to the extent that it has become a police problem for the Defense Department to keep independent- minded newsmen disciplined and dumb.

Surely Mr. McNarama's reputation as the President's indispensable man can hardly rest on his military stance. Mr. McNamara, starting with the Bay of Pigs debacle, has been dead wrong in every major prediction he has made from the very beginning.

He shares this nearly incredible record with Gen. Maxwell Taylor, on whom we're likewise depending so heavily for results in Viet Nam.

PREPAREDNESS achievements? In McNamara's Congressional testimony (reportedly postponed) regarding the Khrushchev "confrontation" he all but said our great armed forces couldn't have invaded Cuba! He stated we were caught "terribly short" of fighter and transport planes, patrol vessels and escort war vessels "which we'd have needed to invade Cuba." Super - administrator?

Moreover, Mr. McNamara may be a hero to President Johnson as such but he is certainly no hero to the General Accounting Office.

The McNamara management magic — with his Whiz Kids and computers — has now been officially inspected by the GAO, which is charged with reporting to Congress on how government agencies spend the taxpayers' money. The report is a scorcher.

Its alarmed complaints include lack of results from a 1961 series of GAO reports which revealed combat unreadiness in numerous fighting units because much equipment "had not been properly maintained."

"We now find substantially no improvement," it warns.

As for wastefulness, among glaring examples the GAO found "at one air base, golf and riding facilities were constructed . . . at a cost of $286,000 by using a portion of the fund Congress had authorized for an airfield runway."

THE ONLY "explanation" the GAO could get from Mr. McNamara's office was that the Air Force handling of the money "resulted from its misinterpretation of the directive."

Meanwhile, the House Armed Services subcommittee is rebuffed by Mr. McNamara and his Whiz Kids in similar unanswered findings.

Committeeman Alton Lennon (D., N. C.) discovered that the Aerospace agency, established by the Air Force, spent $30,000 to send one man to Princeton for one year. He received $16,000 to study quantum statistical mechanics plus a $14,000-a-year salary.

The subcommittee called it outrageous that Aerospace could refuse Congress the details, but Aerospace did refuse — 40 times! Aerospace claimed that it is independent in policies and expenditures. Yet this is entirely the taxpayers' money.

Throughout every single year for 10 years before Hitler attacked, France increased her defense budget. Yet when the chips were down an adequate French army, navy or air force was not available. Is Mr. McNamara's overworked computer just spinning its reels?

ON JUNE 22 last year U. S. General Paul D. Harkins returned to Washington from command in South Viet Nam. "I think the military situation is coming along fine now," he stated. Fine! This was McNamara's line, and had been for three solid years.

We had 16,000 Americans in South Viet Nam on that date. We have about 75,000 now.

Gen. Harkins peddled this pap under Mr. McNamara's censoring eye. It was apostasy by a distinguished four - star officer, tragic to observe. This is what happened in the armed forces in prewar France, God help us. For is it safe to disagree?

Our military leaders do not forget, nor does Mr. McNamara expect them to forget, his head - chop of able Adm. George W. Anderson, Chief of Naval operations, nearly six years before his retirement age, when the Senate required Admiral Anderson to testify in the 1963 Boeing - General Dynamics plane dispute and he disagreed with Mr. McNamara.

A former Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army recently told me he has never seen high-officer morale so low as today under any Secretary in the Pentagon.

When the Defense Secretary answers questions you can see snapping in his eyes much opinion. You wish you could detect judgment as clearly. This writer, for one, is fully prepared to think the unthinkable. Mr. McNamara, it seems to me, should resign.

Telling Doctor Truth Important

DO YOU TELL your doctor the truth, the whole truth? If you do, your chances of getting better are much greater than if you withhold essential information. It is surprising how many patients have fibbed and later admitted it. Sometimes the reasons are evident: fear, undue modesty, shame, etc. But often the cause is some deep, psychological one. Patients themselves don't know why they withhold information that may be lifesaving.

By now I think we all know how important history-taking is. In fact, one of my professors of medicine said many years ago — and it may be just as true today — that if he had to choose between actually examining a patient and questioning him, he'd choose the latter method of diagnostic approach. It often works out that way.

I recall one girl who complained of exhaustion. Every type of test and examination came up with Zero. We couldn't find the reason. Not until many months later did she volunteer the information that she had got into the bad habit of reading very late.

"IT'S ALMOST like taking dope," she said. "I've been getting only about three hours sleep a night. The reason I didn't admit it earlier, was because I knew you'd say stop reading so late and get some sleep."

You ask another patient if he drinks. He'll say he takes an occasional snort. Not much? Not much. How much? Oh, just a highball or cocktail before dinner. Months later when he shows evidence of some liver trouble, you ask him again. He said, "I suppose I'd be a fool if I didn't come straight out with it. I've been a heavy drinker for at least 30 years. I've been putting away almost a fifth of rye and a half dozen bottles of beer every day. It's evident why I didn't tell you the truth months ago. You'd have told me to quit."

Here is a woman who is exceedingly nervous. She seems to have everything. A lovely husband, two cars in the garage, two homes, good clothes, fine children and many friends. Examination shows nothing of note except her evident anxiety and nervousness. The cause? A husband who gets drunk periodically and beats her up. I agree such admissions aren't easy, even to the family doctor.

NEVERTHELESS, the doctor had better get the whole truth. Prevarication does nothing more than throw red herrings across the diagnostic trail. It lessens your chance of finding health and keeping it.

I keep reminding patients not to hold back information, however distasteful it may be to bring it out into the open. Your physician has heard, and continues to hear, every possible kind of problem that besets his fellow humans. His job is not to be a moralist and pass upon your way of life; all he is interested in is helping you emotionally and physically.

The truth, the whole truth, nothing but the truth, applies in your doctor's office as well as in a court of law. Often, more so, because it may be that your very life is in danger.

Views Of Our Readers

Miss Louisiana

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to thank you and the Monroe Morning World and News-Star for the extensive coverage given the Miss Louisiana Pageant of 1965 held here in Monroe last weekend. The Monroe Jaycees are very grateful to the newspaper for all it did to project this important event in our area.

The Monroe Jaycees realize that this is a community effort and appreciate the contributions made by all the civic clubs, businessmen and individuals who contributed to the success of the pageant.

Methodism

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Since your editorial of Saturday, June 26, seems to be addressed particularly to Methodists, I, as an individual Methodist, want to protest some of the implications contained in it.

The end - result of taking seriously your editorial would be to create a spirit of disunity among Christians. I ask the question: "Why do you wish to create such a spirit?" One can understand that enemies of the Christian faith, or even enemies of this nation should wish to do so.

It is not necessary for Methodists to agree upon every issue in order to love each other. There is room in The Methodist Church for varieties of opinion. In assuming the contrary, your editorial shows an unfamiliarity with many Methodist concepts, such as set forth in the following quotations from John Wesley: "If thy heart is as my heart, give me thy hand." "Think and let think." "Opinion is not religion, not even right opinion."

Methodism has a representative form of democracy in its government, similar to that of the U. S. government. That democratic process is now at work in the annual conferences, thru its elected delegates, both lay and clerical.

In a lifetime of being an active Methodist, I have never known of a congregation being forced into action of which it does not approve, let alone being asked to subscribe to something in which it does not believe.

Moral Climate

Livermore, Calif.

To the Editor:

When shocked citizens of the Bay Area of California read in their newspapers recently that 9-year-old girls in Marin County, across the Golden Gate bridge from San Francisco, were smoking marijuana, we thought that things could surely get no worse. Now, however, we are even more horrified to learn that a gang of 7-11 year old boys in Berkeley — 70 of them—have vandalized a school building to the tune of $5,000. Ink was spattered on the walls and obscenities written on blackboards.

That this unlikely mob was led by a 7-year old would be incomprehensible if we did not know what type TV shows the children are seeing.

Unhappily, we suspect that the moral climate in the Bay Area could just possibly get worse, but we hardly see how unless babies start crawling out of their cradles to attack Santa Claus.

Now, what was that we were saying about Bogalusa?

Litter Cans

West Monroe, Louisiana

To the Editor:

A great deal has been heard lately about keeping our cities and highways clean and pleasant, and both the State and local authorities have appealed to the citizens to keep the area clean.

One of the wisest moves was to place litter cans along our highways, streets, and in our parks. However, there has been one area seriously overlooked. There are no litter cans available on the beaches along the Ouachita River. When going on a picnic at Long John, or some of the other beaches, you have no alternative but to leave a filthy mess behind — there is no place to dispose of the trash. This would be a most appreciated project for one of our Civic Clubs in the area, or possibly it could be financed by the Parish.

Won't you please see what you can do in this matter.

Republicans Hurt By Schizophrenia

SCHIZOPHRENIA in the Republican Party sticks out like a sore ego these days. One side of this split personality, we are told, is the party's worst villain — the conservative.

The party needs a new image, it is said, and only the conservatives stand in the way. Republicans need "positive" alternatives to Democrat programs (even bigger handouts), and only the conservatives stubbornly keep resisting the government spending spree from which so much political power flows.

Every conservative voice is heard as the rumbling of a landslide which could carry the party to perdition. The simple fact that, of the two major parties, the Republican is and should be the conservative one gets lost in the moaning and gnashing of teeth. If it does not, politics will lose all meaning and become nothing but organizational power struggles.

People who want to be Republican are criticized for being old - fashioned while those who even want to drop the label are praised for progressivism. In party terms, however, such progressivism is simply merger with the other party.

WITH THE RECENT formation of the Free Society Association, for instance, various would-be Republican spokesman groaned that it was a splinter group and would weaken the party, even that it was a third party. The Free Society Association is nothing of the sort. It is non - partisan. It welcomes the membership of all responsible Americans who believe in a free society. And it intends to engage in political research, not political action.

How can research into the principles of a free society, and application of those principles to problems of the day, hurt the Republican Party? How can such research splinter the party?

To splinter the party, some actions would have to be hacked out which not only represent a minority view in the party, but which also are deliberately calculated to produce dissension. Which brings us to the other side of the party's schizophrenic image: the left side.

Shortly after the formation of the Free Society Association was announced, an actual Republican splinter group, calling itself Republicans for Progress, issued its first public newsletter. It is roughly dedicated to the proposition that the best way to be a Republican is to be a frugal or efficient Democrat, to follow the same philosophy, advocate the same bureaucratic solutions to everything, but promise to do it better or for a few cents less.

THE REPUBLICANS for Progress newsletter blatantly tried to create a public feud between two of the party's outstanding leaders in the House, Reps. Gerald Ford and Melvin Laird.

The tone of Republicans for Progress is clear: strident enmity toward the vast majority of Republicans who remain committed to the party's platform and principles. Here is an authentic splinter group, dedicated to shattering the party's majority unity on behalf of a political philosophy which never has been more than a minor coloration in the spectrum of Republican outlook.

In terms of money alone, this new group is clearly diversionary as it draws its funds from within the Republican Party. The Free Society Association seeks support from a wide range well beyond usual party sources.

If it is splinters that Republicans fear, they should run a wary finger over the surface of the so-called Republicans for Progress.

Sunday Poem

If you would have some worthwhile plans,
You've got to watch your can'ts and can's.
You can't aim low and then rise high;
You can't succeed if you don't try;
You can't go wrong and come out right;
You can't love sin and walk in light;
You can't throw time and means away
And live sublime from day to day.
You can be great if you'll be good
And do God's will as all men should.
You can ascend life's upward road
Although you bear a heavy load;
You can be honest, truthful, clean,
by turning from the low and mean;
You can uplift the souls of men
By words and deed, or by your pen.
So watch your can'ts and watch your can's
And watch your walks and watch your stands,
And watch the way you talk and act
And do not take the false for fact;
And watch indeed the way you take,
And watch the things that mar or make;
For life is great to every man
Who lives to do the best he can.

Man Of The Year

Many clubs and organizations pick their "Men of the year" annually — and certainly all are deserving of the great honor. But the other day we ran across an editorial in the Chicago Tribune entitled: "Man of the Year." For us it sorta hit the spot and because it expressed so well what we would like to say to a large number of people, we're reprinting it here and dedicating it to all those many of our readers whom we think it describes well.

Here it is:

"Today . . . we present the real Man of the Year

"He was not picked by the Junior Association of Commerce, or the Senior Association of Commerce, or by the politicians, or by any association of newspapermen. You won't find his picture in the paper. You may not recognize him as you pass him on the street. But we hope you do.

"Our Man of the Year is in the middle income brackets. He gets up every morning at 6:30 so that he can get to his job in an office or factory at 8 or 8:30. He works hard, not only because he wants advancement, but because he thinks his employer deserves a fair deal. He is honest and dependable.

"Our Man of the Year manages to get along with one wife. They have three or four children whom they love so much they teach them to be respectful, lawabiding and self-reliant. They have done their best to earn and save money enough to send their children to college, but the rising cost of higher education makes his goal more difficult each year.

"The rising cost of everything also makes it harder to put aside money for retirement. Recent federal income tax reductions have helped the people in high income brackets and low income brackets, but the man in the middle has got little benefit. There are no loopholes in the income tax for him, and he can't put any money into tax-exempt securities.

"Social security taxes, which started at $30 a year, are now up to $174. Soon the medicare program will make them much higher. Local property taxes have doubled, and so have the various state taxes. Worst of all, the purchasing power of the dollar is only 42 per cent of what it was when our Man of the Year bought his first insurance policy in 1937. The little money which he has set aside for a rainy day is worth about half of what it was when he earned it.

"Our Man of the Year belongs to a church and works at his religion. He is no saint, but he understands the Biblical meaning of neighbor and tries to be decent to men of all races and creeds. You won't find him, however, in "civil disobedience" demonstrations. He believes laws ought to be enforced.

"Our Man of the Year is not ashamed to be considered a patriot. He flies the flag on national holidays. He can't understand Americans who join organizations dedicated to the destruction of America. He can't understand legislators and judges who strive to undermine law and order, or to feather their own nests.

"Our Man of the Year believes in our system of government. He votes at every election, but he votes only once.

"For all his merits, we salute him."

IT TAKES relatively little to rid yourself of a terrible bore. Lend him a few dollars — usually not more than ten — and you'll never see him again.

Favorite Complaints

Today we shall indulge in one of our favorite complaints; that's about the advantages that women hold over men. The one we resent most is that they outlive us. Statistics show that the life expectancy of women is two years greater —at least it was the last time we checked. And probably the margin has increased by now — particularly noticing the rate men seem to be dying.

Now we have before us an advertisement for a book on finances called "Teach Your Wife to Be A Widow." It was written by Donald I. Rogers. We do not hold it against him that he has a best-seller on his hands. We recognize that he has nothing to do with the likelihood that wives wlll become widows, rather than the other way around. Nevertheless we resent the likelihood. Why doesn't anybody promote the well-being of widowers? Has the Great Society no interest in narrowing the gap of life expectancy? Are providers to live forever with the knowledge that they are expected to keep up the payments from beyond the grave?

Now Everything

Now we've heard everything. The editors of Who's Who in America have come to a momentous decision. Biographies of the Beatles will be included in their next edition. The Beatles, being British, will be brought in under the editors' guidelines which qualify those "so identified with American affairs as to be subject to wide inquiry or discussion."

We'd say the mop-haired quartet meet that definition, all right. But their association with Americans who have made their mark in the professions, education, arts, sciences and public affairs, continues to bother us. The Beatles, regardless of the opinion of two at our house, don't seem to belong in "Who's Who" but in "What's That?"

AIN'T IT SO — Formula for failure: Try to please everyone.

Life's Interesting Side

MANY OF US assume that if people had more brains there would be fewer accidents; that the more intelligent a man is, the better able he is to cope with the problems of driving an automobile. Not so. Wide-scale studies at Iowa State University's Driving Research Laboratory show that people with the most brain power are not the most capable when it comes to handling horsepower . . .

DID YOU KNOW salesmen could always tell who was boss on a farm by the buildings. A big, hip-roofed barn maybe 70 or 80 feet long and 40 to 50 feet wide with its sheds indicated that the man ran things. But a massive, two-story house with two or three chimneys towering over a little cow shed with a squat, gable roof showed that he was pretty well hobbled by the apron strings in the family . . .

Twin Cities Week In Review

New Front Near In Poverty War

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

A social satirist once called poverty an anomaly to rich people. "It is very difficult to make out why people who want dinner do not ring the bell," he said.

The so - called "President's War on Poverty," embodied in the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, may be only one more costly attempt to find out why people don't ring the bell, the most lasting effect of which will be a stronger federal hand in local affairs.

TYLER

It might also be a genuinely humanitarian attempt to allay humman vulnerability to the raft of woes that come of economic incapacity.

Whichever it is, the signs were strong last week that the President's war soon will open a local front. The Monroe City Council, unanimously, and the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, by 14-4, endorsed the formation of a non-profit corporation to participate in the program.

Officials said $125,000 would be available this year to study the poverty picture, with perhaps $250,000 possible for next year.

There apparently were good men recommending both involvement and non - involvement. Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard said the city's resolution merely endorsed a study committee. Also favoring the study were Sheriff Bailey Grant, Highway Commissioner James W. Moore and West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris.

With characteristic frankness, Dist. Atty. Albin P. Lassiter cautioned the jury against mixing in. "Once this corporation is formed, the program will be run by it and the federal government," he said.

Home in Monroe, Fifth Dist. Rep. Otto E. Passman, with no reference to the endorsements that preceded his remarks, said he was disappointed "to see more public officials in the South embracing Johnson's give-away programs." He called the object of those programs "nothing more than a redistribution of the people's wealth, so as to get more people and public officials beholden to the government."

In any case, Monroe's Brewer Godfrey, acting chairman of a steering committee to form the corporation, said the group will meet soon to elect officers and directors and select someone to run the local anti-poverty program.

Pageant—Part II

Readers who followed these lines a week ago will recall with what wailing we lamented the fact that we knew not the identity of Miss Louisiana, 1965.

At last, some eight days after the fact, we can report the winner, and an extremely popular and thoughtful one she was — Miss Shreveport, Lynda Ferguson of Silsbee, Tex. Tall, with jet-black hair and the proverbial hour-glass figure, Lynda won out late Saturday over 38 of the state's loveliest young women, climaxing the Monroe Jaycees' annual three-day pageant.

She went home, she said, on clouds, but will be back in Monroe this week for several days as guest of the Jaycees.

Pretty as she was, her graciousness was what struck us. Only four days after the contest's close, a personal letter arrived for this poor ogler, from Miss Ferguson, expressing thanks for her treatment in news stories on the pageant.

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce continued to make news on Monday with its traditional fireworks display at Neville High School stadium, commemorating the Fourth of July. It was a spectacular and beautiful show, even as seen from the fourth green and fifth fairway at Municipal Golf Course, where several hundred aspiring patriots were pushed by an overflow stadium crowd. And, at the risk of sounding both reactionary and bluenose (two of the most feared labels of our times), the opinions we shared on the event complimented the Jaycees for their "nationalistic fervor" in continuing to take pride in the Fourth, yet for disdaining to do so on the Sabbath. The holiday coming on a Sunday, the fireworks were held for Monday. (The beauty pageant too, in fact, had been set back one day to avoid a Sunday show.)

Other News

A multiplicity of other developments which occurred or came to light during the week just past are worth mentioning:

The City of Monroe, for example, set an all-time record in the construction value of building permits issued during a single week — $4,426,670. The activity included permits in connection with the city's planned new three - building civic center, which accounted in large part for the unusually large volume of business.

The Monroe City School Board, meeting Tuesday, opened the application period on the principalship of its planned new high school, Wossman, on the Monroe southside. Applications will be received until July 20, with selection of a principal thought likely in August.

The police jury, the same day renewed, without change, total parish taxation for another year at a figure of 10.80 mills. They also voted themselves a possible pay raise, in increasing the number of meetings each year for which they can receive per diem pay from 52 to 76.

In another jury - related matter, the state attorney general, in a written opinion received last week, held that continued participation by the jury in an area weather modification program would be illegal, labeling the practice "use of public funds for private purposes."

Mrs. Allie V. Leeper, 40, of 300 S. 2nd, West Monroe, was a July 4th holiday period accident victim. She drowned in Cheniere Lake, attempting to rescue two of her children who stepped into deep water while wading. Her husband managed to save the youngsters.

Mr. Clark C. Boardman, 77, of Monroe, a former corporation executive and well - known community activist, died, the victim of an apparent heart attack.

The West Monroe Chamber of Commerce installed new officers, the principal ones being Jimmie Wilson, president, Ray Calloway and Dewright Carr, vice presidents, Ronnie Bayles, secretary, and Dewain Allen, treasurer.

The same city's Chamber of Commerce, led by its civic improvement committee, decided to ask for state assistance in a feasibility study on creation of an artificial lake in the Tupawek area near West Monroe. Estimated cost of the lake is $175,000, of which federal funds might supply half.

Ouachita Valley Council Boy Scouts, including those from Ouachita and 14 surrounding parishes, concluded Saturday the fourth of five one-week summer encampments at Camp Kiroli near West Monroe. A new group of council scouts arrive today to begin the final week.

Two conventions were in town during the week. The 49th annual meeting of the Louisiana Rural Letter Carriers Association got underway with early registration Thursday, with about 125 delegates on hand before the sessions closed Saturday. Saturday and today were the dates assigned for the convention in Monroe of state officers of Knights of Columbus. The program, for around 100 delegates and their wives, should end at 1 p.m. today, after morning Mass, a breakfast and several business sessions.

A nine-member Ouachita Parish School Board delegation made official acceptance Wednesday of the organization's newly refurbished office building, a former high school gymnasium, on Bry Street. About a block from the board's outgrown headquarters on St. John, the facility, redesigned and refitted at a cost of approximately $117,000, was deemed, in effect, a knockout by most of those present. Operations will shift to the new housing late this month.

The Louisiana Agriculture Department and Commissioner Dave Pearce held a big barbecue at Forsythe Park Wednesday for civic officials, legislators and others. The event, marked by the "conspicuous consumption" of such tasty Louisiana products as beef, pork, lamb and chicken, formed the backdrop for the spread of good tidings. The commissioner announced that sale of state edible products had risen in the foregoing fiscal year by $51 million.

Weekly winners in the Morning World's snapshot competition were in order, L. A. Henderson, 700 Hilton St., Monroe, Earl R. Bain, 313 Medorah Dr., West Monroe, Jimmy King, 2109 Valencia, Monroe, and Syl Breard, 400 Eason Place, Monroe.

Out of Ordinary

There were several items in the week's news that seemed appropriate for inclusion in what we think of as our "out of the ordinary" corner.

How many times, without being aware of it have we nominally exceeded the speed limit or committed some other technical infraction of the law, and, suddenly cognizant of our transgression, glanced guiltily about for some all-seeing policeman? Having had such an experience, imagine then the feeling of the pair caught in the act last week of robbing a liquor store. The apprehensions were made by state troopers, acting on a telephone tip.

The national Powder Puff Derby was well underway during the week, and Monroe's Selman Field last Sunday was a refueling point for some of the transcontinental lady fliers. They were greeted by Monroe Chamber of Commerce aviation committee officials. The annual distaff flying competition took 76 aviatrixes (is that the word?) from El Cajon, Calif., to Chattanooga, Tenn.

Meanwhile, "Mr. Popper's Penguins," a cooperative effort in children's theatre by Northeast Louisiana State College and the Monroe Little Theatre, began a three-afternoon run Friday. The last show, concerning a family with 13 penguins as pets, is slated for 2:30 p.m. today at Strauss Playhouse.

The World's Week In Focus

'Kiss Of Death' Irony

By JOHN CALE

THE IRONY OF friends and enemies entered the course of last week's happenings. There's a rather bitter statement that describes this irony: If this is what we have for friends, we don't need any enemies.

In one notable example, a substitute bill for voting rights legislation in Congress supposedly lost ground because it picked up southern support.

How could this happen? Well, the gist of the story is that any bill on voting rights that the southerners would support must have something wrong with it. This is a crude observation, but even when the details are filled in, the rough edges — and feelings — remain.

Representative William M. McCulloch, an Ohio Republican, co-sponsored the bill along with minority leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan. Representative William M. Tuck, a Virginia Democrat, said he hoped "every member opposed to the so-called voting rights bill would vote for the McCulloch substitute."

Representative William C. Cramer, Florida Republican, said the Ford-McCulloch bill was actually stronger than the administration's because it has been drafted to combat discrimination in all 50 states whereas the administration bill was geared to strike mainly at only seven southern states.

IT WAS ABOUT that time that Representative Charles S. Joelson spelled out the irony in reply to Cramer:

"In making that statement, you are ignoring the sentiment apparent here, and that is the members from states where there is massive discrimination are supporting the Ford-McCulloch bill."

One GOP strategist went so far as to claim the House Republican leaders lost at least half-a-dozen GOP votes after southern Democrats urged support of the substitute.

On the other hand, administration strategists announced they had assurance from 30 Republicans that they would support the administration bill. This was twice the GOP support expected before southern Democrats came out in favor as a group for the Ford-McCulloch bill.

WHETHER OR NOT the southern Congressmen really hold the power of the "kiss of death" for the substitute voting rights bill remains to be seen at this writing. Administration forces predicted early Friday they had the strength to overbalance any combination of sentiments for a substitute bill.

Irony In Battle

ON SEVERAL occasions, we have pointed to broad similarities between the positions of the Viet Cong rebels in South Viet Nam and the French, Indian and later colonial American troops in early fighting in this country.

The British refused to give up their prominent red-coated uniforms and their formal field tactics. So they were perfect targets for the hidden Indians, French and, finally, American colonial fighters.

Of course, today's U. S. troops in Viet Nam have had training in jungle fighting and counter-guerrilla warfare. But they, too, must face a highly skilled enemy in his home territory, not unlike the British general in the following account:

On this date (July 9) in 1755, General Edward Braddock's British regulars marched, as in dress parade, against the French-held Ft. Duquesne.

The British ran into a hail of musketry fire from an enemy they could not even see in the thick forest. The Redcoats retreated, leaving the area of what is now Pittsburgh to the French.

Braddock was killed; his only surviving aide was young George Washington.

Let Freedom Ring

THE INDEPENDENCE Day weekend was not without some of the same ironic overtones cited in the above accounts. The National Safety Council noted a record number of traffic deaths on the U. S. highways for a three - day holiday period.

This reflects a broad consequence of freedom. We of the United States own more automobiles and have placed our stamp of approval on more miles of highways than is the case in other countries. While the annual death toll is sufficiently high to damage the often - referred - to "American image," the government has not yet ordered blanket non-operation for vehicles during periods when accidents seem to occur at a high rate.

So we are free to move either way — toward carelessness or caution. The National Safety Council urges drivers to review fundamental good driving principles and to keep up with proper means of handling new situations on freeways and viaducts.

THERE WERE ALSO accounts of liberties taken too far by young persons at resort areas in six states.

In several trouble spots, troops were called out.

More than 600 persons were arrested on charges ranging from public drunkenness to disorderly conduct and assault.

Harrassed policemen filled jails and in several instances fire hoses and tear gas were used to put down the disturbances.

The chief trouble locations were Lake George, New York; Russels Point and Geneva - On - The - Lake, Ohio; Rockaway Beach, Missouri; Newport, Rhode Island, Hyannis, Massachusetts, and Arnolds Park, Iowa.

At Geneva - On - The - Lake police used billy clubs to herd thousands of youths out of the Lake Erie resort community. Many of the rowdies threw beer cans and shouted epithets at the officers.

The National Guard was alerted as about 10,000 youths milled about, throwing firecrackers and rocks at sheriff's deputies.

Thirty - two youths were arrested Sunday night and early Monday, bringing the total arrested during the weekend to 142.

Police in the tiny Adirondack mountains resort village of Lake George, New York, reported more than 300 arrests had been made during three nights of youthful melees.

THE NORMAL POPULATION of Rockaway Beach, Missouri, is about 200, and police estimated nearly 8,000 youths swarmed into this area on Lake Taneycomo for the holiday weekend. Most of them were from St. Louis, Kansas City, Topeka, and Wichita.

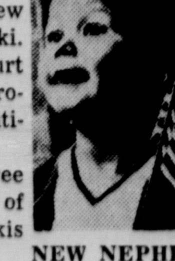
County Prosecutor Peter H. Rea, asked for a halt in the sale of beer Sunday and the businessmen complied.

"I don't think we'll have trouble now," a St. Louis youth said. "We're out of beer."

He was sitting on the hood of a car which had a windshield sticker reading: "Go to college and learn to riot."

IN MARKED CONTRAST to certain of freedom's excesses that broke out of control during the past weekend, there was genuine appreciation on the face of one of Uncle Sam's new nephews, three year - old Ted Rajewski. Young Ted stood proudly in Federal Court in Indianapolis, Indiana, and heard proceedings that would make him a U. S. citizen.

Born in Canada, Ted is one of three children adopted by the Rajewski family of Richmond, Indiana. All of the Rajewskis are of Polish descent.



NEW NEPHEW

A CAPSULE SUMMARY of Polish history reveals that it was a successful, free republic for 21 years — 1918 - 1939. Otherwise, even if we trace the small nation's history back to the Middle Ages, we find it has been torn asunder by feudal warfare, religious upheaval, civil war and partitioning by larger powers for generation upon generation.

We salute the flag you're holding, Ted. You and your people stand foremost among those who have shown a true appreciation over the years of the freedom it really signified.

Taylor To Lodge Again

THE TRANSFER OF the ambassadorship to South Viet Nam from General Maxwell Taylor back to Henry Cabot Lodge — who held the post prior to General Taylor's year-long tenure — was presented as a routine matter of business. Taylor had accepted the post for one year only when Lodge stepped down last year to take part in the presidential campaign.

But to many, the announcement was a surprise, adding confusion to an already uneasy overall picture. In fact, the following news sketches on several sensitive subjects point to some of the factors that make the times we live in properly termed "an era of doubt."

CONFUSION MAY HAVE hit a high point a few days ago when: Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler indicated the voluntary program to trim the U. S. balance of payments deficit is working so well he is worried about overoptimism.

THE FEDERAL Reserve announced the greatest weekly outflow of gold in six years, $359 million.

SENATOR STROM THURMOND, R-S.C., urged anew Tuesday that Congress conduct a full scale investigation of what he termed Communist penetration of civil rights organizations and activities.

"This is a 'political sacred cow' that unless fully investigated objectively is going to be swallowed up whole by the Communists and their left wing associates in this country," he told the Senate.

He referred to the recent statement of Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago that Communists and Communist-front groups were involved in riots and demonstrations against segregated schools there.

HAS A POLICEMAN as much right as anyone else to engage in civil rights and foreign policy demonstrations in his off-duty hours?

That issue is on trial along with a blond young officer who says he became interested in civil rights while assigned to a Negro section of Los Angeles.

Officer Michael B. Hannon's attorney says: "At issue is whether a police officer on his own time has the status of a citizen or is a second-class citizen under coerced silence."

SERGEANT ROGER M. MOULTON was the 22nd fellow officer to testify against Hannon. He told a police Board of Rights that Hannon, 28, father of four and part-time law student: Stated he belonged to the Congress of Racial Equality and the Socialist party.

IN CAIRO, EGYPT General Nguyen Giap, North Vietnamese commander who defeated the French at Dien Bien Phu, said the United States is making the same mistakes that led to the defeat of France in Indo-China.

"The Americans want to increase their troop strength to 100,000. The greater the number of American troops in Viet Nam the greater will be the disaster that will befall them, just like the French," Giap was quoted as saying in an interview with the Egyptian magazine Al Mussawar.

Missiles On Deck

WORK ON TWO MISSILE sites in North Viet Nam is nearly complete and two others have reached an advanced stage, the U.S. State Department reported.

As the U. S. military buildup in Viet Nam continued, House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said the United States should bomb Soviet-built missile sites in North Viet Nam.

U. S. RECOGNITION of the Algerian government of Col. Houari Boumedienne, which seized power from President Ahmed Ben Bella on June 19, was announced by the State Department last week.

And it was disclosed that President Johnson sent a reply to Boumedienne's message of congratulation to the United States on its July 4 Independence Day observance.

SPOKESMEN FOR BRITAIN'S Labor government said that Prime Minister Harold Wilson would not resign despite three staggering defeats in the House of Commons.

Since its election last October, the Labor party's majority the 630-seat Commons had varied from three to six, according to the number of special elections pending. It now stands at four.

Despite this slender margin the government had suffered only one previous Commons defeat, and that on a minor matter of House procedure.

Bigamy And Otherwise

IN WIDELY SEPARATED events last week, the institution of matrimony took a beating. In Italy, a court postponed a hearing of bigamy charges against actress Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti, a movie producer. Conviction would carry the possibility of a five - year prison term.

Ponti was married previously, and Italian law does not recognize divorce. He and the screen star were married by proxy in Mexico in 1957.

Though neither Miss Loren nor Ponti appeared at the hearing in Rome last week, a group of Italian mothers had their proclamation against bigamy read in court:

"WE ITALIAN MOTHERS, jealous of the sanctity of the customs of the institution of marriage, denounce to the judicial authorities Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti so there may be action, according to the law, against the two bigamists, and especially against Sophia Scicolone of Pozzuoli," the complaint said.

"This Sophia Loren is not a heroine and not even a great actress, but just another woman"

Sophia Scicolone is Miss Loren's real name. Pozzuoli is the town where she grew up.

THE STRAIGHT-AND-NARROW in marriage can also be rough. A Chicago carpenter, Curt Moberg, apparently passed a "perfect husband" test last week and won the right to live with his wife — presumably on her terms.

Moberg won a year-long trial reconciliation August 12, 1964, when he agreed in Circuit Court to give the test a try.

The agreement stipulated that if he broke even one of the 31 points "a divorce hearing will be had and all merchandise and all property will be given to Cecilia and the children Craig, 3, and Carl, 2 without a fight."

MOBERG AGREED to give up all hunting and fishing trips, pay all bills on time, let his wife handle all financial matters, earn $125 or more a week for 52 weeks a year, and maintain an open-door policy for all relatives and friends.

America The Beautiful-- V: The Wind, Sea And Mountains

By JOHN BARBOUR

Wind, mountains and the sea. These are the ingredients for scenic beauty unexcelled anywhere. And the people offer a contrast to all others. Here is the fifth in the series on America The Beautiful.

IN THE HIGH OLYMPICS, Wash. (AP) — West of here, the wind rises from the sea, heavy with moisture, and gathers in slow swirls for its assault on this young land.

For these mountains are kin to the sea, born of the sea, still rising imperceptibly toward the sky. And like their sister range to the east, the Cascades, these peaks keep their family ties to the sea.

They rose from the Pacific Ocean a few million years ago — and they are among the youngest of the world's mountains, beginning prehaps as some primeval dome, to be cut and jaded by the waters from which they rose.

The wind is the messenger.

It breathes harshly across these high glaciers, within sight of Seattle, dips down into the deep trough of Puget Sound, frosts the windshields of the city, rises again to conquer the high wilderness of the Cascades. Then it dies on the eastern slopes, falling on the flatland beyond, a dry and exhausted whisper.

These mountains of Washington State are a green wildness — so vast they harbor in their dark woods the wreckage of at least seven airplanes and the bodies of their passengers, unfound since 1953.

The wind has blown strange people to the land. The Indians, who forgot how they came here, linger still. These mountains are written of in ancient Chinese chronicles. Some say that Buddhist monks from China sailed by here 500 years after the death of Christ.

There was a 16th century Greek sailor with a Spanish name, Juan de Fuca. He charted what he saw, gave his name to the northern straits, marveled at the glacier-capped mountains, and carried their story to Europe.

But this is a land that is never discovered, and ever discovered.

Every day Harold Hanson, who used to work as an engineer, discovers it. He lives at Stevens Pass, high in the Cascades, less than half a day's drive from Seattle. He likes to ski in the winter — and winter is slow leaving this towering country.

And again, as perhaps yesterday, he discovers Huckleberry Mountain in the summer morning, climbs its steep slopes, treks over the crest — to swim in his own chill Alpine lake, and sleep in the broad meadow of mountain heather. There are no insects — even in the few brief days of mountain-top summer.

No one owns this land. It owns itself.

In his striped, railroad-type overalls, Henry K. Todd stands with his back to one of the thousands of waterfalls in this cascading country. And he tells how, south of here, he found a cave full of petrified wood, and how he reaps agate and stunning colored stones from the mountains and the streams.

An Iowan, he belongs here now. His home is in Wenatchee, but he summers in the Cascades. People around — and there aren't many of them — call him "Alpine Shorty." He loves the mountains and knows how to live with them. When the snow's melting, he climbs up one of the ski slopes that visitors have sailed down all winter.

"You find a hole in the snow, and just reach in and pick up some money," Shorty says. "I picked up $48 there one day. Folks take a tumble and lose all kinds of things."

"There's still a $2,000 ring up there somewhere," he says with the look of a man who knows just where the gold-laden Spanish galleon went down under British guns.

"I wouldn't trade one acre of this land for the whole state of Iowa," he says.

The Indians who once tried to own this land were finally owned by it. Their legends are as great as the mammoth Mt. Ranier they called god, and their mysteries are as deep as Spirit Lake.

The lake's ghostly sounds — wind-made and wind-borne — were the voices of the dead, and the devils cast out from other tribes. And the great fish of the lake were the spirits of warriors who now mock their tribes for giving up the land to the white man.

The Indians saw Tacoma, the mountain, in anger — the clouds seething at its head, the volcanic fires and the voice of the avalanche. They worshipped it. And the slopes of the mountain were sacred refuge. Whatever his crime, if an Indian reached the long cape of Ranier, his pursuers would have to turn back.

Flowers, said the Indians, are the spirits of children whose footsteps have passed from the earth, but who now reappear to gladden the pathway of the living.

The flowers are everywhere, fields of them wakening the slopes with purples and whites, small clumps manicuring the feet of pine and fir whose other life is perhaps 300 feet up.

To the white man, the forest is an unending crop, and he reaps it to panel his room, support his roof, make his paper. On some highways, the huge logging trucks, dwarfed by their load, speed by, three or four minutes apart. The signs of an earlier, more reckless day, are the man-high stumps of old logging days, rotting to become part of the woods again.

The mountains themselves — the Olympics and Cascades — offer strangely varying histories. The northern Cascades, like the Olympics, are soft mountains — the limestone, sandstone and shale of old seas, compressed and crumpled and folded over themselves.

But the southern Cascades carry the fire and brimstone past of volcanoes. And the area hasn't cooled down yet, totally. Mount Lassen blew its top in 1914. Before that, Mounta Mazama erupted with such force it opened a hole five miles across and 2,000 feet deep. There are newspaper accounts within the last 100 years of ash falling near Mt. St. Helens and Mt. Baker.

The Olympics — with the Carrier glacier and Mt. Olympus — rise nearly 8,000 feet. Olympus, like a cold and silent throne, lets its glaciers fall randomly like the flowing white robes of royalty. Below, the melting snows feed the Hoh River and the forests as the great valleys and serf-mountains sweep away to the northern shore.

The northern Cascades, great sleeping giants, rise higher than the southern Cascades, and within a few hours walk in all directions there may be 50 hidden lakes.

Still nothing quite matches the symmetry and the conical snow-capped beauty of Mt. St. Helens, in the southern Cascades, and the massive white tyranny of Mt. Ranier.

The Indians tell the story of the mountains beginning. An old witch named Loowit lived at the bridge of the gods across the Columbia River. Her name meant "Lady of Fire" and she kept a sacred flame, the only flame on earth. Tribes came from all over to borrow its embers. Because of her faithfulness, the Great Chief gave her eternal life.

But Loowit wept. She didn't want to live forever as an ugly witch. The Great Chief took pity and transformed her into a beautiful maiden. The two sons of the Great Chief heard of her beauty. They too were immortal, and they traveled far to see her.

Both fell in love with her, and she could not choose between them. They fell to fighting, and in the holocaust villages and forests were burned. The Great Chief became angry.

He crumpled the bridge of gods into the Columbia River, now the boulders and rocks near Bonneville. Then he reared mighty mountains where each of the lovers fell.

Loowit became the dazzling, white cone of Mt. St. Helens. One proud son lifts his head as Mt. Hood. The rougher son, who had a tender heart despite his strength, weeps and bends his head to see his beloved wrapped in snow. He is Mt. Adams.

The coast is a rugged, tentative place — would-be mountains that never made good. The waves hammer at the foot of the Olympics as they have for millions of years, reclaiming to the Pacific Ocean the stunted and abraded land.

From Cape Flattery southward are the beaten fragments of land, small unsuccessful islands, jutting thumbs of rock — resisting to the last the relentless reach of the waves. Near LaPush they have called them the graveyard of giants.

The wind, building its strength, moves against the land from the southwest. With savage blasts, as high as 120 miles an hour, it has blown countless ships to death on the uneven shore. And it drives the waves to batter the very edge of the forest. And when the waves and tide retreat, the white skeletons of the pine trees, shattered and broken, lie bleaching in the sun.

All manner of unequal debris finds a lodging place on the shore. There are glass floats from Japanese fishing boats, blown across the ocean from the Kamchatka peninsula. Great whales, their strength matched by the tides, have washed ashore. Even the metalwork braces of ships, twisted by wave and rock, rust and are buried at the wave's edge.

At the foot of the Olympics, the sea wind has created a wonderland — strange, moss-hung grottos. These are the rain forests — tropical interludes of fern and algae, rubbery parasite and rotting wood, a haven for the smallest of creatures in a pure green world.

Even the air seems to hang green, and seems to be alive in its stillness. Only the giant pine and fir seek the full sight of the sun. The rest live in shadow and small glint of light. Water descends here as a redundant source of life. Growth grows upon growth, life upon life.

A fallen pine, its huge timber coated with a six-inch blanket of moss, becomes a nursery for the new seedlings, literally hundreds rising from the rotten bark, later to find a place in the soil.

And the moss itself, like a luxuriant pillow, is misleading. Its grip on its wooden bed is tenuous. It offers no place for hand or foot. And it is alive with a thousand tiny creatures, small worms, fleas and spiders.

Somehow the nearly constant rain and haze have created a tapestry of greens and golds worthy of a medieval church with small rays of sun filtering through the green windows of the trees.

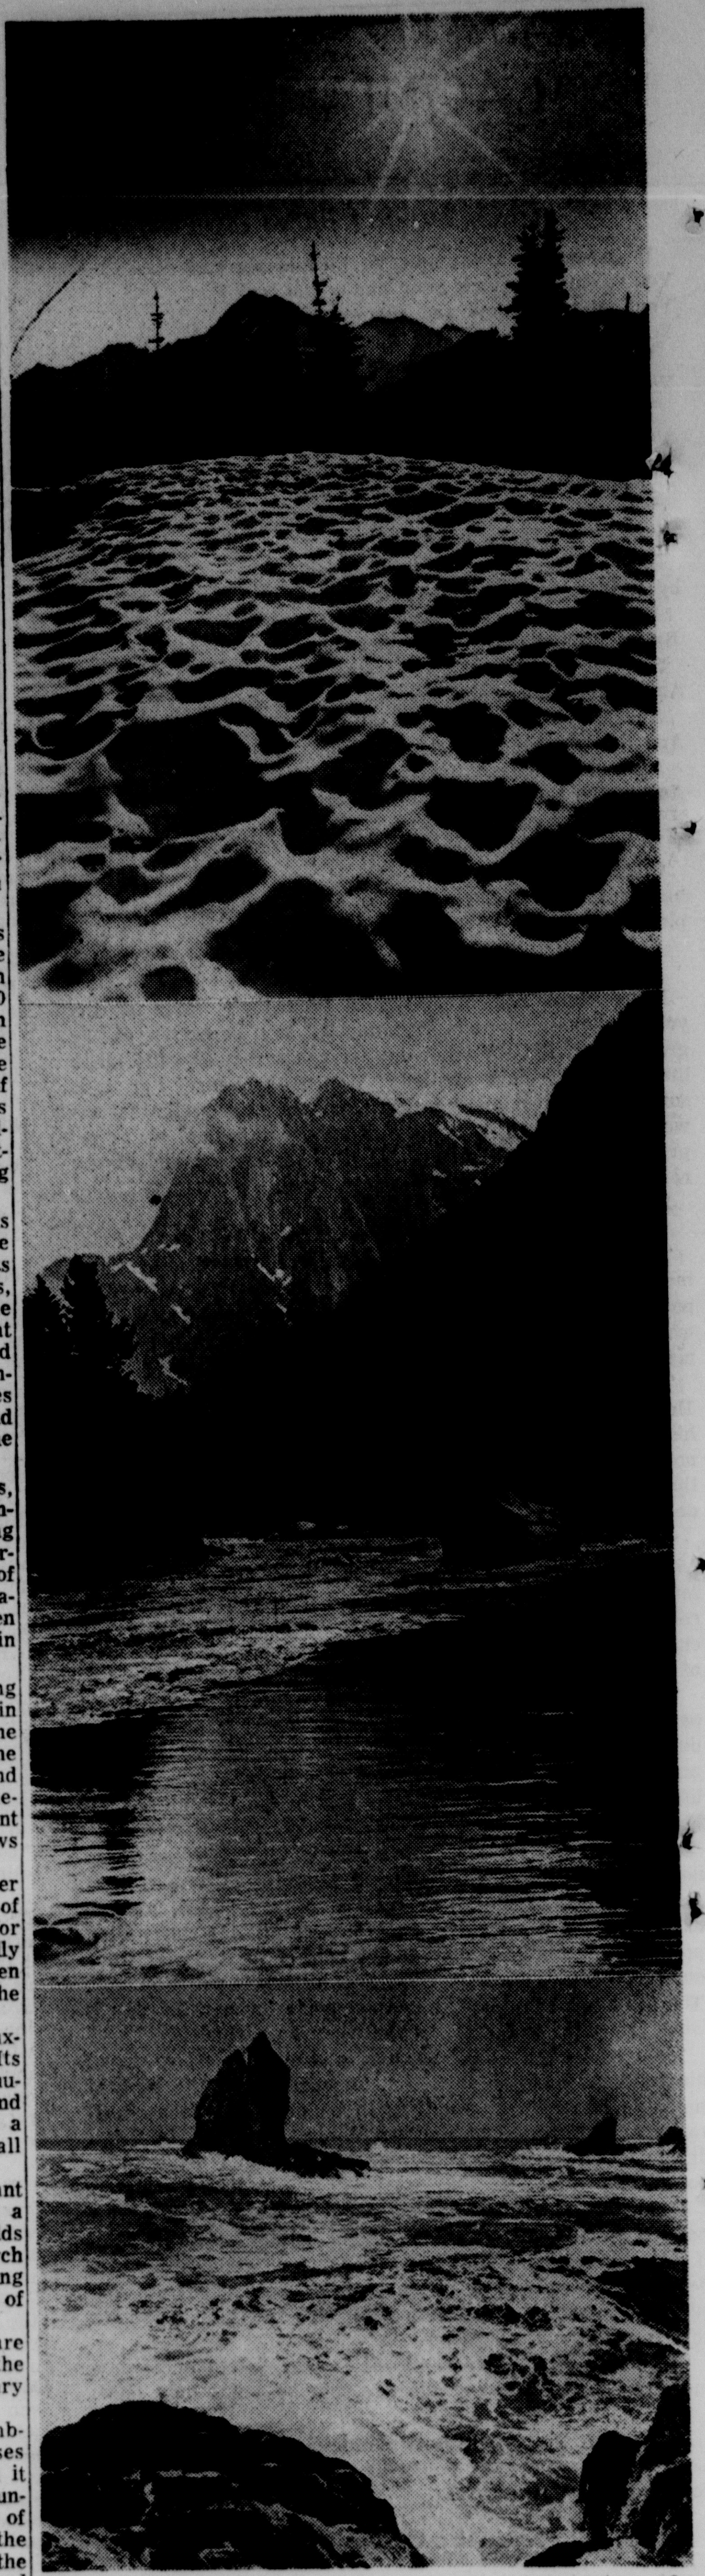
Only the small, dark birds are real, and only the track of the Roosevelt elk is contemporary history.

The water-laden air — climbing the cold mountains — loses its hold on its moisture, and it pours down here. At the mountain top, there are 200 inches of rain and snow a year. By the time the wind surmounts the Olympics, it is wrung out, and towns on the nether side receive barely 16 inches of rain a year.

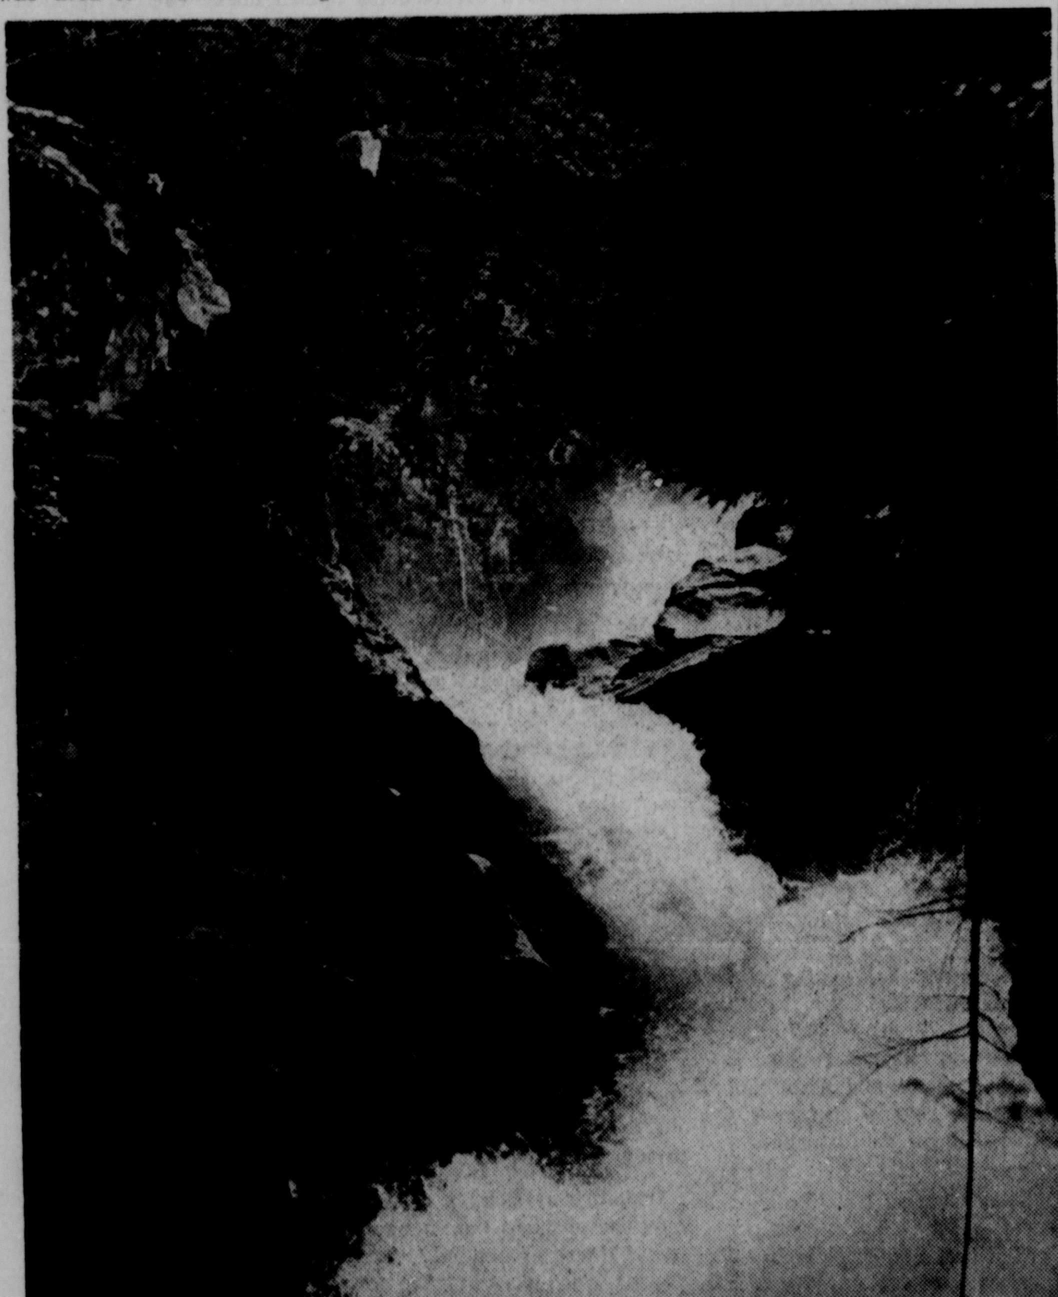
Later on — after a pass through the moist, glacier-dug valley and low hills of Puget Sound — the winds are challenged again by the Cascades. And after the Cascades, they tap the Columbia River to irrigate the land.

Finally, at road's end, the traveler looks back at the heights he has visited, and the strange world they enjoy. And in the minutes of his watching, the clouds seem to grow out of the sky and wreathe the heads of the mountains, like the nervous mask of a shy young girl which hides, then reveals, more than it wants to.

A WILDERNESS of tree - and snow - covered mountains stretches around her, but the Columbian blacktail doe has been touched by civilization and will allow humans to come close. The deer in Olympic National Park, in Northwest Washington, have become accustomed to sightseers who make the often perilous drive. The view here is from Hurricane Ridge. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)



WINTER RETREATS slowly in the mountains of northwest Washington. In some places it lingers into summer, or sometimes never disappears. Impatient wildflowers pop up through the snow here and there. In the view at top from Hurricane Ridge in Olympic National Park, a snowbank gradually gives way to the assault of the sun. Winding in and out of the Cascade Mountains of western Washington, the Skykomish River presents an ever - changing picture of nature's beauty. The water is of a deep green which defies description in its constant variations of tones. The scene at center is along Stevens Pass Highway — U. S. 2 to the map-reading tourists. Beating against the rocks, the ocean, abetted by the rain, carves out the coast-line of northwest Washington as it has done for millions of years. Bottom is a scene at Rialto Beach and the Graveyard of the giants. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)



TUMBLING OVER the rocks in a seemingly endless waterfall, Deception Creek rushes from its source high in the Cascade Mountains in Western Washington. The deafening roar is heard by few humans. So wild is much of the area that 14 planes have been lost and never found since 1953. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

BREATHTAKING VIEWS of glaciers and snow-topped mountains reward the sightseer on Hurricane Ridge in Olympic National Park on Washington's Northwest coast. The drive up to the ridge also is breath-taking — a heart - in - mouth ride for tourists unaccustomed to the sheer drops alongside mountain roads. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

INWARD FROM THE coast of Northwest Washington, with its winds and its rainfalls, the Columbia River valley near Vantage presents a scene of sunlit calm, at left. Amid the low growth, a baby plays quietly with her mother. Small fingers of land, miniatures of the mountains to the East, rise out of the Pacific at Rialto Beach and the Graveyard of the Giants on the rugged Northwest coast of Washington, center. The high winds and the moisture-laden air rising out of the sea here begin their assault which slowly eats away at the coastline and the mountains. At right, blown in from the sea, the moisture-filled air creates rain forests at the base of the Olympic Mountains in Olympic National Park in Northwest Washington. Rains, falling at the rate of 200 inches a year in the area, give nourishment to lush vegetation and huge trees. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

BOOKS

Guide To Good Reading

Library Has Big Book Selection

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish
Public Librarian

Again this week the Ouachita Parish Public Library has a variety of books for your reading pleasure. "After the Wedding Anniversary" by Bettina Linn is a delightful light novel, based on a rather incredible situation, but read it and see what you think about it. "Those almost Happy Years" by Willard Temple is an account of two young men from a small town and the reasons for their return to this town. It is an interesting book for light summer reading. "Kotch" by Katherine Topkins is a sad story of old age and the need for love. Although it goes a little far, it is one to make all readers stop and take a look at themselves.

"The Incorruptible" by Helma De Bois is an account of the career of Robespierre in the years from 1788 to 1794. It is a very fine book, by a skilled writer and presents an excellent picture of the French Revolution. A new historical novel, with the setting in Colonial North Carolina and a good tale of adventure is "Roanoke Warrior" by Carter A. Vaghan. This should be popular. "When the Legends Die" by Hal G. Borland is a very find Western and will interest those who enjoy a good story of our far West. Science fiction addicts welcome two new noveds. "The Star Fox" by Poul Anderson and "The Fury Out Of Time" by Lloyd Biggle Jr.

"The Gentle People" by Era Zistel is an account of the animals, tame and wild, that surround her home in the Catskill Mountains. The author reveals her love for all creatures and this book will appeal to many readers. "The World of Bees" by Murray Hoyt contains much good information of value to beekeepers. "How not to Kill Your Wife" by Dr. Kenneth Hutchin should be required reading for husbands who want to keep their wives happy and well for a long time. "With every breath you Take" by Howard R. Lewis is an interesting account of air pollution and is a book to make one stop and think.

A most practical book for parents is "Wisdom With Children" written By Isaac N. Kugelmass. This is a complete guide to a child's development, well-being and care. This is the type of book which a parent should own, but the library is happy to have copies which can be examined, so you can decide for yourself, whether you need to purchase a copy. "Recreation in America" by Pauline Madow is a good survey of recreational practices in this country. John Wesley Hunt has given us a new appraisal of the World of "William Faulkner" which should be most valuable to students. A lovely new collection of poems is "A time of bees" by Mona Van Duyn. Most of these poems are on nature themes and make most pleasant reading. Hal Borland has given us a collection of essays, which he calls "Countryman" and in which he gives a summary of his beliefs. Another good book of literature is "Assorted Prose" by John Updike. Clive Staples Lewis, one of the outstanding modern English writers has just published a delightful new book of "Poems", which are a blend of charm, erudition, wit and gentle satire. A very lovely new collection of poetry is "Poems that live forever" edited by Hazel Felleman.

Biographies are always popular and there are three new ones this week; "Lincoln's Scapegoat" by Richard S. West is a biography of General Benjamin F. Butler and sheds much new light on the career of the much hated "Spoon Butler". "Defender of the Faith" by Lawrence W. Levine is an interesting biography of William Jennings Bryan and will be enjoyed by all who remember the career of this remarkable man. "Where the light falls" by Chard Powers Smith is a biography and appraisal of the work of Edwin Arlington Robinson."

Doctor Relates Year As Intern

INTERN. By Doctor X. Harper. $5.95.

This is a first-person documentary record of the crucial year in a Doctor of Medicine's training. It reveals, far behind the scenes, some things that are frightening to a layman. But it also depicts the rugged courage with which a freshly graduated medical student can go through his baptism of fire as a hospital intern.

The author poured into a taperecorded the running record of his internship. It happened "some years ago" at an unidentified hospital, and all the private identities have been disguised.

In his introduction, "X" says he believes it has been "unworthy" of the medical profession to keep silence on things the layman should know, and to maintain secrecy over "the work that doctors do, the way they do it, the kind of men they are. . ."

"X" had a rough time. There were only half the normal number of interns in this hospital during the 12 months he describes.

He pours out a whole torrent of examples and case histories that he saw in medicine, surgery, obstetrics, orthopedics, pedatrics and the emergency room. There are a few examples of really serious blunders, and others less serious; but there are also some cases of adroit rescue.

He relates incidents in which experienced physicians, residents and staff members were sniping at each other; but there are other incidents of help and encouragement.

Because so little has been written about his subject, there is a sense in which "X's" story is an expose. The author says his account "may horrify and appall some readers and infuriate others." But it does provide what he set out to show, a vivid "glimpse into the dynamic processes through which a doctor is made." It is a book with a wallop. Possibly it is disturbing. As a revelatory document of a little-known world, it is highly welcome.

Special Agent Slow-Moving, Detailed Story

SPECIAL AGENT. By Frank J. Wilson and Beth Day. Holt, Rinehart. $4.95.

Wilson's career began as a tax agent and ended with his presiding over the U. S. Secret Service from 1936 to 1946. His memoir covers some of the most famous headlines of the period.

He began at the time of World War 1, searching out the bigger operators of the black market in food. He ran up against the political fix — which he calls "boss justice" — when he helped investigate some of the scandals of the infamous Ohio Gang of Harding's day.

Prohibition spawned gangsters, and some of the most interesting passages in the book describe how he led a crew of agents that closed in on Scarface Al Capone and his mob, by way of the income tax laws.

Yanks Gain Split With Twins

Baltimore, White Sox Split In Doubleheader

BALTIMORE (AP) — Miscues by opposing rookie left fielders. Baltimore's Curt Blefary and Joe Hicks of Chicago, contributed to important runs Saturday as the White Sox and Orioles split a twi-night doubleheader.

The White Sox won the opener 6-4, snapping a five-game Baltimore winning streak, but the Orioles rebounded for a 5-3 victory in the nightcap with all of their runs unearned.

Ron Hansen and Floyd Robinson socked two-run homers to keep Chicago even in the first game, with the tie-breaking run scoring in the seventh after Blefary lost Tom McCraw's lazy fly in the background and it fell for a double.

Hansen then singled off reliever Dick Hall, scoring McCraw and breaking the 4-4 deadlock.

Hansen also singled as Chicago added a run in the ninth.

Baltimore had scored four runs in the fourth inning off Chicago starter Gary Peters, but winner Bob Locker and Eddie Fisher held the Orioles hitless after that.

An error by Chicago first baseman Danny Cater paved the way for three unearned Oriole runs in the fourth inning of the second game. Two scored when Hicks, recently recalled from Indianapolis, lost Jerry Adair's fly in the background and it fell for a double.

Baltimore added two more unearned runs in the sixth without a hit after Hicks dropped a liner by Jackie Brandt in left center. Three walks, two intentional by loser Joe Horlen, and a sacrifice fly by Dick Brown contributed to the rally.

Dave McNally, who was relieved by Stu Miller as Chicago scored two in the ninth, was the winner.

Robin Roberts struck out two batters in the first game to run his career total to 2,267 and move into ninth place on the all-time list ahead of Lefty Grove. The two homers Roberts allowed increased his record total to 489.

Angels Shut Out Indians 1-0 For Third Straight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fred Newman and Bob Lee of Los Angeles combined efforts for a 10-hit shutout against Cleveland Saturday night as the Angels beat the Indians for the third straight time, 1-0.

Newman was in and out of trouble for eight innings and allowed all 10 hits before giving way to Lee in the ninth.

Vic Power singled home the first-inning run that gave Newman, 9-7, the edge in a pitching duel against Sam McDowell, 9-6, who hurled a five-hitter.

Newman, who had lost three straight to the Indians, didn't allow an extra-base hit, walked none and benefitted from two double plays. The Indians were able to advance only one runner as far as third base.

The Angels bunched two of their hits off McDowell in the first inning. Willie Smith singled, advanced on a wild pitch and scored on a two-out single by Power.

Senators Nudge Out Boston 5-3, Ortega Wins 9th

WASHINGTON (AP) — Willie Kirkland scored the go-ahead run following a double and hit his eighth home run, leading the Washington Senators to a 5-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Phil Ortega won his ninth game, two more than he won for the Los Angeles Dodgers all last year, but he needed relief help from Marshall Bridges and Ron Kline.

The Senators scored two fast runs off Dave Morehead on a walk to Ken Hamlin, Ken McMullen's double and two infield outs. Kirkland doubled in the third and scored on a single by Jim King. Dick Nen and Don Lock also singled, producing another run and a 4-2 lead.

Jim Gosger, recalled Friday by the Red Sox, hit his second homer in two games and added a double. Lee Thomas singled his first two times at bat, making seven straight hits, before he hit into a double play to end a Boston threat in the fifth.

Halt Minnesota's Win Streak At 9

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Clete Boyer halted Minnesota's winning streak at nine games, clouting a grand slam home run in the eighth inning that gave the New York Yankees an 8-6 victory over the American League-leading Twins Saturday night.

Minnesota won the opener of the day-night doubleheader 4-1 behind Zoilo Versalles' two-run homer.

The Yankees, behind 5-4, loaded the bases in the eighth inning of the second game against reliever Dick Stigman.

Johnny Klippstein relieved Stigman to face Boyer, who hit the second pitch 365 feet over the left field fence.

New York tagged starter Jim Grant for four runs and nine hits, lucing bases-empty homers by Repoz and Lopez, before he went out in the seventh.

Perry, bringing his record to 6-0, stopped New York on four hits through eight innings. Al Worthington finished up.

Whitworth In Lead At PGA Midwest Open

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Patty Berg, marking her 25th anniversary in professional golf competition, made a strong run at the first round lead in the Ladies PGA Midwest Open Saturday, but weakened on the last two holes while Kathy Whitworth took command with a par 72.

Miss Berg, 47, was even par through 16 holes but bogied the 405-yard 17th. On the 410-yard 18th her approach went over the green and she bogied again for a two-over par 74 and a share of second place.

Miss Whitworth, seeking her fourth tournament victory in 15 outings this year, used only 31 putts in playing the 6,400-yard, par 36-36 Walnut Hill Country Club course.

She pared each nine, thanks to birdie putts of 15 feet on No. 9 and 20 feet on No. 18.

Miss Whitworth, of San Antonio, Tex., was two strokes ahead of Miss Berg, Sandra Haynie, Marlene Hagge, Sandra Spuzich and Judy Torluemke in the field of 36 professionals and 31 amateurs.

Women's National Open champion Carol Mann, still bothered by a chest cold, shot a 77. Trying for her third triumph in three weeks, she chipped badly all day and had to putt 37 times.

Neither Miss Mann nor Miss Whitworth, the leading LPGA money-winner for 1965 with $12,035 in official earnings, figured today's 36-hole grind winding up the 54-hole event would be too much for the pro stars.

The double header was necessitated by a Friday rainout.

Miss Whitworth said, "I wasn't hitting the ball really that good." But she escaped without a three-put green and could have broken par if one of five putts that lipped the cup had sunk.

Randy Matson To Throw Shot Against Russia

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Randy Matson, world shotput king, put together one of his best series of throws Saturday night and was added to the United States team that will compete against the Russians in Kiev July 31-Aug. 1

In a special exhibition that lasted only 10 minutes, Matson rang up this performance: 66-10½, foul, 67-8¾, 66-3¾, 67-6 and 67-6¾. Two AAU officials and Fred Berman, former Southeastern Conference shotput champion for Georgia Tech, measured the throws.

Local Softball Club Wins Two

Burger Chef got strong pitching performances in both games Saturday night against Texas Eastern of Shreveport and won 3-0 and 1-0 in a "fast-pitch" softball doubleheader.

Bob Betz hurled a no-hitter for Monroe in the opener while Son Woods, Webb Nix and Billy Sanford had hits for the locals.

In the second game, a home run by Ray Cook in the fourth inning was enough padding for Clete James and Richard Campbell who combined for a three-hitter.

Cook went 2-3 in the contest. Monroe, now 3-1, will take on El Dorado here next Saturday unless a change is announced.

Nationals Are Favored

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Home run power and an array of hard-throwing pitchers make the National League a favorite to beat the American League in Tuesday's All-Star game and take the lead in the midsummer baseball classic for the first time.

A sellout crowd of about 47,000 will jam newly enlarged Metropolitan Stadium for the first All-Star game ever played in the home park of the Twins.

Game time is 1 p.m. EST with network coverage (NBC) on both radio and television. In case of a postponement, Commissioner Ford Frick will announce the time and date of the rescheduled game.

The National League, which once trailed 12-4 in this series, pulled up even at 17-17-1 last year by beating the American League 7-4 at New York Shea's Stadium on a three-run homer by Johnny Callison in the ninth inning. The dimensions of the Twins' park, 344 feet to left and 330 to right tend to accent the home run.

Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants, named to the center field job for the 12th straight time, is the big glamor name of the power-packed NL team.

The starting line-up, selected by the votes of players, coaches and managers, bristles with sluggers like Mays, leftfielder Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, rightfielder Hank Aaron and catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee, first baseman Ernie Banks of Chicago and third baseman Richie Allen of Philadelphia.

If the big guns are silenced, the Nationals have fleet shortstop Maury Wills of Los Angeles, who is trying to break his own stolen base record, and Pete Rose, Cincinnati's fine second baseman, for finesse.

Right fielder Rocky Colavito of Cleveland is the big gunner on the American League team that does not include a single New York Yankee in the starting line-up for the first time since 1943. Left fielder Willie Horton and Shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit, first baseman Moose Skowron of Chicago and second baseman Felix Mantilla of Boston, a Met reject, are other American League long ball threats. third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore, most Valuable Player in the league in 1964, high-average center fielder Vic Davalillo of Cleveland and catcher Earl Battey of Minnesota round out the starting line-up.

The starting pitchers will not be named until Monday but the National has an awesome array of flame-throwers—Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, Jim Maloney and Sammy Ellis of Cincinnati, Bob Veale of Pittsburgh, Bob Gibson of St. Louis Juan Marichal of San Francisco and Dick Farrell of Houston. Koufax and Veale are the only left-handers.

With Koufax, Ellis and Gibson due to work today, the burden would seem to fall on the others, possibly Drysdale, who has started four All-Star games.

Gene Mauch of Philadelphia, managing the team, did not name any Phil pitchers.

Al Lopez of Chicago, manager of the American League squad, took only relief pitcher Eddie Fisher from his White Sox staff.

Mel Stottlemyre of the Yankees or Milt Pappas of Baltimore probably will start although Lopez may select lefty Sam McDowell, Cleveland's strikeout ace, or Jim Grant of the hometown Twins.

Pete Richert of Washington and John O'Donoghue of Kansas City, two of the three southpaws on the staff, also are available along with relief man Bob Lee of Los Angeles.

The players vote for the starters, with the exception of pitchers, who are selected by the two All-Star managers. The managers also fill out the rest of the 25-man squads. All starters must play at least the first three innings, except pitchers, who can not work more than three innings unless the game goes into overtime.

Both managers, incidentally, are subs for last year's pennant-winning pilots. Mauch is replacing Johnny Keane, who switched from the Cards to the Yanks, and Lopez is taking over for Yogi Berra, who took the pennant with the Yankees but was fired for his trouble.

Minnesota has six men on the American League squad, which has only four left-handed batters, excluding pitchers. Cincinnati's contingent of six tops the National roster, which also is heavy on right-handed hitters However, the NL does have lefty - swinging Stargell and switchers Rose and Wills as starters and lefties Ed Kranepool of New York, Billy Williams of Chicago, John Edwards of Cincinnati and Callison, the 1964 hero, in reserve.

Mickey Mantle of the Yanks was picked as a sub but was excused because of his leg injury. Carl Yastrzemski of Boston also was removed from the list because of an injury. Lopez replaced them with catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and outfielder Tony Oliva of the Twins.

Gibson is the only member of the world champion Cardinals on the National squad. The American League champion Yanks have no starters and only Elston Howard, Bobby Richardson and Stottlemyre on the roster.

In 1939 Joe McCarthy started six Yanks and used only 12 men altogether in beating the Nationals 3-1. Stung by criticism, Marse Joe used no Yanks in 1943, although six were on the squad, and still won 5-3.

In recent years the National has dominated the series, winning six of the last eight, those eight including a 1-1 tie in 1961.

Three-Mile Record Toppled By Clark

LONDON (AP) — Ron Clarke of Australia set the most fantastic of all his world records Saturday — 12:52.4 for the three miles — in history-making run at London's White City Stadium.

Another mighty track and field barrier was broken down. No man had ever cracked 13 minutes before.

The amazing 28-year-old Australian knocked eight seconds off his old record of 13:00.4. That was set at Compton, Calif., last month and is still awaiting ratification.

Clarke made his new mark on a track made heavy by rain. He ran the last three-quarters of a mile on his own, with no other runner within yards of him.

The 16,000 fans, crazy with excitement, rose from their seats and surged towards the barrier as the bell went for the last of the 12 laps.

Clarke came down the final straight lapping stragglers in the race.

The Australian also holds the world records or pending records for 10 miles, 10,000 meters (about 6¼ miles) and 5,000 meters (3 miles, 188 yards).

Clarke set the pace from the start, helped by Gerry Lindgren of Spokane, Wash. They ran so fast that experts thought they could never keep up the pace. Lindgren took second in 13:04.2 — the fastest ever by an American.

This was how Clarke's run went:

At one mile he clocked 4:15.4 and was 4.20 seconds inside his previous world record schedule.

At the halfway mark, 1½ miles, he was clocked 6:26.0 and was eight seconds inside schedule.

Soon after the start of the third mile Clarke looked over his shoulder at Lindgren, and found that the little American was flagging. He dropped behind, and Clarke ground on alone.

At 2¾ miles, with one lap to go, Clarke was clocked in 11:51.3 and was now only 2¾ seconds inside schedule.

From then on his running seemed superhuman. He strode further and further away from Lindgren as the crowd went mad.

Afterwards, however, Clarke said Lindgren was the man who made the race.

"He made the pace in the fourth lap," Clarke said. "That was the most vital lap in the race.

"With four laps to go, he was still pressing me. He is a great little runner.

"That was the stage at which I made my biggest effort. I knew I had to break him. It was then that the world record was made."

With two laps to go, Clarke was feeling the strain. The crowd never noticed it, but he said afterwards:

"I was desperately tired. I was thinking: 'This must be the last lap. Can I make it?' But it wasn't the last lap."

National records also were broken by Lajos Mecser of Hungary, third in 13:07.6, and Derek Graham of Ireland, fourth in 13:15.8.

Clarke's victory proved a blazing climax to the British Amateur Athletic Association Championships.

The mile, loudly heralded, fizzled out on a damp track. Britain's Alan Simpson won in 4:01.9. Boby Day of Pasadena, Calif. — a sub-four-minute man who was regarded as Simpson's chief rival — was fifth in 4:04.1.

Mike Larrabee, 30-year-old Olympic gold medalist from Los Angeles, had to struggle over the last few yards to win the quarter-mile from John Adey, a 20-year-old Englishmen. Both were clocked in 47.6, and photographs decided the results.

Rex Cawley of Los Angeles, Olympic gold medalist, again beat Britain's John Cooper in the 440 yards hurdles. Cawley clocked 50.9 seconds. Cooper was the silver medalist at Tokyo.

Tommy Farrell, an Olympian from St. John's University of New York, sprinted in the stretch to win the half mile in 1:49.5. Britain's Chris Carter was second in 1:49.9.

14th Victory Is Recorded For Marichal

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — San Francisco's Juan Marichal became the majors' second 14-game winner Saturday night, checking Philadelphia 7-0 on two hits for his seventh shutout of the season.

Willie Mays, the Giants' $105,000-a-year center fielder, and Philadelphia catcher Pat Corrales were injured in a first inning collision at home plate. Both were taken to a hospital, but X rays were negative.

Marichal, bringing his record to 14-7, was tagged for Tony Gonzalez triple off the scoreboard in right center field with one out in the second. Gonzalez remained on third base as Marichal struck out Dick Stuart and got Bobby Wine on a grounder.

Marichal then retired 13 in order before allowing a sixth inning walk. Cookie Rojas singled with two out in the ninth for the Phillies' other hit. The high-kicking right-hander struck out six and walked just one as he joined Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers as the majors' only 14-game winners.

Mays and Corrales were hurt as the Giants scored four runs — three unearned — in the first inning off loser Ray Culp, 5-6.

Corrales was knocked unconscious and was carried off on a stretcher. Mays limped off the field with a bruished right hip.

Mays scored on the collision and Corrales was charged with an error as he dropped the ball. With two out Mays came all the way home from first base on a play that started with Tom Haller's infield hit.

Golf Dinner To Honor Big Three

NEW YORK (AP) — Golf's Big Three — Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player — will be honored at the annual All-American collegiate golf dinner here July 27.

The top six college golfers of the country, picked by a special selection board, will be flown to New York for the occasion. They have not yet been named.

Palmer is chairman of the selection committee and will be honored for his work at that post. Nicklaus will receive an award for his work as chairman of the Ohio chapter of the American Cancer Society. Player will be honored as the first foreign player since 1920 to win the U.S. Open.

The dinner will benefit the American Cancer Society.

Los Angeles Beats Pittsburgh Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ron Fairly drove in four runs, including three in a six-run fifth-inning explosion, as the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped Pittsburgh 8-4 Saturday.

The victory kept the Dodgers one-half game behind the National League-leading Cincinnati Reds, who edged Milwaukee 9-8.

Don Drysdale brought his record to 13-8 although he left the game in the sixth inning after the Pirates scored a run with two out on Jim Pagliaroni's single, a wild pitch, a walk and a double by Bob Bailey.

The Dodgers scored two runs in the first inning on Maury Wills' single, a double by Jim Gilliam, a sacrifice bunt and Fairly's sacrifice fly.

They put the game away in the fifth.

Jim Lefebvre started the uprising with a home run, and the Dodgers loaded the bases on Drysdale's double, Wills' single and a walk to Willie Davis. Fairly followed with a bases-clearing double and later scored on Lou Johnson's single.

Astros Claim Thomas, Pay Waiver Price

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Thomas, fired by the Philadelphia Phillies after an on-the-field fight with teammate and batting star Richie Allen, was picked up Saturday by the Houston Astros.

The 36-year-old first baseman-outfielder was claimed by the Astros, who will pay the regular waiver price of $20,000.

Thomas and Allen had their celebrated set-to last Saturday night during batting practice at Philadelphia's Connie Mack Stadium, with several hundred fans looking on.

Allen, National League Rookie of the year last season and a leading batter this year, and Thomas, a seldom-used sub, exchanged heated words before the 23-year-old third baseman threw a punch to the mouth. Thomas countered by swinging the bat in his hands — clipping Allen on the shoulder.

Hours later, General Manager John Quinn, saying Thomas was "through with the Phillies," placed the 15-year NL veteran on irrevocable waivers.

In that night's game, incidentally, Thomas hit a pinch homer while Allen rapped two triples and a single — but the Phils lost to Cincinnati 10-8

Manager Luman Harris of the Astros said he would use the right-handed hitting Thomas as a pinch batter, in left field, and alternating with left-hander Jim Gentile at first base.

Thomas, a slugger who has hit 283 homers in the majors—all in the National League—was a key factor last year as the Phillies almost copped the pennant. He was traded to Philadelphia in August and helped the Phils boost their lead to six games before sidelined by a broken thumb in September.

The Phillies eventually folded and the St. Louis Cardinals came on to take the pennant.

Thomas broke in with the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1951 and Milwaukee Braves in 1961 and to the Mets later that year.

Thomas is expected to join the Astros immediately, driving from Philadelphia.

Detroit Defeated In Ninth Inning By Athletics, 4-3

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mike Hershberger led off the ninth inning with a triple and scored on Rene Lachemann's fly ball, giving Kansas City a 4-3 victory over Detroit Saturday night.

The triumph ended the Athletics' eight-game losing streak.

After Hershberger tripled to right-center field, Larry Sherry walked Johnny Blanchard and Tom Reynolds intentionally. Mickey Lolich then relieved Sherry and Lachemann promptly flied deep to Don Demeter in center field.

Detroit starter Denny McLain, seeking his seventh straight victory, ran his scoreless inning string to 20 before the Athletics scored a run in the seventh.

Kansas City then tied the game 3-3 in the eighth on a pinch-hit home run by Santiago Rosario off McLain and Wayne Causey's homer off Sherry.

Rollie Sheldon blanked the Tigers until the seventh when they scored two runs on singles by Demeter, Don Wert, Al Kaline and Dick McAuliffe.

They added a run in the eighth as Willie Horton beat out an infield single, moved around to third on a walk and Wert's single and came home on a force play.

Ed Charles doubled and Hershberger tripled for a Kansas City run in the seventh. Charles injured his left ankle sliding into second and was carried off the field on a stretcher.

His ankle didn't swell, but X rays were to be taken. The injury was not believed to be serious.

Four-Day Clinic Slated For Coaches At NLSC

A free four-day clinic for high school football, basketball and track coaches will get underway at Northeast Louisiana State College here Tuesday afternoon. The clinic, sponsored by the College's Department of Health and Physical Education, is being held in Biedenharn Auditorium.

Directing the program is Jack Rowan of the H&PE faculty.

Welcoming clinic participants at the opening session at 1 p.m. will be A. S. Huffman, chairman of the host H&PE department. T. H. (Muddy) Waters, commissioner of the Louisiana High School Athletic Association, will also address the clinic participants before lecture sessions get underway.

Dixie White, head football coach and athletic director at Northeast, speaks at the first session on football at 2 p.m. He will discuss "Offensive Line Play." After the lecture, participants will have an opportunity to remain for a brief conference with the speaker or view a training film featuring some prominent coach. Following White's lecture, the film will be Joe Kulharich, formerly of Notre Dame, giving finer points on "Interior Line Play."

NLSC's Lenny Fant, Gulf States Conference "Coach of the Year" in basketball, will address cage coaches at their first session at 3 p.m. He is scheduled to discuss "Attacking Pressing Defenses." The film following his lecture will feature John Bennington, formerly of St. Louis University, demonstrating the "Pressing Defenses."

Another NLSC coach, Bob Groseclose, talks on opening day. The guiding light of such field and track stars as pole vaulter John Pennel and hurdler Roger Morgan, will talk at 4 p.m. on "Organizing a Track Program in the High School." His talk will be followed by filmed highlights of the Florida Relays.

Wednesday's program is scheduled to feature talks by Jack Williams, assistant track coach at West Monroe High School; Jim Mahoney, head basketball coach at Nicholls State College; Walter Brister, head football coach at West Monroe High School, and Wallace Hargon, offensive backfield coach at NLSC.

Films to be shown on Wednesday feature Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma, Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, Frank McGuire of North Carolina, and highlights of the Southwestern Relays.

Talking Thursday on football will be Mark Boatright, new head football coach at Ouachita Parish High School, and Ralph Lane, defensive backfield coach at Northeast. Films will feature Eddie Erdelatz, former Navy coach, and John McKay of Southern Cal.

Van Leigh of Robert E. Lee Junior High, Monroe, handles the lecture session on track Thursday. The track film to be shown features "World Record Holders."

L. J. Fontenot of OPHS, "Twin Cities Coach of the Year" in basketball, is the Thursday lecturer on that particular sport. The film that follows features Oklahoma State cage coach Hank Iba.

Friday afternoon activities are scheduled to begin with Benny Hollis of Neville lecturing on basketball, to be followed by Adolph Rupp of Kentucky fame on film.

Smokey Stover, linebacker for the Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League, discusses his specialty on the final day of the clinic. Also talking football at the Firday sessions will be Charley Brown of Neville and Leon Manley, defensive line coach at Northeast State.

On film will be John Vaught of Ole Miss and Darrell Royal of Texas.

Harper, Johnson Spark Reds' Win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tommy Harper and Deron Johnson each rapped two-run singles in a four-run fourth inning that propelled the National League leading Cincinnati Reds to a 9-8 victory over Milwaukee Saturday night.

The victory kept the Reds one-half game in front of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Joe Nuxhall needed eighth-inning relief help from Billy McCool, but picked up his third victory of the week in bringing his record to 5-2.

Nuxhall left after the Braves scored three of their five runs in the eighth, two on Hank Aaron's double. McCool immediately gave up a two-run homer to Mack Jones, but then retired the next two batters to end the rally.

The Reds trailed 3-2 going into the fourth, but scored four runs after loading the bases twice in the inning. Harper and Johnson stroked their singles off Bob Sadowski, who had relieved starter Wade Blasingame.

Cincinnati picked up three more runs in the sixth, with Tony Perez doubling home the run that proved decisive.

Felipe Alou clouted his 13th home run for the Braves in the third inning.

Louisiana Open

Amateur Champion Ties For Top Spot

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Louisiana amateur champion Shirley Picard, a detective captain on the Lafayette police force, tamed the Webb Memorial Park course with a seven-under-par 65 Saturday and pulled into a three-way tie after 36 holes of the Louisiana Open golf tourney.

Picard, seeking to become the first to win the state amateur and open crowns in the same year, was deadlocked with two young club pros at 134 — ten strokes under par for the 6,900-yard public course.

Dick Parvino of Morgan City and Tommy Morrow of Natchitoches each fired 68.

The first day leader, pro Cotton Hill of Shreveport, mushroomed to a 75. He had a 65 Friday to carry a one stroke lead over Morrow and Parvino into the second round.

Parvino, a stubby, freckled-faced shotmaker who is head pro at Morgan City's St. Mary County Club, blew two opportunities on the back nine to take sole possession of first place.

He three-putted two consecutive greens for bogeys, but recovered to close with birdies on 16 and 18 for his 68.

Morrow, who landed a job as head pro at the Natchitoches Club the day before coming here for this tourney, had a steady round highlighted by a 45-foot putt for a birdie on No. 6.

Parvino played for the University of Houston a decade ago and Morrow was at Louisiana State and played the Webb course daily when it was known as Westdale and owned by LSU. Morrow quit the PGA tour to take the Natchitoches post.

Picard credited his round to "a real good chipping. . . . one of them was a 70-footer that went into the hole." His card showed seven birdies with the remainder in regulation.

The threesome had a five-stroke lead over Don Bisplinghoff, who stood alone at 139. Bisplinghoff, 1952 national junior amateur champion and former University of Florida player, had a 68.

Although still a pro, Bisplinghoff now is in the real estate business at Covington.

The pros are shooting for $5,400 in prize money, put up by WBRZ-TV, sponsors of the tourney.

The tourney also will decide the championship of the Louisiana chapter of the PGA's southeastern section. Parvino, a native of Longview, Tex., and Morrow are chapter members and eligible for the extra purse of $1,000.

The most disheartened golfer after the second round was 22-year-old Frank Mackel, a slender New Orleans amateur, who shot a 68 for the first round, including a backside 30 which equalled the course record. It was a different story Saturday as he skyrocketed to an 84.

The 54-hole tourney ends today.

Richey Defeats Dennis Ralston In Tennis Match

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Stocky Cliff Richey of Dallas, ranked No. 11 in U.S. tennis, pulled off a major upset Saturday when he defeated Dennis Ralston, the nation's top amateur, in the semifinals of the Western Open Tournament 5-7, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2.

Richey will meet Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., in today's finals. Riessen, 10th ranked, defeated unseeded John Pickens of Tuscaloosa, Ala., 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

In women's singles semifinals Nancy Richey, older sister of Cliff and the nation's No. 1 woman player, defeated 16-year-old Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 6-1, 6-3.

Miss Richey will face Carole Caldwell Graebner, third ranked player from Beechwood, Ohio, in the finals. Mrs. Graebner stopped Julie Helman, defending champion from New York City, 6-2, 6-4.

Thomson Leaves Americans Bewildered Folowing Win

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Peter Thomson of Australia left Southport Saturday with the British Open Golf Championship in his pocket for the fifth time and a bunch of bewildered American power golfers wondering what happened over the Royal Birkdale links.

Thomson wound up the winner with 74-68-72-71—285 — seven under par for the 7,037 yard par 35-38—73 layout near the Irish Sea where the winds switch quickly and sunshine turns into rain in a moment.

Brian Huggett of Wales and Christie O'Connor of Ireland finished two shots behind Thomson and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina trailed by three shots in fourth place.

Tony Lema, the defending champion, from San Leandro, Calif., surrendered his crown with 68-72-75-74—289 for a fifth place tie after setting the pace in the first two rounds.

Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, the U.S. Masters champion, slumped to 73-71-77-73—294 for a tie for 12th place and Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., two-time winner of the British Open, finished 16th with 70-71-75-79—295.

Thomson's victory gave him a place in the four-man World Series at Akron, Ohio, in September — a $100,000 tournament that matches the U.S. and British open champions and U.S. Master's and PGA champions.

Gary Player of South Africa, the reigning U.S. Open champion, Nicklaus and Thomson now have qualified. The remaining place goes to the PGA champion.

Player pulled out of the British Open at the end of the third round because of a strained muscle in his neck.

"I'm going to play in the French Open," Thomson said. "Then I'm going home and returning here for the British PGA and Masters tournament."

He has no intention at the moment of playing the American circuit before the World Series. Thomson won over the same links in taking the 1954 title.

His knowledge of the weather conditions and control on the fast-running course were the decisive factors.

Thomson took a three wood off the tee half the time — the same as he did in winning eleven years ago. That know-how allied with some fine iron play gave him the championship.

Nicklaus explained his failure this way: "The course got faster and faster. The harder I hit the ball, the more carry it got and the less sure I was about where it would end up. "I like to be able to control the ball.

Palmer, only one stroke behind pace-setting Thomson at the end of three rounds and famous for his charging finishes, collapsed in the final round.

He commented: "I duck hooked drives at the first, second and fifth holes in the last round. Come to think of it, I've duck hooked drives all over the Birkdale course.

"I putted poorly. It was a constant struggle to get my game together. Even when I had got it, somehow it got away from me.

"I'm going to tell our Ryder Cup boys that they must drive straight here if they are going to do well in October."

The top pros from the United States and Britain meet in the Ryder Cup competition over the same Birkdale links in October.

Lema always was in there with a chance of retaining the crown.

But the hole that took some of the charge out of him was the 16th in the last round.

At that stage, he was only one behind Thomson in a dramatic duel. His putt popped in the hole and out again on that green. If it had stayed in then the two would have gone to the 17th all square. Thomson clinched with birdies on the last two holes.

Said Lema: "I tried to defend the title the best way I knew. I had my chances. But I missed them because my driving was not straight.

"This one is very much a driving course. You can't afford to keep whipping them into the rough."

Pittsburgh Asks Waivers On Smith

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said Saturday they have asked for waivers on Hal Smith, a Pirate coach who went on the active list July 1 after the club's three regular catchers were injured.

Infielder Jose Pagan, optioned to the club's Columbus, Ohio, farm to make room for Smith, has been recalled.

Smith caught four games and has been signed as a coach again, the club said. Smith was a major league catcher for several years before being sidelined by a heart ailment.

House Begins Gun Hearings

With Sam Hanna

CONNECTICUT OPPOSES DODD

In case you've lost track, the anti-gun legislation sponsored by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut is still alive in Congress. In fact, the fight has just begun.

Firearms bills will be heard by the House Ways & Means Committee chaired by Congressman Wilbur D. Mills beginning Monday. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenback, a backer of the Dodd bill, is scheduled to be one of the lead - off witnesses.

On the Senate side, hearings by the Senate subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency chaired by Dodd himself were recessed June 8th until further notice.

If you've forgotten, Dodd's bill is designed to curtail the freedom of purchasing firearms with restrictions aimed at keeping guns out of the hands of criminals — a desirable objective, but the wrong approach.

This is the bill that would lead to the eventual registration of all firearms.

On the subject, Judge Hilliard Comstock of Santa Rosa, Calif., opposing the Dodd bill, told Dodd's committee, "In my many years of experience as a trial judge handling civil, criminal, juvenile and other cases, I can recall no case where the registration or licensing of even a concealable handgun has been a significant aid in either the prevention or the solution of crime, or when a mail order gun could not have been as readily available to the criminal through local channels."

And one of the most interesting developments in the case of Dodd's battle is the fact that the Connecticut State Board of Fisheries and Game — in Dodd's home state — has gone on record against Dodd's legislation.

Connecticut Director Theodore B. Bampton said, "We feel that the provisions of this bill as they will apply to sportsmen and dealers in firearms and ammunition are unduly restrictive and would tend to impose unnecessary hardships on our law-abiding citizens."

We had wondered if Dodd had the backing of his people in Connecticut. Apparently he does not.

But Dodd does have the backing of President Johnson's administration, plus Sen. Robert Kennedy, a leader of liberals in his own right.

And that spells trouble for the people who would like to see Dodd's bill killed.

If you're one of those, don't let the opportunity slip by to notify Congressman Passman and Sens. Russell Long and Allen J. Ellender. Congressman Hale Boggs of New Orleans is on the Mills committee in the House where the bills will be heard.

Incidentially, there are about 300 gun bills in the current session.

Working hardships on innocent gun-owners won't prevent criminals from killing American presidents. Let's hope the Louisiana delegation knows that.

Sometimes we wonder.

FRIEND OF OUTDOORS

Aside from his other civic activities, Clark C. Boardman of Monroe was one of the early leaders in conservation circles around Ouachita Parish. He was still an active fisherman at the age of 77 until his death sometimes during his sleep Wednesday night.

Lake Bartholomew near Sterlington — where Mr. Boardman worked for many years — was his favorite spot. We used to refer to it in print as Dead Bayou, but Clark Boardman didn't like that and so advised us of the lake's proper name.

A member of the old Ouachita Game & Fish Commission, he played an active part in the supervision of the lakes around here under the jurisdiction of the commission. He also was active, along with the late O. N. McNeil, in the predecessor of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, the Monroe Sportsman's League.

And because of his love for Lake Bartholomew, Clark Boardman was one of the pushers from the very beginning of the project to channel water from Bayou Bartholomew via Lake Bartholomew into Bayou DeSiard. He attended the first meeting back in the early 1950's to discuss the project that today is a reality.

We remember a trip we made with him a few years ago in his old pet black Ford to Lake Bartholomew where he explained what could be done to improve the lake and Bayou DeSiard by pumping water from the bayou.

Mr. Boardman also was an early supporter of the clean-up of the Ouachita River, which he recognized for its worth to this area. Progress is being made in this field too.

Undoubtedly there are many other things Mr. Boardman did in the field of conservation. These are just a few that come to mind now.

There is one thing we should mention and that was Clark Boardman's determination to stay in there and pitch. On the morning before his death, he made his daily rounds in town. That afternoon he shot nine holes of golf and went home and went to bed.

Sometimes during the night the outdoors lost a friend.

EVENTS AT RANDOM

That group of birddog enthusiasts interested in organizing and amateur field trial had a good turn out last Wednesday night at the first meeting.

A committee was formed to locate grounds for a trial. Another meeting will be held August 4th — the time and place to be announced later.

At any rate co-chairmen Ronald Lee Davis and Larry Hudson report an encouraging amount of interest in the project. But they're still looking for more people interested in getting in on the trial.

We'll have more on that later. On another subject, over 8,000 permits have been mailed to hunters by the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission for the September teal season.

August 15th is the deadline for obtaining a permit. If you haven't, write the commission at 400 Royal Street in New Orleans.

And for those sportsmen who hunt in Arkansas, the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission will hold its annual summer public hearing July 19th at Little Rock.

Hunters and fishermen will be afforded a chance to speak their tunes before the commission sets the Arkansas seasons.

The Louisiana commission, which held its hearing last month, will set the sea-

LITTLE MAN'S CORNER

It was hot, but the fishing wasn't bad and the little men made news afield.

Out at Black Bayou the bream fishing has been good. James Givens landed 83 and Jim Lewis got 81. Limit catchers included Melvin Fortenberry and Butch Martin.

But down at Winnsboro, A. C. Duchesne went for bigger sport as he always does. A. C. entered the Deep Sea Rodeo down at Gulfport and placed second in the red snapper division with a snapper weighing 5-lb., 13-oz.

He informs us that Joe Hair Jr., the wildlife director originally from Winnsboro, placed second in the sail fish division with one that weighed 49-lb., 8-oz.

Around the area we are receiving reports of a world of doves. We've seen an unusually large number of doves for this time of the year.

Let's hope they stick around for early September. The season should be opening in less than two months.

Fishing at King's Dump continues to be good for bream. Jim Donnell of Winnsboro caught 35 big bream in about two hours.

Also from Winnsboro, Joe Gigilo caught the limit of bream in Lake St. John. Mr. and Mrs. Hulin Walker landed the limit there also.

W. W. Warren of Ferriday caught some white perch in the Blue Hole while Mr. and Mrs. Sam Moss of Ferriday and George Lee of Ferriday caught bass there trolling.

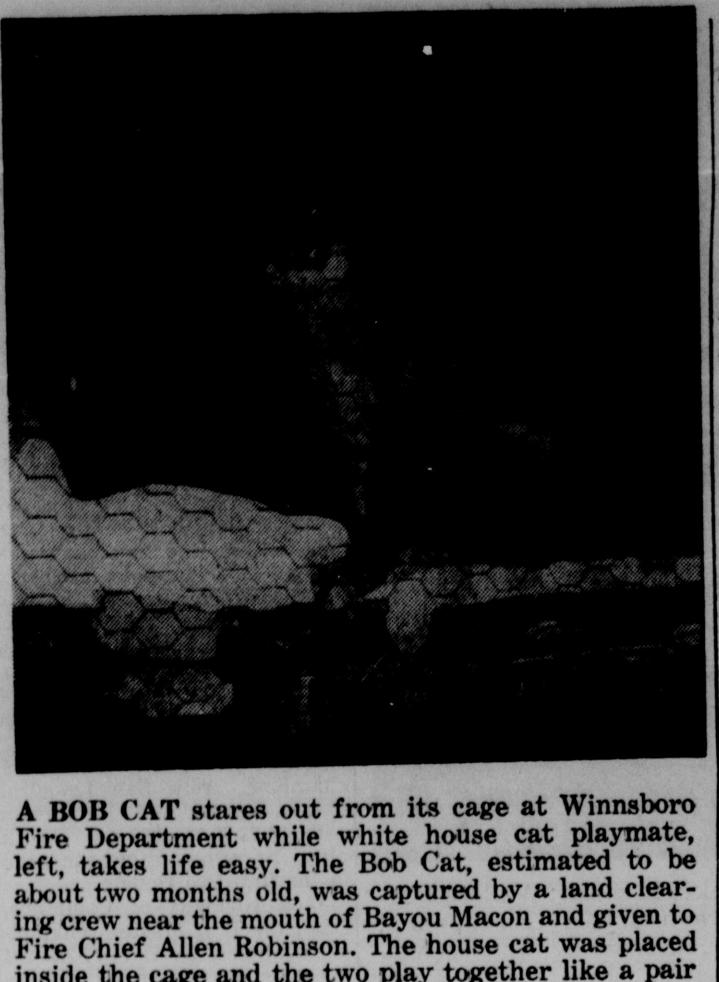
Up at Lake Providence, Vacel Razer caught eight bass at night. He was fishing with a Helldiver.

Concannon, King Hill Sign For '65

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterbacks Jack Concannon and King Hill have signed 1965 contracts with the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

Concannon, who starts his second year in the league, is about recovered from surgery for torn ankle ligaments he underwent six weeks ago. Hill, a seven year pro veteran, started three games last season and finished with 49 completions in 88 passes for 641 yards and three TDs.

Hill and Concannon will battle Norm Snead for the Eagles' quarterback post.



A BOB CAT stares out from its cage at Winnsboro Fire Department while white house cat playmate, left, takes life easy. The Bob Cat, estimated to be about two months old, was captured by a land clearing crew near the mouth of Bayou Macon and given to Fire Chief Allen Robinson. The house cat was placed inside the cage and the two play together like a pair of kittens. (Photo by Otis Hassell)

Pro Football Comes Amid Pennant Races

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The pro football seasons comes rushing into the midst of the baseball pennant races this week when the Cleveland Browns, defending champions in the National Football League, and a host of other teams in the NFL and the American Football League go to camp.

Coach Blanton Collier of the Browns will have his first look at the champ's new crop Monday at Hiram, Ohio. The veteran Browns, who upset the Baltimore Colts last December, will report Thursday.

Actually, the Los Angeles Rams will be the first to start training. The rookie Rams will check in with Coach Swede Sunday. The veterans are not due at the Orange, Calif. camp until July 26.

As many of the clubs will lose prize rookies to the All-Star game in Chicago, many coaches have issued an early call to get a quick look at the draftees before they move on to the All-Star camp. The Browns have to get cracking early because they play the College All-Stars Friday, Aug. 6.

The Dallas Cowboys, who have two prize rookie quarterbacks, Craig Morton of California and Jerry Rhome of Tulsa, will have the new men check in Tuesday. The bulk of the Cowboys do not have to show up at Thousand Oaks, Calif., until July 23.

Joe Namath, the New York Jets' $400,000 rookie from Alabama, has been testing his questionable right knee at Shea Stadium for a week, Namath and Johnny Huarte, Notre Dame's Heisman Trophy winner, reported to have been paid $200,000, will be at the Jets' camp in Peekskill, N.Y. Wednesday night ready for picture day Thursday. All hte Jets will be in camp by the end of the week.

In addition to the Jets, other AFL teams to open rookie camps during the week are Oakland at Santa Rosa, Calif., San Diego at Escondido, Calif., Denver at its new camp in Golden, Colo., Houston at Houston and Kansas City at Liberty, Mo. Boston and the defending champion Buffalo Bills will report the following week.

One of the most interesting early camps will be the New York Giants' gathering July 18 at Fairfield, Conn., because Allie Sherman hopes to resurrect a strong running game around such rookie backs as Tucker Frederickson, Ernie Koy, Bob Timberlake and Chuck Mercein.

The last NFL team to go to camp is Detroit with the rookie Lions due at Bloomfield Hills, Mich., July 27 and the veterans Aug. 2. Buffalo's starting date of July 23 at Blasdell, N.Y., is the latest starter in the AFL.

Harry Gilmer, who has succeeded George Wilson as coach of Detroit is the only new head coach in the NFL. Bones Taylor at Houston is the only new boss in the AFL.

Chicago Cubs Defeat Cards By 5-3 Count

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Ellsworth, supported by Don Kessinger's two-run triple and Ed Bailey's bases-empty homer, recorded his 10th victory Saturday as the Chicago Cubs defeated St. Louis 5-3.

Ellsworth, 10-4, held the world champions to a pair of singles until the sixth when they spoiled his shutout. He wound up with a seven-litter.

Carl Warwick, batting for starter Ray Washburn, led off the sixth with a double and after two outs went to third on Curt Flood's controversial hit to third baseman Ron Santo.

Santo speared the ball with his bare hand and rifled it to first, but Flood was called safe by umpire Tom Gorman. Ellsworth was so heated that his next pitch to Ken Boyer was wild, and Warwick scored.

The Cubs scored three times in the second. Santo doubled and came home when Dick Groat threw past first base on George Altman's grounder. A double by Bailey sent Altman to third, and both runners scored on Kessinger's triple to the left field wall.

Bailey's homer, his second of the season, came in the fourth.

Atlanta Mayor Proudly Gazes At New Stadium Each Morning

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Each morning just before 8 o'clock, Mayor Ivan Allen drives up to Atlanta's towering new stadium, stops his car and just gazes at this city's symbol of triumph.

Fifteen months ago, the ground on which the beautiful $18 million structure now stands was covered by rows and rows of slum housing.

Atlanta actually had no reason to build even the stadium, for it had no occupants, and the rent goes on regardless of whether the stadium is empty.

Despite this, the stadium was built, and in 1966 the Milwaukee Braves will make Atlanta their home, and the city will field a team in the National Football League. An NFL team was assured when the league sold a franchise to an Atlanta businessman, Rankin M. Smith.

"I have a standard line every time I speak about this stadium," the mayor said. "I tell everyone it was a sound investment except for three things: We built it on land we didn't own, with money we didn't have and for teams we had not signed."

The story of Atlanta's rise to a place of envy, and sometimes controversy, in the world of sports is indeed stranger than fiction. Allen believes the story is just beginning.

"Everyone involved with the stadium took a calculated risk — a great one — when we decided to build it, and I'd be less than truthful if I said I had not lost a lot of sleep over it.

"In fact, I've worn out two matresses on my bed just tossing and tumbling in my sleep during the past 15 months," Allen said.

"You can say I have had nothing but 24-hour days of anxious moments for the past 15 months," he said. "I didn't relax until 11:37 a.m. June 30 when the stadium authority signed that contract with the National Football League."

In reality, Atlanta is no different than any other boomtown. No magic was involved in bringing major league sports here.

From a city of 215,000 at the turn of the century, Atlanta has grown to its present estimated metropolitan population of 1,175,000 and is adding 31,500 people a year.

It is the city that has produced golf's great Bobby Jones, the late Joel Chandler Harris, creator of the lovable Uncle Remus, and Margaret Mitchell, who wrote the classic, "Gone with the Wind."

Atlanta has the largest percentage of Negro population of any large city in the country except Washington, D.C., yet it is relatively free from racial troubles. Twenty-two per cent of the metropolitan population is Negro, while 41 per cent of Atlanta proper is non-white.

Allen is confident Atlanta will have no race problems with integrated major league teams playing here. There are none with integrated minor league teams which play here now.

"We've always had good race relations here because Atlanta's Negro community is well educated and dedicated to this city," he said. "You don't see Negroes demonstrating in the streets because there is no reason to demonstrate. There is nothing wrong here.

"I know that all public accommodations in this city are integrated," he said.

"The attitude of the people in Atlanta, whether it is on the matter of race, business or whatever, is optimistic, aggressive, progressive and liberal," he said.

The story of Atlanta would not be complete without Mills B. Lane, a banker of unlimited wealth, who, without security, loaned the stadium authority $750,000 to get the plans for the stadium drawn up.

"Lane believed in Atlanta," Allen said. "The $750,000 was his personal money and, if the city and county had not voted the bonds necessary to build the stadium, he would have owned the most expensive set of unused architectural plans in the country.

"Needless to say, his faith was justified," the mayor said.

"We started seriously looking for a baseball team in the spring of 1963," Allen said. "We went to Joe Cronin (president of the American League), but he gave us no encouragement, telling us his league had no plans to expand.

"The man who gave us the encouragement we needed and who first recognized the great potential of Atlanta was Charlie Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics," the mayor said.

"We kept looking and finally entered into a gentleman's agreement with certain owners of the Milwaukee Braves," he said. "After this, we received feelers from several other teams, but we never considered them because we already had the agreement with Milwaukee."

Allen said he didn't care to say when the agreement was made, or to name the other teams that showed an interest in coming to Atlanta.

"The only additional thing I can say about this is the Milwaukee owners dealt with us with perfect integrity and complete humility at all times," he said.

"There is no way to measure how much money major league sports will bring into Atlanta, but it's way up in the hundreds of millions of dollars," he said.

The sports story of Atlanta continued as the mayor talked. Shortly before the interview, he learned that Atlanta will become a stop of the professional golf tour in 1966, with a $100,000 tournament to be played at the new Atlanta Country Club.

And, he already was talking of plans to dome the new stadium.

"You know, if this city can build that stadium and get major league baseball and football teams in just 15 months, there is nothing it can't do," he said. "We're just beginning."

Astros Clobber Warren Spahn, Beat Mets 10-1

NEW YORK (AP) — The Houston Astros kayoed aged left-hander Warren Spahn early Saturday and belted the New York Mets 10-1 wtih a 19-hit attack, giving them nine victories in 10 games with the National League tailenders this season.

Houston pinned the 44-year-old Spahn with his eighth straight loss and 11th of the year, routing him in the second inning of what might well be his last start as a Met.

The veteran southpaw, also the Mets' pitching coach, is expected to become a reliever after his repeated failures in the starting rotation.

Joe Morgan was the only long-range hitter in the Astro offense with a pair of homers off New York relievers. Lee Maye, Jim Wynn, Bob Lillis and Rusty Staub each had three of Houston's 17 singles.

Every Astro starter, including winning pitcher Dick Farrell, got a hit except Walt Bond, who walked twice and was hit by a pitch.

The Astros reached Spahn for four singles and a walk in the first inning, scoring three times, and chased him in the second, when the first two men singled.

Morgen's homers gave him seven in his last 10 games.

Farrell, a selection for Tuesday's All-Star game, went the first six innings. He allowed five hits, including Johnny Lewis' homer in the second.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Round Table, whose record for lifetime earnings was recently eclipsed by Kelso, is the only horse ever to be the leading money winner for two years. He led in 1957 and 1958.

Monroe Players For Dixie Senior Tourney Chosen

The Dixie Senior All-Stars chosen to represent Monroe in the 5th District Bi-District tournament to be held in Monroe beginning Monday July 19 have been announced by the Monroe Recreation Dept.

The team is as follows: Jay Eppinette, Skeeter Boyd, Alvin Parker, Skeeter Lasuzzo, and Stanley Lewis from Haddad Athletic Equipment Co., Kenny Cupples and Roy Holloway from Hill Lumber, Don Corbin, Lance Dreyer, and Ken Peters from Krauss & Cahn, Tom Brown and Ryan Rogers from Lakeshore Lions, Ray Youngblood and Charles Floyd from Finks, Jerry Howell of Clayton Gibson Carpet House, and Jimmy Vallery from Peoples Homestead. Named as an alternate was James Hale of Haddad.

The tournament will be held at Legion Stadium, with Monroe being the host team and competition coming from the Tri-Parish All-Stars and the Northeast All-Stars. The Monroe team will be managed by Dave McKenzie.

All of the above boys are asked to turn in their birth certificates at the Benoit Recreation Center Monday morning.

Ark-La Loop Schedule

BASTROP (Special) — Three games are on tap this afternoon in the Ark-La League. All tilts will start at 3 p.m.

The big game today pits second place Bastrop against Crossett at Crossett. Bastrop brings a 5-2 record into the contest while Crossett is 6-1.

Other games have Beekman at Bonita and Wilmont at Sterlington.

Russell Thankful But Uninterested

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fred Russell, nationally-known sports editor of The Nashville Banner, said Saturday he is not interested in being commissioner of the Southeastern Conference.

Russell was recommended to succeed Bernie Moore at a recent meeting in Atlanta of SEC university presidents and faculty chairman, it was reported.

The Braves beat the Mets eight times in nine games in Milwaukee in 1964.

Monroe Dixie League

Ryan Chevrolet exploded for five runs in the fourth inning and four more in the fifth to defeat First Fidelity 9 - 7 in a Monroe Dixie League affair Saturday. Finch and Newcomer had two hits each for Ryan. Bredlove and Benton had two each for the losers.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Keith H. Hootsell, 711 Bayou Shores Drive, Monroe, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Walker of Newellton. ,Upon return from a trip to Galveston, Texas the couple will be at home at 408 Beasley, Monroe.

At right: Engagement of Miss Martha Francess Kemp to Russell John Swan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Swan Sr. of New Orleans, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manning H. Kemp of West Monroe. The wedding is planned for September 4 at Nuptial Mass in St. Paschal's church, West Monroe. After a trip West the couple will return to the University of Iowa in Iowa City where they will complete work on their master's degrees.

Below: First Methodist Church Chapel in West Monroe was scene of the ceremony Saturday, July 10 uniting in marriage Miss Brenda Jo Younse and Preston Joseph Stelly. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Younse, 307 Arlington Place, West Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Stelly of Sulphur. The couple will be at home in Sulphur where he is employed and the bride is on the faculty at Maplewood Elementary School.

Above: Miss Mary Tilford Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Wright Jr., 305 Park Avenue, became the bride of George Pegram Smelser, Sterlington in a candlelight ceremony Thursday, July 8 at Grace Episcopal Church. The bridegroom is the son of the late Amos Smelser and the late Mrs. Frances Cole Smelser, Sterlington. Following a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Sterlington.

Below: Solemnized Saturday, July 10 in Ruston Presbyterian Church was the wedding of Miss Mary Kay Howard, daughter of Major and Mrs. Haylon R. Wood of Clay to Dwight Cruse Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cortez Anderson of Ruston. Mr. Anderson was graduated in June from Louisiana Tech where his bride will graduate in January.

Mary Tilford Wright, George Smelser Wed In Grace Episcopal Church

Miss Mary Tilford Wright became the bride of George Pegram Smelser Thursday evening, July 8 in Grace Episcopal Church. The Rev. Father W. Bradley Trimble officiated at the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Father John Robert Dodwell, the Rev. Father Richard Wilson and the Rev Father William Baldridge.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George William Wright Jr., 305 Park Ave., Monroe and Mr. Smelser is the son of the late Amos Smelser of Sterlington and the late Frances Cole Smelser.

On the high altar of the church, behind the cross, was a mass arrangement of all pink flowers including gladioli, stock, roses, asters, and chrysanthemums. Two smaller, similar bouquets stood on the chapel altar. A prenuptial concert was provided by Craig Chotard at the organ.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. Her dress was of palest blush pink organza over peau de soie. Alencon lace, appliqued on the closely fitted bodice, formed tiny cap sleeves. A panel of lace was appliqued around the skirt, which was styled with controlled fullness in front and flat pleats fanning into a full cathedral train. A crown of lace and seed pearls held her full-length veil of blush pink illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink phaelenopsis orchids and pink lilies of the valley.

Attending the bride were Miss Faye Cannon, maid of honor; Misses Susan Sherrouse, Amanda Cobb, Judy Swayze, Arden Anders, Judy Searcy, Sally Ensminger, Paula Perry, bridesmaids and Miss Anne Thomas of Louisville, Ky., junior bridesmaid. They wore identical floor-length dresses of shell pink cloud silk peau with scoop necklines and cap sleeves. The skirts were embellished with bands of white Swiss embroidered organdy, caught by pink rosebuds. Their headdresses were tiny hats of pink peau ruffles with velvet back streamers. They carried Southern colonial bouquets of pink Lovelight roses.

Miss Frances Hunt Wright, sister of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was street-length, in style similar to the bridesmaids'. Her bouquet was a miniature of pink Lovelight roses.

Jerry Mehl served as Mr. Smelser's best man. Groomsmen-ushers were John Blackman, Cole Fournoy of Shreveport, Robert McSherry, Mike Haddad, George Wright III, Hardeman Cordell, Shove Holmes of Winnfield, Paul Aron, and Jimmy Tarrance.

Mrs. Wright wore for her daughter's wedding a floor-length sheath of shell pink chiffon, the bodice embroidered in square paillettes and crystals. Her headdress was a whimsy of pink flowers and veiling and her corsage of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Jack Hays, aunt of the groom, chose pale blue, a textured silk skirt with lace bodice. She wore a headdress of veiling with a blue bow and a corsage of pink cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. George Wright Sr., grandmother of the bride, was attired in full-length orchid chiffon with cowl neckline and elbow length sleeves. Her corsage was a lavender cymbidium. The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Reese Major, wore beige lace with green accessories and a corsage of green cymbidium orchids.

RECEPTION

Following the church service, a reception was held at Bayou DeSiard country club, where all pink flowers were used in decorations. Before the long mirror in the foyer was a cupid epergne holding pink gladioli, peonies, stock, and roses. The guest book was placed on a table covered with a pink cloth and centered with a small cupid holding pink roses and asters. Miss Elaine Spencer and Miss Mary Alice Echols invited guests to register.

Forming a background for the receiving line was a pedestal holding a branched container with a fan-shaped arrangement of pink gladioli and peonies. Visible outside the long widows of the club ballroom was a candle tree with votive lights placed in branches of magnolia foliage.

The long refreshment table, covered with pink satin, held a silver punch bowl at each end. Cupid candelabra with burning pink tapers flanked the centerpiece, a massive bowl filled with pink stock, peonies, and roses. A cupid holding a cascade of pink peonies, asters and chrysanthemums stood in the center of the bowl.

Punch was served by Mrs. Edmund Brown, Mrs. C. D. Oakley Jr., Mrs. Carl McHenry, Mrs. James Wade, Mrs. Morgan Simonton, and Mrs. Jack Taylor. Mrs. Henry Biedenharn, Jr., Mrs. Betty Echols, and Mrs. William Carroll cut the cake.

Others who assisted with courtesies were Mrs. Mabel Ratliff, Jackie Ratliff, Miss Betsy Taylor, Miss Janet Moses, Miss Paula Moreland, Miss Karen Crow, Mrs. James W. Moore, Miss Frances Flournoy of Shreveport, Miss Kathy McSherry, Mrs. Perry Smith of Columbia.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans and Point Clear, Alabama, Mrs. Smelser was wearing a suit of yellow linen, with blouse of chiffon in a paler yellow shade. She wore a hat of pleated white organdy and other accessories of white. Her corsage was a yellow-throated white orchid.

Both are graduates of Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State college. They will make their home at Glendora plantation, Sterlington.

Martha Kemp Betrothed To Russell John Swan

Mr. and Mrs. Manning H. Kemp of West Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha Francess to Russell John Swan. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Swan Sr. of New Orleans.

The double ring ceremony will be solemnized at a Nuptial mass on September 4 at 10 a.m. in St. Paschal's Church, West Monroe, with the Rev. Vitus Duschinsky officiating.

Miss Kemp is a graduate of West Monroe high school and received her BA degree in Art from Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Kappa Pi art fraternity, Northeast Honor Society and is listed in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. A. J. Moore Sr. and the late Mr. Moore of Alexandria and A. A. Kemp and the late Mrs. Kemp of Monroe.

The prospective bridegroom received his BA degree from Tulane University and is a member of Sigma Delta Chi Journalism fraternity and the Society of Technical Writers. Mr. Swan is a research assistant in the School of Journalism at the University of Iowa and is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. John B. Swan and the late Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Santalucito, all of New Orleans.

After a wedding trip through the West the couple will return to the University of Iowa in Iowa City where they will complete work on their Master's degrees.

Serving the bride as maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Barbara Jean Kemp and chosen as bridesmaids are Miss Mary Ann Clouatre, Miss Donna Sue Humphries and Miss Jocelyn Brady, all of West Monroe. Flower girl will be Miss Elizabeth Ward of Alexandria cousin of the bride-elect. Phillip F. Swan Jr. will attend his brother as best man and groomsmen will be James Frederick of Covington and Robert and Thomas Kemp, brothers of the bride-to-be.

New Pot Cuts Coffee Buying

MALDEN, Mass. (UPI)—New coffee pot makes twice as much coffee per pound as the conventional percolator, the inventor reports.

It was invented and patented by Guido DellaPiana, owner of a cleaning store, who says it has reduced coffee buying in his home from four to less than two pounds per week.

The ordinary percolator sends water up and down, with the water soaking through the coffee grounds to produce the coffee to drink.

In DellaPiana's coffeemaker, which can be adapted to fit inside any coffee pot, the grounds are agitated from side to side by water pressure. Thus the essence of the coffee grounds is extracted directly.

In contrast, says DellaPiana, the common percolator has a basket, and when water drips through the grounds, it tends to pack them together so that many particles are never touched by the water.

MISS TEDDY LEE DIXON

Teddy Lee Dixon To Wed Frank Varino In August

An August bride - elect is Miss Teddy Lee Dixon, whose engagement to Frank Richard Varino is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Havens Griffith, 1607 Emerson. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Varino, 1717 South Grand, all of Monroe.

The wedding is planned for August 28 at 10 a.m. in Jesus the Good Shepherd Church with The Rev. Dave Dabria officiating.

Miss Billie Sue Dixon and Mrs. Ralph E. Roberts, sisters of the bride-elect, have been chosen as maid and matron of honor, respectively. Flower girl will be Miss Janice Lynn Russo, niece of the future groom.

Andrew Varino will attend his brother as best man and chosen as groomsman is Ralph E. Roberts. Ushers will be Raymond Varino, cousin of the future groom and James L. Peters.

Miss Dixon is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Dickerson of Arkansas and the late Mr. and Mrs. Karl S. Dixon of Monroe. She graduated from Neville high school and is a 1965 graduate of Northeast Louisiana State College, with a B.S. degree in secretarial science. Her sorority is Phi Mu.

Grandparents of Mr. Varino are Mrs. Frank C. Varino and the late Mr. Varino and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bruscato, all of Monroe. A graduate of St. Matthew's high school, and of business college, he is presently attending Northeast, majoring in business administration.

Sandra Kay Hodge Bride Of Victor N. Davis Jr.

Solemnized in Grace Episcopal Church, Monroe on Friday, July 2 was the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Sandra Kay Hodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Taylor Hodge of Farmerville and Victor Nathan Davis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Nathan Davis, 2019 Pargoud Blvd., Monroe.

The Rev. William E. Baldridge performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. with organ music rendered by Mrs. W. Bradley Trimble.

Arrangements of white California gladioli, majestics, asters, pompon chrysanthemums and white caladium foliage were banked behind the cross on the high altar with similar arrangements decorating the chapel altar. Office lights and burning tapers in seven branched candelabra completed the setting.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a street length gown of white peau de soie with overskirt of pleated silk net. The fitted bodice was styled with a round neckline and long full sleeves of the silk net. A coronet of seed pearl leaves held her short circular veil of illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of white bride's roses centered with a white cattleya orchid. The bride wore an antique heirloom crown brooch of seed pearls which had been worn by Davis brides for four generations and a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom, which he acquired during a tour of duty in the Pacific Theatre.

Mrs. Bob Aubry Howard attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a lemon slik costume suit with matching shoes, small white hat and white gloves. Her colonial bouquet was of white Marguerite daisies.

Serving as best man was Glynn Wayne Savage and ushers were Bob Aubry Howard and David Trousdale. John Stubbs was acolyte.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Hodge wore a beige linen model with matching hat and other accessories of white. Mrs. Davis, mother of the groom, wore a blue silk suit with matching shoes, small hat of variegated blue straw flowers and white gloves.

The Parish House of the church was scene of the reception which followed the exchange of vows. The bride's table which centered the room, was overlaid with an organdy cloth and garlanded with boxwood roping. At one end of the table a white ceramic epergne held an arrangement of white stock, roses and Pencil calla lilies and opposite was the tiered wedding cake decorated with white roses and topped with wedding bells.

Serving courtesies at the reception were in charge of Mrs. O. Wharton Brown, Mrs. James D. Sparks, Mrs. William King Stubbs and Mrs. J. G. Durrett Sr.

The couple left following the reception for Louisville, Kentucky where they will be at home. For travel the bride wore a yellow linen suit with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mr. Davis is a sergeant in the United States Army presently stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he is an instructor in the armor school.

Take Guesswork Out Of Cooking

URBANA, Ill. (UPI) —Mrs. Frances LaFont, food specialist, University of Illinois, says charts listing the required number of minutes per pound for cooking meat are not completely reliable.

"The meat thermometer is the only accurate guide to the internal temperature of the meat and the degrees of doneness," she said.

The internal temperatures and the stages of doneness for tender beef roasts are: rare, 140 degrees; medium-rare, 160 degrees; and well done, 176 degrees (F).

"Remember that thick roasts will continue to cook in the center after they have been removed from the oven," Mrs. LaFont said.

Accessories Complete Fall Ensemble Look

For fall designers are busy putting things together, and that kind of ensemble look means that accessories are important.

The aim is individuality, so shopping accessories departments can mean putting together your own jackets and skirts for a custom look. Try a shirttail jacket, for instance, in camel hair with borders of wool fringe.

Scarves, of course, have never been bigger. Every suit must have a bright scarf, every hat is a draped scarf — and many of them are in op art prints.

Jewelry is very elegant, with antique and Oriental looks dominating. They are worn a piece or so at a time, in colors to accent costume tones.

Jimmy Hathaway will serve his brother as best man and named as groomsmen-ushers are Chesley Rockett, Randy Alexander, Jonesboro and Glenn Jordan of Ruston.

Brenda Younse Becomes Bride Of Preston Stelly

First Methodist Church Chapel, West Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Saturday, July 10 which united in marriage Miss Brenda Jo Younse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adolph Younse, 307 Arlington Place, West Monroe, and Preston Joseph Stelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus Stelly of Sulphur.

Pyramid candelabra entwined with jewel fern formed a background for the altar which was centered with an arrangement of white stock and peonies in a milk glass compote. Rev. Don Wineinger, chaplain, Glenwood Hospital, performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Dave N. Norris, was organist and accompanied Mr. Norris, who sang traditional nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of white peau de soie with semi-belled princess skirt. The Empire bodice of re-embroidered Alencon lace, featured a portrait neckline and short scalloped sleeves. A flat bow of peau de soie marked the Empire and lace appliques were repeated on the detachable watteau train. Her elbow length veil of French illusion was attached to a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a colonial nosegay of Frenched carnations centered with a white orchid, atop a white satin-covered Bible.

Wearing a floor length gown of pale aqua crepe with Empire waistline accented with matching satin bow was the maid of honor, Miss Priscilla Thompson. Her headpiece was a matching satin bow with maline tulle veil and she carried a nosegay of white carnations with tulle.

Candlelighters were Miss Susan Younse, sister of the bride, and Miss Sandra Ward. They wore floor length Empire gowns of pale aqua organza over crystal peau with sashes of self material. Bows of aqua organza formed their headpieces and they wore wrist corsages of white carnations.

Louis Wayne Hoffpauir served as best man and ushers were Thomas Adolph Younse Jr., brother of the bride and Herbert Cooke Jr., her cousin.

A reception followed in the church reception hall. Mrs. Younse, mother of the bride, was wearing for the occasion a fitted gown of pale pink silk with tucked chiffon bodice and matching accessories. The groom's mother wore a model of blue lace over taffeta with matching accessories and both wore corsages of white butterfly roses.

The bride's table, covered with white net over white satin, adorned with satin bows, was centered with a silver branched candelabra holding white butterfly roses and miniature chrysanthemums. The silver punch bowl was placed opposite the bride's cake. Groom's cake and coffee were served from a table covered with an embroidered linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of leatherleaf fern around a crystal candelabra. A memory candle was used on the guest book table which was presided oved by Miss Jane Brimberry.

Mrs. J. Norman Coon Jr. and Mrs. Earl Brimberry served the bride's cake and Miss Ann Bell served the groom's cake.

Presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. B. J. Daniel and Mrs. J. G. Moses and alternating at the coffee service were Mrs. Herbert Cooke and Mrs. Audrey Roberts.

Assisting in courtesies were Mrs. Garland Webb, Mrs. Jimmy Burks, Mrs. William Schroder and distributing rice bags were Susan Younse and Sandra Ward.

For a wedding trip to Colorado the bride changed into a blue suit with silk organza blouse, matching organza hat and blue linen shoes. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet. The couple will be at home in Sulphur where Mr. Stelly is employed and the bride is on the faculty of Maplewood Elementary School. She is a graduate of West Monroe high school and of Northeast Louisiana State College and a member of Phi Mu social sorority. Mr. Stelly graduated from Sulphur high school and attended McNeese State College.

ENGAGEMENT of Miss Jeanie Brice to David Harrison is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Brice, 1312 Forsythe Ave. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Barksdale Harrison, Bon Aire Drive, Monroe. The wedding is planned for mid-August.

Walker-Hootsell Wedding Is Double Ring Ceremony

Yellow tapers in candle trees and bouquets of yellow and white gladioli adorning the altar set the theme for the wedding Friday, July 9 of Miss Sandra Kay Hootsell and Bobby Dixon Walker, both of this city, which was solemnized in St. Mark's Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Hootsell, 711 Bayou Shores Drive, Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Walker of Newellton.

Greenery entwined the altar rail to complete the setting for the 7 p.m. double ring ceremony performed by Rev. James O. Evans. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Phillip Kulcke, organist and Larry Kulcke, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white satin with chapel train extending from a back bustle. The bodice, covered with Chantilly lace was styled with rounded neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her full length veil was held in place by a brown of pearls and tear drops. She carrieda satin and lace fan centered with a large white orchid, showered with fleur d'amour and greenery.

Carrying out the yellow and white theme of the wedding were the bride's attendants, Miss Jo Henson, maid of honor and Miss Susan Benton and Mrs. Gretchen Hamel, bridesmaids, dressed in floor length gowns of lemon yellow peau de soie. Their gowns were styled with round necklines, elbow sleeves and belled skirts. Self fabric roses with veils sprinkled with pearls and tiny yellow bows formed their headdresses and they carried lace fans covered in small yellow and white daisies.

Herschel Walker attended his brother as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Jim Dimos and Freddie Hamel. Greg Walker, nephew of the groom, acted as ring bearer.

Mrs. Hootsell chose for her daughter's wedding a pale blue eyelet sheath with floating eyelet panels, white accessories blue hat and a white orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a beige eyelet dress with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the social room of the church where the bride's table was centered with a triple candelbra holding lighted yellow candles, encircled with yellow and white daisy bouquets. Mrs. Carolyn Nelson and Mrs. Bill Davis presided at the cake and punch bowl and Miss Ann Grafton was in charge of the bride's book.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Galveston, Texas, the bride was wearing a blue suit with white accessories and the orchid corsage from her bouquet. They will be at home on their return at 408 Beasley, Monroe.

A graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, the bride is presently a junior at Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Walker is a graduate of Holly Ridge high school and of Northeast where he was a member of Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity.

Thomas Miller Claims Bride

MRS. ROBERT TAYLOR BELMONT JR.

Belmont-Roberts Vows Read In Fatima Church

Our Lady of Fatima Catholic Church was scene of the ceremony Saturday, July 3 in which Miss Dovie Roberts, daughter of Mrs. Lena Roberts, 3810 Webster St., Monroe, became the bride of Robert Taylor Belmont Jr., Huntsville, Ala. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Thurla Belmont, 211 Monroe Drive, City and Robert T. Belmont of Riverside, Calif.

The Rev. George Martinez performed the double ring ceremony at 1 p.m. with traditional wedding music by Mrs. Della Williamson, organist and Mrs. Waymon Etier, soloist.

The main altar was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli, agapanthus, Majestic daisies and Fuji chrysanthemums in gold altar vases. On either side of the altar gold standards held similar arrangements as did the side altars.

Escorted by her brother, Hilton Roberts Jr., who gave her in marriage, the bride was wearing a gown of white peau de soie with Alencon lace bodice, styled with short sleeves and scalloped neckline. The full cathedral train extended from the empire waist of the sheath skirt. Her bouffant veil of imported illusion was attached to a cluster of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, stephanotis blossoms and a white cattleya orchid.

Miss Carmela Sampognaro, who served as maid of honor, wore a sleeveless gown of light turquoise satin with square neckline and ankle - length A-line skirt. She wore matching satin slippers and a headdress of self fabric bows encircled with illusion net. Bridesmaids, Miss Billie Porter, Miss Becky Parkerson, Miss Judy McDonough and Miss Jo Ann Belmont, sister of the groom, were dressed identically to the honor attendant in gowns of frosted turquoise satin, matching headdresses and shoes. The attendents carried cascade bouquets of champagne carnations accented with golden lace.

Serving as best man for his cousin was Gene Garrett of Huntsville, Ala. Ushers were Ray Thomas, Fred Theriot, Mac Ward, James Bradburry, Vincent Sampognaro, Billy Miley and Gary Licht. Candles were lighted by Charles Sampognaro and Michael LaCara.

For the occasion Mrs. Roberts was wearing a blue lace sheath with flowered cloche hat, blue shoes and white accessories. Her corsage was of cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue gray lace sheath with bolero jacket, gray accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. V. J. Sampognaro, 4002 Deborah Drive! Guests registered at a desk which held a white and silver wedding candle, adorned with white bride's roses and lily of the Nile blossoms.

The refreshment table in the dining room was covered with a linen cutwork cloth and centered with an antique white and gold cupid epergne holding a Victorian arrangement of white roses, calla lilies and agapanthus. At opposite ends of the table were the silver coffee service and punch bowl. A brass and cut glass epergne on the buffet held a matching floral arrangement and pastel-shaded mints.

A round table which held the bride's cake was covered with white organdy and garlanded with orange blossoms and miniature ivy. Mrs. Claude Hughes and daughters, Allise and Harriet served the wedding cake and serving punch were Misses Linda Faye Smith, Marie Sampognaro and Mary Farley. Mrs. W. A. Farley presided at the bride's book.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip through Mississippi en route to their home in Huntsville, Ala., the bride was wearing a gray, white and gold ensemble with white accessories. Mrs. Belmont graduated from Neville high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The groom graduated from Riverside Polytechnic high school in Riverside, Calif., and attended Northeast.

Furs For Fall On The Upbeat

Designers of furs for next fall continue to accent the Go - Go beat in novelty furs and rocketing styles. The Short, geometric body line is new in coats, obviously meant to be worn with slim, calf-height boots.

Dresses and suits take new impetus from the rising popularity of broadtail, black, white and pearl - gray, but they are also made in jaguar, otter and Lakoda, that sheared Alaskan fur seal.

The status fur for fall and winter will be the fur evening gown, in white mink or ermine, sleeveless and low - backed, or worn like a jumper with a satin blouse, big - sleeved, for less formal occasions.

WILD PRINTS

Intense colors and wild prints are brightening the sports and swimwear fashion scene this summer and the smartest counterpoints of color of the season are the California-inspired bronze and golden tans showing up on the nation's cult of sunworshipers.

MISS MARILYNN GAY FRANTOM

Announcement Tea Fetes Marilynn Frantom, To Be Bride Of Wynn Jefferson

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Marilynn Gay Frantom, West Monroe and T. Wynn Jefferson, Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Frantom Jr., Shreveport, formerly of West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. T. R. Jefferson, 814 K Street, Monroe, and the late Mr. Jefferson.

Vows will be exchanged on Sunday, August 8 at 3 p.m. in Claiborne Methodist Church, West Monroe. Rev. Lamont C. Rouse will officiate.

Wedding plans were revealed at an announcement tea Saturday, July 10 at Highland Park Country Club. Hostesses for the occasion were Miss Marguerite Norris, Mrs. Matilda Collins, Mrs. J. D. Purvis, Mrs. William Norris Jr., Mrs. Jesse Norris, Mrs. E. S. Roark, Mrs. Max Wilbanks and Mrs. Donald Logan.

Guests who called during the appointed hours of 3 until 5 p.m. were received by Mrs. Purvis, the honoree, her mother and the mother of her fiance. For her party Miss Frantom was wearing a two-piece dress of beige silk with complementary accessories.

A green and white theme was carried out in the appointments for the refreshment table which was centered with an arrangement of magnolias and foliage. Alternating at the coffee and punch services were Mrs. J. S. Antley, Mrs. Don Cannon, Mrs. James Hines, Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, and Mrs. Bob Parks. Approximately 150 guests called during the afternoon.

Miss Frantom has chosen Miss Ellen Walker to serve as maid of honor. Matron of honor will be her sister, Mrs. Joseph Kvaternik, and bridesmaids will be Miss Lila Jefferson, sister of the future bridegroom and Miss Laurie Kvaternik, niece of the bride-to-be.

Fred C. Culpepper III has been named to serve as best man by Mr. Jefferson and chosen as ushers are Mike Boykin, Steve Jefferson, brother of the prospective groom; Richard Greene, Marvin Jordan and Raymond Winn.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. V. Feduccia and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Frantom Sr. She graduated from West Monroe high school and will receive her B.A. in education from Northeast Louisiana State College at graduation July 31. She is a member of Student Louisiana Teachers Association, Women's Residence Council and president of Monroe Hall.

Grandparents of Mr. Jefferson are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Moak and Mrs. T. T. Jefferson. A graduate of Neville high school, he received his B.S. in business administration and will receive the master of business administration at Northeast Louisiana State College in January. Mr. Jefferson is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Student Government Association, Scabbard and Blade and Pershing Rifles.

Following their marriage the couple will reside in Monroe.

MISS JUDY CAROL COOPER

Crossett Church Scene Of Watzek-Nutt Nuptials

The First Baptist Church of Crossett was the setting for the wedding Saturday, July 10 at 7:30 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Cheryl Ann Nutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Nutt and John Aubrey Watzek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kicke Watzek, of Greenville, Mississippi.

Rev. B. G. Hickem performed the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with smilax and burning white tapers. A prenuptial organ concert was provided by Mrs. James C. Rochester Jr.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a floor length gown of delustered satin fashioned with fitted bodice, scooped neckline and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. Hand-run Alencon lace motifs encircled the neckline and extended down front of the A-line skirt. A full court train, also embellished with lace appliques, fell from a bow at the Empire waistline. Her bouffant veil of French illusion fell from a crown of peau d'ange lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a white orchid. An embroidered linen handkerchief which the grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Clarence Tubbs, had carried at her wedding, was tucked into the bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Garth Dean Nix of Memphis, Tennessee, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Wells Edward Nutt of Savannah, Georgia; Mrs. Franklin Whitner Chase Jr., sister of the groom, Windermere, Florida; Miss Karan Louise Lindhorst of Memphis and Miss Rebecca Ann Easterling of Crossett. They were identically dressed in floor length gowns of pale yellow crepe, designed with fitted basques, scoop necklines and Dior sleeves. Folds of Island green satin accented the Empire waistlines. They wore yellow Dior bows with matching illusion veils and carried baskets of shasta daisies.

James Patrick Frey of Hollandale, Mississippi, attended Mr. Watzek as best man. Ushers were Wells Nutt, Savannah, Ga., brother of the bride; Garth Dean Nix of Memphis; Franklin Whitner Chase Jr., Windermere, Fla., and Fred Walter Kersten of Hamburg.

A reception was held following the ceremony in Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white roses and lily of the valley in a silver bowl. White candles burned in a branched silver candelabum. Miss Elissa Ellington of Pascagoula, Miss., presided at the punch bowl and Miss Janet Roberts of North Little Rock, served the cake. Miss Pamela Wells, of Oklahoma City, cousin of the bride, was at the guest book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at 749 Carol Marie Drive, Baton Rouge, where both will attend Louisiana State University.

MRS. BILLY MINT MAGEE

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Couple In Gilbert

Vows uniting in marriage Miss Florence Aline McLemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. McLemore of Gilbert and Billy Mint Magee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Magee of Winnsboro, were solemnized Saturday, July 3 in a 6 p.m. ceremony at Gilbert First Baptist Church.

Fan shaped arrangements of white gladioli and branched candelabra holding white tapers formed a background setting for the ivy covered arch where the couple exchanged vows. The Rev. Fred Guilbert performed the double ring ceremony.

A prenuptial piano prelude was presented by Mrs. Claude Sewell, who also accompanied the soloist, Miss Carolyn Womack. Candles were lighted by Misses Pat and Janice Stephens of Baton Rouge, nieces of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white organza over satin and net with scalloped neckline, fitted bodice and long sleeves tapered to points on the hands. The full skirt featured a front panel of Chantilly lace and two oval tiers of organza trimmed with scalloped Alencon lace extending into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of white illusion fell from a white satin rose adorned in tiny white pearls that rested on her forehead. She carried a cascade of feathered carnations centered with a white orchid. Her only jewelry was a pearl drop necklace, a gift of the groom.

Miss Gail McLemore attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of pale yellow brocade with a matching Dior bow and carried a bouquet of feathered chrysanthemums tied with yellow and green streams. Flower girl, Kimberly Elise Turner, niece of the bride, wore a floor length model of pale yellow and carried a miniature basket of white chrysanthemums. Her wrist corsage was of feathered carnations.

Sonny Head attended the groom as best man and ushers were James Richard Doughty and Jerry Thomas. Ring bearer was Dean Seffens, nephew of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McLemore chose a blue floral design with matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Magee, mother of the groom, was wearing a light blue sheath with matching accessories and white carnation corsage.

A reception followed in the church social room where the yellow and green theme was carried out in appointments. Covered with a yellow linen and lace cloth the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white daisies and yellow gladioli. The tiered cake and punch was served from opposite ends of the table by Mrs. Maurice McLemore, aunt of the bride, assisted by Jan Killian, Brenda Hopkins and Sue Carroll. Presiding at the guest book was Mary Cleo Saxon, sister of the groom.

For a wedding trip the bride wore a white lace ensemble with matching accessories and a white orchid from her bouquet. The bride is a recent graduate of Gilbert high school. Mr. Magee was graduated from Winnsboro high school and attended Louisiana Tech.

Bailey-Wroten Nuptials Read In Winnfield

Miss Jane Louise Wroten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Wroten Sr., of Winnfield became the bride of Wallace Norman Bailey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Bailey of Texarkana, Arkansas in a ceremony June 26 in First Methodist Church, Winnfield.

Rev. O. P. Bazer of Trinity Heights Baptist Church, Shreveport, performed the double ring ceremony following music by Mrs. Carrie Maude Lohman, organist and a trio composed of Mrs. Rose M. Dougand, Mrs. Billie Endsley and Mrs. Earline Elkins, all of Texarkana.

Candelabra flanked a prie dieu in the center of the altar with arrangements of white gladioli and pompons completing the setting.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta fashioned with Empire waistline, elbow sleeves and sheath skirt. The neckline featured a rolled collar embroidered with roses to which her floor length train was attached. Her fingertip veil of illusion was held in place by a silk organza rose and she carried a bouquet of lily of the valley centered with a cymbidium orchid atop a white Bible.

Miss Janine Robert of Winnfield was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Ann Evans of Winnfield and Mrs. John Cadenhead of Baton Rouge. Their sleeveless, floor length gowns of aqua silk organza were designed with slightly flared skirts and square necklines. Aqua silk organza roses formed their headpieces and each carried a long-stemmed pink rose.

Jimmy Warren of Bastrop served as best man and groomsmen were Charles Park of Springhill and Jimmy Brown of Bastrop. Ushers were Jonathan Cook, New Orleans; Lt. John W. Wroten Jr., brother of the bride; Billy Brassell, her cousin, Mineral Wells, Texas and Jimmy Montgomery of Springhill.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pink silk crepe with matching hat, white accessories and a cymbidium orchid. The groom's mother wore a blue ensemble and an orchid corsage.

A reception followed in Fellowship hall of the church where the bride's table, covered with a white cloth was centered with an arrangement of white roses, stock and chrysanthemums with the silver coffee service and punch bowl at opposite ends.

MRS. WALLACE NORMAN BAILEY

PANT-DRESS

You didn't ask for it. But you can have it — the pantdress. Designer Bill Smith, of Roban Sport, offers several for wearing at "in" places. Sample: A bodice of sheer off-white wool, sans sleeves. The pants attached are like knickers to the knee and then become tight to the ankle — like leggings.

Designer Sticks To Knitting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jeannie Heller knows her needles and knows a good yarn when she sees it — as one might expect of a knitwear designer.

But she also knows machinery and finds that just as helpful as needles and yarns in her career.

She brings to the mill skeins of yarn which she has twisted together into the color combinations she wants, and then, experimenting on the machine herself, she will try to achieve the knit design she has in mind.

On many occasions, she spends five or six days working the factory knitting machine. But when she finishes she knows the sweater can be duplicated in the mill quickly and successfully.

Mrs. Heller travels around the world for three months of the year, looking for ideas. Then she spends a month in the U. S. in consultation with Chemstrand Corp., which makes Acrilan, the fibre with which she works.

MISS JANE RUTH McKIBBENS

Mary Kay Howard Weds Ruston Man Saturday

An arrangement of all white gladioli, stock, majestic daisies and ivy flanked by seven-branched candelabra formed a background setting in Ruston Presbyterian church Saturday, July 10 for the wedding of Miss Mary Kay Howard and Dwight Cruse Anderson. Rev. J. W. Lipscomb performed the double ring ceremony at 6 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Major and Mrs. Haylon R. Wood of Clay and Mr. Anderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cortez Anderson, Ruston.

Appropriate music was provided by Mrs. Gray Allison, organist and Noxie Taylor, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, James W. Kavanaugh of Ruston. Her gown of peau de soie was styled with bell shaped skirt and a chapel train extending from a bow at the back waistline. The bodice, overlaid with Alencon lace, embroidered with seed pearls, was styled with scalloped neckline and long tapered sleeves. A crown of seed pearls and lace held her elbow length veil of illusion. She carried a crescent bouquet of stephanotis, fleur d'amour and ivy centered with a white orchid.

Miss Mary Nell Dennig, Ferriday, was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Sandra McCrory, Baton Rouge; Jackie Stevenson, Alexandria; Beth Young and Margie Hays, both of Ruston and Mrs. Earl Wright, Fayetteville, Ark. They wore identical gowns of Nile green Irish linen in floor length with scalloped elbow sleeves and bodices overlaid with white lace. Matching open crown pillbox hats and Nile green slippers completed their costumes and they carried cascades of white daisies entwined with ivy and satin streamers.

Flower girl, Miss Toni Brown of Minden, niece of the bride, wore a floor length dress of Nile green with white lace bodice and carried a basket of daisies.

Mr. Anderson attended his son as best man and serving as groomsmen were Van Max Hays, R. B. Williams, Clayton Barnes, all of Ruston; Ray Adcock and Dewell Ray Gandy, Baton Rouge. Ushers were Jerry Hood and Larry Taylor and ring bearer was Pat Kavanaugh Ruston.

Candles were lighted by Jay Kavanaugh of Ruston, cousin of the bride and Donnie Brown of Minden, nephew of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Wood wore a gown of blue lace over crepe with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink lace model with accessories to match. Both wore corsages of white rosebuds.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Presbyterian Westminster Center. The reception table was covered with a white linen cloth with deep ruffles of nile green net. Gold candelabra held an arrangement of white stock, asters, carnations, chrysanthemums and ivy. The guest book table held a memory candle, surrounded by white daisies and ivy, and was presided over by Miss Kathy Kavanaugh.

Mrs. Norman Kavanaugh and Mrs. Virginia Kavanaugh served the cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. James Kavanaugh and Mrs. J. W. Harrison, all aunts of the bride. Tea girls were Misses Mary Lewis, Margaret Payton, Joy Hinton, Joy McConathy and Mrs. Lloyd Grafton.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to Colorado the bride was wearing a powder blue linen suit with navy accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Ruston where Mr. Anderson, a June graduate of Louisiana Tech, is presently employed. The bride will graduate in January from Louisiana Tech where she is a member of Kappa Delta sorority. Mr. Anderson's fraternity is Delta Sigma Pi.

Northeast Students To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen V. McKibbens of Dunn announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jane Ruth McKibbens to Robert Harlan Jones. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elson E. Jones of Bastrop.

An August 27 wedding is planned in Dunn Baptist church. Rev. Herman Savoie will perform the ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Miss McKibbens was graduated from Delhi high school and is a student at Northeast Louisiana State College. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. T. H. Hoben and the late Mr. Hoben of Dunn and of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McKibbens of Hanceville, Alabama.

Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Mrs. W. P. Knight and the late Mr. Knight of Dry Prong and Mrs. Frank Jones and the late Mr. Jones of Shreveport. Mr. Jones is a graduate of Crossett high school and is a senior at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Area Couple Sets Nuptials

Announcement of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Shirley Ann Donham and Melvin Lindsay Melton is made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Vernon Donham, of Tallulah. Mr. Melton of Vidalia, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Melton of Tallulah.

The wedding is planned for July 22 at the Mission of the First Baptist Church, Tallulah at 8 p.m.

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN A. NELSON

Glenda Joiner, Ministerial Student Wed

In a candlelight ceremony at Welcome Home Church of God, on Sunday, June 27, Miss Glenda Ruth Joiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Joiner, 418 Martin St., West Monroe, became the bride of Stephen A. Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Nelson of Lawrence, Indiana.

Six branched candelabra holding white tapers and entwined with smilax formed an arch behind the prie dieu where Rev. Earl Monzingo performed the double ring ceremony at 3 p.m. Baskets of white gladioli flanked the candle arch. Mrs. Velva Whitesel, pianist, played traditional wedding marches and accompanied Rev. Doyle Whitesel, soloist.

Mr. Joiner gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and nylon organza with back fullness of the billowing skirt extending into a chapel train. The lace bodice featured a scalloped neckline and long pointed sleeves and the skirt was caught up with lace roses. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of pearls and crystals. She carried a bouquet of deep red roses attached to a satin and lace covered Bible.

Mrs. Thelma Monzingo, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Arrant, Mrs. Jackie DePrang, sister of the bride and Mrs. Brenda Horton, sister of the groom. They wore identical gowns of light blue taffeta with elbow length mitts of matching fabric and blue satin shoes. Their pillbox hats were of taffeta, net and blue ribbon and they carried bouquets of blue tinted carnations.

Flower girl was Miss Michele DePrang, niece of the bride, who wore a floor length gown of light blue taffeta with matching accessories.

Mr. Nelson attended his son as best man and ushers were Ron Horton, Lawrence, Ind., brother - in - law of the groom; Dee A. Hanny, Indianapolis, Ind., and Paul Whitehead, Lawrence, Ind., Mike DePrang, nephew of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

Fellowship hall of the church was scene of the reception which followed. For the occasion the bride's mother was wearing a pink and white boucle dress with pink hat and white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a blue dacron dress with eyelet embroidered skirt, white accessories and a corsage of blue tinted carnations.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth over blue and centered with a cherub compote filled with blue and white flowers. Blue punch was served by Mrs. Dorothy Roberts and serving the tiered cake at the opposite end of the table was Mrs. Aline McCarty, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Annie Reagan, aunt of the bride, presided at the guest book and tea girls were Miss Becky Nelson, sister of the groom, Miss Margaret Joiner and Miss John Ann Joiner, sisters of the bride. The tea girls wore identical dresses of light blue cotton brocade with shoes to match.

After a wedding trip to Lake Bruin the couple is now at home in Houston, Texas, where Mr. Nelson is employed and also attends Gulf Coast Bible College, preparing for ministry. The bride is a graduate of West Monroe high school, attended Business college and Gulf Coast Bible college.

APPROACHING MARRIAGE of Miss Glenda Faye McCormick and Harlon Wayne May, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. May Jr., 209 Washington, West Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McCormick, 404 Cypress, West Monroe. The wedding is planned for August 4 in Brownville Baptist church. Both are graduates of West Monroe high school and will continue their studies this fall at University of Southwestern.

SWEET MEAT

Apricot braised lamb chops suit tastes for sweets with meats. In a large skillet, brown six 1-inch shoulder lamb chops on both sides in 1 tablespoon of salad oil. Drain off excess fat. Season chops to taste with salt and pepper. Add 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon of lemon juice and syrup from one 1-pound 13-ounce can of peeled apricots, reserving apricots. Simmer 25 minutes. Add apricots and cook 5 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

...On Dit...

by Marillyn Taylor

At this season of the year, brides take the center of the social stage. Weddings and bridal parties fill the calendar. There are also smaller, less formal affairs, honoring visitors, travelers, those moving in or out of town.

ANN and COLEMAN ROWLAND left on Monday for their new home in St. Louis, Missouri. Prior to their departure, the couple were honored at several farewell parties. Last week, PAT BLANCHARD and BETTY GEISLER invited Ann's bridge club for luncheon and bridge. The party was held at Bayou DeSiard country club.

A conversational hour at home was the compliment planned by LAVERNE BODRON honoring Ann last Friday morning. Thirty-five guests who called were greeted at the door by DARBY REED.

Centering the dining room table was a very tall frosted glass compote holding a summery arrangement of Majestic and Supreme daisies used with lemons and green grapes. At one end of the table was a watermelon boat nestling in ivy on a silver tray. It was filled with melon balls, cherries, orange and lime sections, grapes, and fresh strawberries. Pat Blanchard served bottled soft drinks from a silver tray at the opposite end. Other goodies on the buffet included cucumber sandwiches, date bars and "Hello, Dollies."

In the den, a hot crab and shrimp dip was served from a chafing dish on the built-in counter. Crackers were placed in the brim of a large orange hat filled with yellow and white daisies which formed the decoration.

On Saturday evening, Darby and MILTON REED, JEAN and CHARLES WILLIAMS invited a few couples for supper and bridge with the Rowlands. The party was held in the Reed home. Also present for this affair were JEAN and FRANK EASTMAN, who came over from Natchez for the weekend.

Another former Monroyan who moved to St. Louis last summer, MARY CAROLYN WILDS, is "back home" for a visit. She will be here several weeks as guest of her sister and brother-in-law, RONI and GUY LUNO.

Members of SADDLE-LITE RIDING club enjoyed a gala Fourth of July celebration on July 5, Monday. The day began with a breakfast ride, leaving the stables at 5:30 a.m. The group rode to Forsythe park, where coffee, milk, and doughnuts were served. At 8:30, horses were returned to stalls and riders boarded a chartered bus for a trip to Lake Bruin. Here the party continued at Strauss camp, with swimming, fishing, pingpong, baseball, etc. Picnic lunch was served at noon.

Chaperones for the party were JERRY OAKLEY, EVELYN BURKS, PEGGY GREENBAUM MOSE LOFTIN, CHARLOTTE and BILL BOLTON, BETTY and WALKER BOGGS.

Others who attended included BOBBY and JIMMY GREENBAUM; BETSY TAYLOR; PADG, ANN, WES, STEVE, and SUSAN BOLTON; DAY OAKLEY; GINNY NICHOLS; JAN BAGWELL; JEAN CANNON; PAULA, ANN and JANET BURKS; SUSAN, JUDY, and DREXEL BOGGS; CHARLOTTE and BETTY MERIWETHER: LILA LOFTIN; POLLY and SUSAN SARTOR; JUDY JACOBS; SUSAN ALEXANDER.

Home again from a trip to Washington, D.C., and New York City are FRANCES and JIM ADCOCK. They were accompanied by their daughter, JAN, and nephew, JEFF AYCOCK. The trip was Jeff's tenth birthday present.

In Washington, where they were guests at the new Washington Hilton hotel, they visited the White House, Capitol, Smithsonian Institute, and FBI. They were guests at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York; visited the World's Fair and saw the city sights. For his first Broadway play, Jeff saw "Funny Girl."

JEAN and JACK DAVIS returned this week from two weeks abroad. They flew to Copenhagen, where Jack attended a professional meeting for several days. They tried the raw fish and the open face sandwiches, and report that the Tivoli Gardens are a small paradise. They particularly enjoyed three days of sightseeing in London on the way home.

A number of out of town guests were here this week for the wedding of TIL WRIGHT and GEORGE SMELSER Thursday evening at Grace Episcopal church. From Columbia were George's cousins, CHARLOTTE and PERRY SMITH.

From Shreveport were the JOHN WISE FLOURNOYS JR., (she was the former Minnie Cole of Monroe); and their children, FRANCES, and COLE. The JOHN LEWIS HOLMES (the former Georgine Cole of Monroe) and their son SHOVE were here from Winnfield.

Guests of FRANCES McHENRY were her daughter, CORNELIA THOMAS of Louisville, Kentucky, and her daughter, ANNE THOMAS. These three were hostesses for the wedding breakfast Thursday morning. All white flowers were used to decorate the McHenry home on Fairview avenue. Combinations of white stock, daisies, petunias, and calladium leaves with fresh lemons and green grapes were noted on tables set up in living room, dining room, and library.

Brunch was served from a buffet table in the family dining room. Here the centerpiece, arranged in a footed silver bowl, contained Shasta daisies, lemons, grapes, and stock. The menu served to forty guests included Kentucky ham, chicken with mushrooms, grits au gratin, marinated snap beans, homemade rolls, and sherbert.

Wednesday afternoon, MARJORIE GODWIN entertained at a conversational hour at her home, O-Z-O plantation on the Columbia road. About forty friends and classmates were invited for a get-together prior to Marjorie's departure for Camp Waldemar in Kerrville, Texas, this coming week. Centering the table was a watermelon boat filled with melon balls, fresh strawberries, grapes and cherries. Bottled soft drinks, assorted sandwiches and cookies were served.

Out of town visitors who were here for this party were HOPE FEAR of Welsh, Louisiana, guest of EMILY SEEGERS; and PAM POWELL of Silver Springs, Maryland, guest of LORETTA and JACK RIVERS.

Emily invited seven girls of the younger high school set to meet these visitors at a supper party at her family home on Sherwood Thursday evening. It was a patio party, with pizza the highlight of the menu. A large basket filled with flowers and summer vegetables decorated the table.

The SIDNEY SEEGERS home was scene of another party last night, when they entertained at dinner complimentary to the DAVE ROBINSONS of Stillwater, Oklahoma. The Robinsons, former Monroyans, are here for the weekend as guest of HAZEL and BILL OLIVER.

At this time of year, with more time for reading, we can catch up on what's being said by the press around the country. Here are some pithy examples:

It would be a lot easier if sin didn't always seem to be in such jolly company.

—News, Biggs, Calif.

A nice thing about being young is that you are not experienced enough to know you cannot possibly do the things you are doing.

—Journal, Elkville, Ill.

Breaking a shoestring in the morning is a good way to assure a day that has no place to go but up.

MEAT LOAF

A pound of ground beef and half a pound each of ground pork and veal make an excellent old-fashioned mixture for a meat loaf.

FORTHCOMING marriage of Miss JoAnn Lockwood and William Rodney Ruby, son of Mrs. J. B. Ruby of Farmerville, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lockwood of Farmerville. The wedding will be solemnized July 24 at 7:30 p. m. in Beulah Baptist Church with Rev. Roy A. Gardner officiating.

Caution Urged With Fabric Softeners

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—Use a fabric softener only on laundry articles that really need the treatment, says Helen E. Bell, extension home management specialist at Pennsylvania State University.

Fabrics with nap, such as towels, diapers, chenille bedspreads, wool sweaters, and corduroy which tend to get stiff and harsh, benefit from the addition of a softener. Add softener to the last deep rinse so that it does not blend with detergent or any other laundry product.

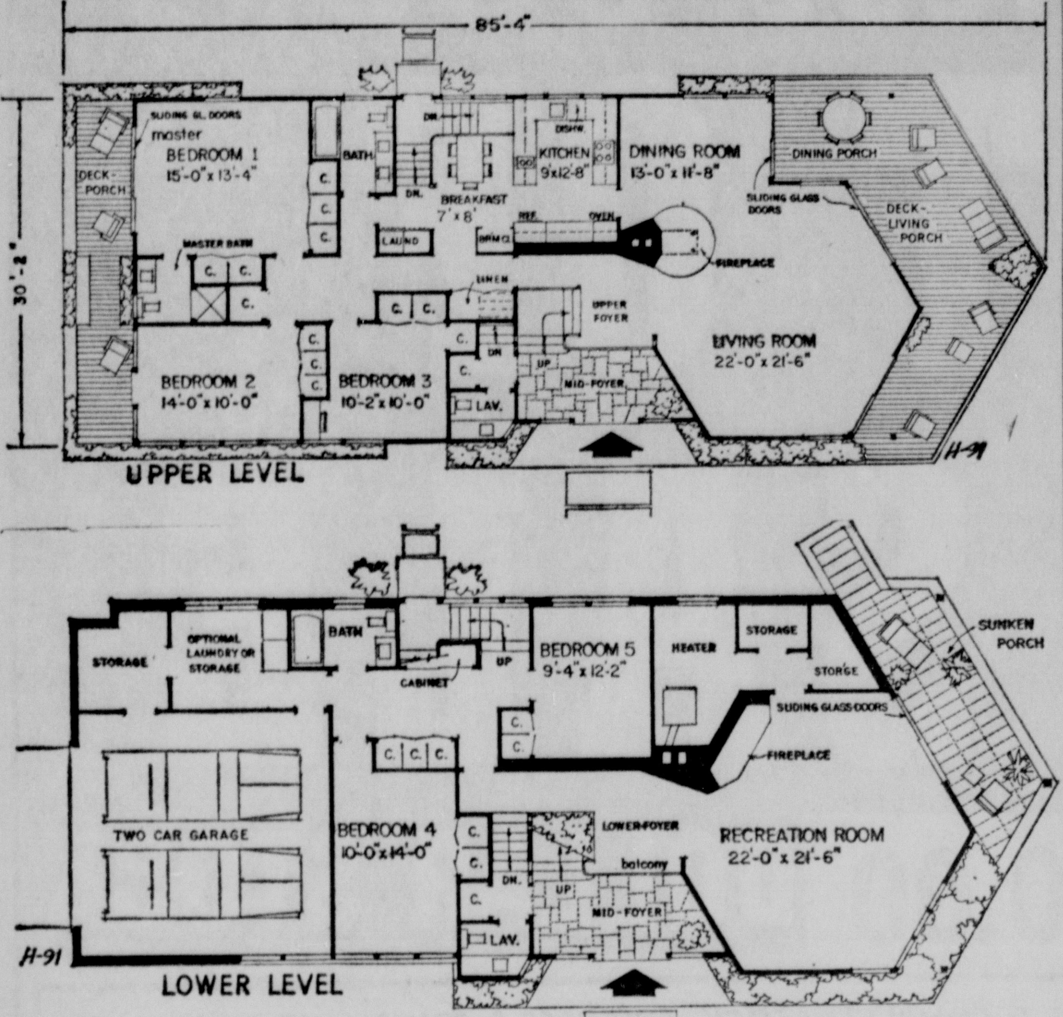
THERE'S PLENTY in this split entry house, with a main and a lower level, outdoor decks on both sides, a sunken porch on the right, a semi-octagonal living room and many other dramatic touches.



FLOOR PLANS: Two - level plan permits all main rooms to be located on upper floor, with huge areas for outdoor living; extra rooms, including fireplaced recreation section and two-car garage, are on the lower floor.

Dramatic Features Seen In Split Entry Type Home

By ANDY LANG

You might as well face it: If you like things that are ordinary, you're not going to be too pleased with the latest House of the Week.

It's for people who want something different, something with a touch of glamour. Architect Rudolph A. Matern has provided it in a two-level contemporary home replete with dramatic effects both inside and out.

Basic

Despite the many design features of this house, it is basically a split entry, a type of home that has risen to mass acceptability in recent years. You may have seen it referred to as a raised ranch. To get a good mental picture of the split entry, think of a one-story ranch with basement which has been pulled out of the ground a few feet. The main part of the house is thus a little above ground level, the basement part a little below ground level. One of the principal advantages of this construction is that the lower floor can have larger windows, more light and ventilation and, consequently, more all-around livability.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-91.

There are three bedrooms, two baths and a lavatory on the elevated or main level: The lower floor can be furnished when the house is constructed or done at a later date, if desired, but there are two extra bedrooms in this area as architect Matern has designed it. But either or both of these extra rooms can be used for studying or following a hobby if they are not required as sleeping quarters.

Upper Level

Note the unusual upper level layout. There are raised outside decks at either end. The one at the left of the house can be reached from either of two bedrooms. The one at the right is accessible through sliding glass doors from the living room or dining room. There is a four-sided view from the semi-octagonal living room. While this is sufficiently dramatic in itself, a circularhooded wide open fireplace provides an additional highlight.

The service area at the rear of the house is modern in every respect, with a kitchen, railed breakfast section, plenty of cabinet and closet space, and a separate entrance.

The recreation room on the lower level is a twin of the living room above it. It also has a fireplace, with a sunken porch under the deck and sliding glass doors leading to it. This floor also has two bedrooms, previously mentioned; storage and closet space almost everywhere you look; an extra bath and an extra lavatory; and an oversized two-car garage.

Traffic control in a split entry house is excellent, since from either the front of rear entrance no one enters either level unless it is his destination, thus avoiding unnecessary steps. Another advantage in having the main floor raised above ground level is that the bedroom windows are four feet higher than normal, adding that much more to the privacy.

The main entrance or mid-foyer of this home has a slate floor, an angled wall, a wrought-iron railed balcony and a 90-degree turned staircase. The foyer ceiling is one and one-half stories high.

Annual Vines Grow Fast

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Quick - growing annual vines are extremely useful in the summer garden. They can be used to provide a temporary screen on fences and arbors or to cover bare or unsightly objects in a hurry. The seed stores have handy packets ready, and you can sow any one of several fast growing vines and have them up and growing in a week in the summer heat.

Morning - glories are perhaps the best known of annual vines. They come in all sorts and colors and will be up and blooming in a few weeks. Nothing is redder than Scarlett O'Hara and and nothing bluer than Heavenly Blue. Then there is the dazzling white Pearly Gates. It used to be necessary to plant Heavenly Blue in the greenhouse in March in order to get it to bloom before frost, but the quick - blooming type has done away with this practice. For something really colorful right where you want it or to brighten up the garden in the morning you cannot beat the morning-glories.

Scarlet Runner

Less known these days is a vine which was a great favorite of Victorian times. Today, it is only on the fences of flower gardens in the country and way back in the mountains that the scarlet runner or fire bean is to be seen. The airiness of this bean vine and its fiery flowers make it especially desirable for something that is bright but not heavy in mass. Next to one of the white morning - glories, it is extremely fine. When the morning - glories go to sleep as the day comes on, the red bean flowers will remain to give color.

More Delicate

A more delicate quick - growing vine is the cardinal climber or cypressvine. This one has always been popular for its small red flowers and ferny foliage. It is almost a morning-glory and grows with all the speed of that group.

For pink or white, you may plant the old - fashioned hyacinthbean. This vine comes in named varieties and produces upright stalks of bean flowers good clean colors. It, too, will grow in a hurry and soon be in flowers from seeds.

All of the above annual vines like our hot weather. They respond to the heat by coming up in almost nothing flat and growing like weeds. To gain a day or two, soak the seeds of any of them for a few hours before you plant them. Then keep the plants well watered and fertilized for a real miracle from seeds.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: I am getting ready to paint our house. It is about 10 years old and has wooden siding. The only way in which I can paint the house is to do it all in a single day, starting very early in the morning. But I am constantly reading about not painting while there is dew or moisture on the house. In our area, almost everything is covered with dew early in the morning. What do you suggest?

ANSWER: Why must you do all the painting in a single day? Assuming that you have only one day a week available, why not split the entire job into two weeks? Paint the front and one side of the house one week, the rear and the other side the next week. This will prevent stopping and restarting in the middle of an exterior wall.

But if this is not practical, use one of the exterior latex paints which permit application over a damp surface. In making your selection, read the label on the can to see whether this is recommended. However, if you already have purchased a solvent-thinned oil paint, you will run into trouble if you apply it on a damp surface. In that event, you will have to try the two-week method suggested above, starting the painting on a day and at a time when the sun has dried the surface. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Paint Your House Inside and Out," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.).

QUESTION: We burned a large hole in one of the asphalt tiles on our basement floor. How can it be repaired so that it won't be noticeable?

ANSWER: Better forget about trying to make a good patch. It's easier to take up the damaged tile with a cold chisel and a hammer. Break up the tile into pieces, then remove the pieces. Be sure to score the edges of the tile along the joints so that other tiles won't come loose with the damaged one. Scrape off the old adhesive and apply a new, matching tile. (You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

Garden Center Notes

6 Designs Are Shown

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

College Height's Garden Club of Monroe, presented the Fifth District Garden Center's weekly program last Wednesday. "Flowers from the Garden in Design," was the general theme of the program. Each of the six designs contained flowers or foliage from the arranger's own garden. Mrs. R. W. Gregory Jr., the club's president for the coming year, made an asymmtrical triangle design, massed, using dried dock in soft tan shades for the primary line.

The second placement was colorful croton leaves placed within the triangle form. Into the central area was placed a grouping of ornamental Gloriosa daisies which blended into the orange and brown tones of the croton leaves and dock. These graduated in sizes with the smaller blooms to the outer edges and the large single bloom in the center for focal interest and good balance. The container for this material was a wooden compote. Two tiered wooden bases beneath the design added the finishing touch and proper balance.

Clipped Pine

Mrs. Elrose Jones created a design in the oriental manner using clipped pine (three branches) for the three main lines of the design. A grouping of two large red hybiscus blooms completed this lovely, contrasting color scheme in a black footed container. A round, black teakwood base gave good balance and added to the oriental feeling. When the blooms fade more could be added just as long as you had blooms. Since the pine will last indefinitely this would be a long-lasting arrangement.

Mrs. M. L. Johnson also made a design with the oriental influence. The three lines were interpreted with crabapple branches. The small, colorful fruit was on the branches in clusters. The container was a tall, bottle (ceramic) in color tones of green and tan. Three large pink zinnias were placed low at the base of the branches as "fillers" in the "Heaven, Man, Earth" line of the Heika (upright) style in the oriental design. The design was placed to one side on a bamboo mat. This, too, could be a long-lasting design by adding fresh zinnias from time to time.

Mrs. Elna Trimble used crabapple for the main line of her massed triangle design in a round crockery-type container in dark green trimmed with brick tan. Colorful coleus leaves filled in this line creating color and interest. Also, highlighting the design was a filler of celosia in cerese tones which blended with the color of the crabapples. A green styrafoam base was used beneath the design. A small grouping of the crabapples with their foliage was placed (in water) at the lower end of the triangle, as an accessory. A small bottle top placed in the styrafoam held water for this material. Mrs. Trimble mentioned that she used her coleus in designs and left it to root. This is an excellent idea. It is hard to pinch out the tops of the coleus to make it thicken, but in using it in a design you would feel that you were saving it and rooting it for another plant. In a design of this type the coleus would last for days — thus, making it a long-lasting arrangement.

Dried Design

Mrs. J. E. Braley made an all dried design using aspidestra leaves entirely for her arrangement. The leaves had dried into an unusual color blend ranging from chartreuse yellow into rich tan tones. Three of these were rolled and placed in tiered manner for the primary line in a tall soft green cylinder container. Other leaves were rolled and furled into a rosette design and placed in the lower part of the design for focal interest. A round, brown wooden base added weight and proper balance. I was told that these leaves were placed in water and simply left alone to gradually dry out. In fact they were cut for a design and the line was left as was. Glycerinizing the foliage also gives this plant leaf a rich brown tone and keeps the leaf plyable for an indefinite period.

Modern Design

Mrs. Vernon Whitlock created a very modern design using bold materials. Amayrillis foliage, tiered and spiralled to one side in a square, brown ceramic bowl established the primary line. Calla lily foliage was placed in a horizontal row for the lower line of the triangle. For color, a vertical placement of small pink lilies with the tight bud clusters was used in the central part of the design. A straw mat was placed beneath the design for good balance.

Garden tips for July — Not too late to plant more glad bulbs for blooms later on. Cut old blooms from crape myrtles to get longer period of blooms. Transplant Easter lily bulbs and work bone meal into soil before planting. Be sure to water newly sprigged St. Augustine and Centipede grass. It's not too late to keep sprigging if kept watered. Bearded iris may be transplanted now, working in one fourth cup of bone meal under each bulb.

Be sure to watch for plant lice on mums. If found, spray every 10 days with nicotine mixture. Now is the time to give trees and shrubs their last application of fertilizer, and water in well. All beds need mulch (if not already applied).

Wednesday the special guest for our Garden Center program will be Mrs. Claude Thomas from Bonita. "Dried Materials in Design," and "Unusual Containers," will be toppics. Be watching.

Why sleep like this on other mattresses?

When you can sleep like this on a Beautyrest.

Other mattresses have springs that are tied together with wire. Press down on one spring and the others sag along with it. The sleepers body sags too. And, that is bad for restful sleep. Beautyrest is made differently. It is the only one with separate, independent springs that adjust to you . . . that give your body complete support from head to toe without sag and without hollows. Thus Beautyrest provides superior comfort — gives better sleep. Yet it costs little more per night than the cheapest mattress. Why settle for anything less?

Beautyrest, standard sizes — twin or double $79.50 Super Sizes also available.

Fragrance, Beauty In New Roses

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

You won't be able to get them before fall, but if you fancy the newest of the fine roses you can be thinking about the 1966 All-America Rose Selections recently announced.

Here they are, after two years of intensive tests in 23 official trial gardens across the nation:

Matterhorn, a tall, vigorous, hybrid white tea.

American Heritage, ivory-yellow hybrid tea, with tall growth.

Apricot Nectar, an apricot-color, fragrant floribunda.

Large Blooms

Matterhorn is the first white hybrid tea to win the honor in six years. It has five-inch blooms on long stems.

American Heritage ranges from ivory-yellow buds to long-stemmed, pale-canary-yellow blooms with scarlet tints at maturity.

Apricot Nectar is a direct descendant of the lovely Spartan. It is free-flowering and has an old rose fragrance. The plant is about three feet tall and bushy.

The judges, faced with a tough decision, selected all three roses for the awards.

An important consideration is foliage, which in Matterhorn is bright green, in Apricot Nectar a striking dark green, and in American Heritage a two-tone bronze-green.

Hybridist E. S. Boerner of Jackson & Perkins, who developed Apricot Nectar, deserves special mention. It is his 11th ARS success — of the 18 J&P roses to win this coveted honor since 1940. Nine of Boerner's winners have been floribundas.

Wild Onions

We received a letter from Mrs. John L. Andrew of Stamford, Conn., who reported that while wintering in South Carolina she read about specific dates there for cutting tops from wild onions so they would bleed to death. She checked further and learned that in Connecticut such dates were May 6-7 and June 7-8.

She said, "It would be a kindness to pass this information on," which I am doing for gardeners bothered by wild onions. Your county agricultural agent may be able to help you.

We had not known about this treatment and made some inquiries. The expert we asked had not heard about this either, but he said that actually, if you cut the tops of the onions off during the spring you will be removing the seed-stalk and in effect this might prevent the development of seed. The seed is one of the important ways that this weed is spread.

Gardening Chore Eased

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

It was nice to be on leave for a few days and visit a lovely home in our neighboring parish. Your home demonstration agent and the former agent of Richland Parish, Pearl LeFevre (retired) and living in our city, made a visit in the home of the C. W. Earls. Mrs. Earl, true to her Southern Hospitality, took us through her lovely rose garden of so many, many different varieties and, also, her vegetable garden.

A most interesting feature which Mrs. Earl called to our attention was the way in which she had planted cucumbers. You, Mrs. Gardener, know what a back-breaking job it is to pick cucumbers. Mrs. Earl planted hers near a wire fence and the cucumber vines attached to the fence. It made gathering cucumbers an easy job. This home gardener, also, placed heavy construction wire around tomato plants instead of staking. This keeps the tomato plant in an upright position and makes gathering tomatoes much easier.

It was nice to meet and visit her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Richardson.

The Earl home is situated on Clear Lake and is one of the loveliest Ante Bellum homes in this area.

Thank you, Mrs. Earl and Mrs. Richardson, for a lovely day.

Out Of Town

You Home Demonstration Agent will leave tomorrow for Baton Rouge to serve as one of the judges for the 4-H Clothing and Good Grooming contests. I will be back in the office Friday.

Home, Garden Week

You, Mrs. Homemaker, are in for a week of enjoyment and instruction if you attend Home and Garden Week on the LSU Campus August 17-19. If you like to sew then you will surely want to attend the session on, "Applied Line and Design" related to pattern and fabric selection for the individual. This will be presented by Miss Helen Wright, Special Field Representative of one of our popular pattern companies.

Another interesting session will be fibers, fabrics, and finishes — also, modern laundering. This will include some of today's newest fabrics for clothing and home furnishings with up-to-date information on selection and care. This will be of special interest to you Mrs. Consumer, in selection of fabrics in wearing apparel or fabrics in the home.

Creative stitching will be interesting to you, Mrs. Homemaker, if you like embroidery and crewel, as arts in the home on wall hanging, chair covers, pillows and clothing. This will be demonstrated by Mrs. Janet Lauer, designer and teacher of creative stitching in New Orleans.

Fall Fabrics

Crepe will be more important than ever due to the more fluid silhouettes. Many more crepe weaves will be introduced in everything from worsted suitings, lightweight dress woolens, and heavy silk crepe. Satin back crepe, that favorite in the thirties, looks new again for blouses and dresses. Another old favorite, challis, now in new fibers and finishes will be one of the most outstanding fabrics of the season. A natural for blouses and pretty soft dresses, challis is best rendered in authentic prints and colors.

Crocheted look weaves move into a more dominant position for fall in new version. Some are seen through while others are bonded to tricot.

Smooth, crisp silk and worsted blends become a significant part of the flatter trend in plain and diagnoal weaves for elegant dresses, cocktail suits and theatre ensembles.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

One performance remains for our second children's play of the summer season, "Mr. Popper's Penguins." It is a matinee this afternoon at 2:30.

Directed by Dr. George Brian of the Northeast Speech Department, this is a fine play for children, full of action, comedy and suspense. If the little people in your family have not seen it yet, be sure to take them out to Strauss Playhouse this afternoon. They'll be royally entertained from the curtain's rise right up to the exciting climax.

With the close of one play, it is time to announce the opening of the next, so well do the activities at Strauss Playhouse mesh.

"The King and I," will open on July 23, running through August 1, with one matinee, which will be announced later. Our summer musicals are always full of fun and gaiety, and this is no exception.

Successful Musical

"The King and I," of course, is the successful musical from the story originally titled, "Anna and The King of Siam." It is about an English governess who is employed by the King of Siam to teach Western ways to his many wives. He is not educated in the formal sense, but has learned enough of the ways of the world to know that his heir must be a broader man than he is. The conflict revolves around their differences in opinion, and his eventual affection for the widowed teacher.

It is a good story with lovely music.

Guest Director for "The King and I," Paul Bressoud, has some additions to announce to his cast. James West is playing the interpreter, Cally Cooper is an attendant, Freeman Stamper is the priest and also doubling as a slave, Tom Burton is Phra Alack, Tobi Smith is an attendant, and Nancy Pfrimmer and Sara Womack are wives.

Special Monacle

One bit of action in the play concerns a monacle worn by Beryl Franklin, in the role of Sir Ramsey. Beryl had been rehearsing with one from the prop room, but because it magnified so intensely, he was staggering around dizzily after a few minutes on stage. But, the American Optical Company came to the rescue with a professionally ground one, just tailored to fit Beryl, and complete even to the tiny round hole for the black ribbon. So now, Dr. Franklin can play his role with the dignity befitting the part.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Govang answered the request for a gold watch in last weeks Curtain Call with a perfectly lovely antique piece. It is so old that the mechanism is wound with a key. Chris was most grateful to borrow it for the run of "The King and I."

However, he and his stage crew are busily making voodoo dolls of all the people who didn't bring him their dragons like he asked. After they get through sticking the pins in, they'll get to work constructing the dragon.

(Somehow, one gets the impression that they sort of figured all along that they might have to build that writhing oriental monster If any of the readers of this column would like to work on the stage crew for "The King and I" and have the fun of making and painting the flamboyant sets for "The King and I," call Chris at the theater, 323-1235, or come out some evening.

Design Painting

He especially needs people who can paint intricate designs, also, those interested in working backstage during the run of the show.

Congratulations are due this week to two of our actresses who participated in last week's "Miss Louisiana" pageant, Judy Swazey who appeared as Miss Northeast, and Kay Harris who entered as Miss West Monroe.

Judy, who was among the top ten contestants, has had parts in "Once Upon A Mattress" and "Annie Get Your Gun." Kay has appeared in "Auntie Mame" and "Sound of Music." It's nice to know that others appreciate beauty and talent as much as our Little Theater does.

Last week we said that Chris was going to be teaching at William Woods College in Columbia, Mo. The school was right, but the location was a few miles off. William Woods is in Fulton, Mo. While Chris is teaching, Suzy will be attending classes, working toward her degree in theater education.

Chris received his well-earned master's degree from Baylor University this week, in the school of speech and drama.

HAUNTS DON'T MAKE HOUSE UNFIT FOR HABITATION

BLACKWELL, England (AP) — Frank Slater asked the local borough council to find him and his family a new house. He claimed the present one is haunted.

R. L. Charlesworth, the council's housing officer, ruled: "Ghosts or no ghosts the Slaters can be rehoused only if their property is unfit for habitation, which is is not."

Slater's wife, Jessie, said, "We have seen strange apparitions in the house. Statuettes of saints have been broken and cups, saucers and other crockery have been smashed."

The Slaters got the Assistant Bishop of Derby (Anglican) to bless the cottage. "It is now a matter of seeing whether the blessing has been a success," said Assistant Bishop Thomas Parfit.

HOME MOVIES of school activities offer parents a chance to photograph their children's accomplishments from kindergarten through college. Besides school plays, such as this scene from Francis Lewis High School's Senior Show, there are sports and athletic contests, outings and concerts to include in the family's home movie library. Even better results are now possible with the new Super 8mm system.

Major Home Movies Advances Reported

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

There's nothing like finding out for yourself, so here's a report on the new Kodak Super 8mm home movie system from personal experience. I've projected the results of my first three rolls of film and the Super 8 system proved conclusively to me its advantages in fumble-free loading, uninterrupted shooting and improved image quality.

First, let's repeat for the benefit of those whose attention has been elsewhere in recent months: There's been an atomic explosion in the 8mm home movie field. Movie makers now have available an entirely new 8mm system: New cameras, new films, new projectors . . . the Super 8 system. It features three important advantages: Quick and easy slip-in film cartridge loading; continuous shooting of the entire 50 feet of film with no need to stop and turn it over at midpoint; a 50 per cent larger image area for each individual frame.

Made Obsolete

At the same time. in taking this tremendous step forward, quite a few toes were stepped on and some screams will be heard for years to come. To put it briefly, the new Super 8 system makes our present 8mm home movie system obsolete. The new film can not be used in present cameras nor shown on the projectors we have. Nor can our library of accumulated 8mm movies be shown on the new projectors.

Because there are about eight million owners of present 8mm movie equipment, "old style" cameras, film and projectors will continue to be manufactured for many years to come. But the demand is certain to taper off. Newcomers to home movies undoubtedly will prefer the Super system, but even oldtimers most likely will switch over to the new cameras when their present ones have to be replaced. It is also likely that projectors in the near future will be ingeniously designed so that they can accommodate both the old 8mm and the new Super 8 format with the flip of a lever.

Electric Eye

But back to my Super movies. I used the electric-eye, fixed-focus Instamatic M4 camera with f-1.8 lens and tested it outdoors and indoors. Loading it with film couldn't be easier — just a matter of slipping in a cartridge. After that it was a case of sight the subject and shoot, since there was no focusing, no lens adjustment or any winding. It was electrically powered with four penlight batteries.

I had qualms only about the indoor shooting. The subject was my daughter's high school senior show photographed only by natural stage lighting. By inserting a special key into the camera, a filter for daylight shooting was swung aside and the film's ASA speed of 40 for artificial light was utilized. The electric eye took care of proper exposure while I concentrated only on selecting the show's highlights. I had to fight a tendency to shoot too much, and it wasn't easy, especially when daughter Phyllis showed up in the viewfinder.

It was these results that were especially gratifying. The electric eye exposures were perfect, the movies were sharp, the colors brilliant. The larger image area of improved Kodachrome film for Super 8 movies gave a perceptibly larger, clearer picture on the screen. If other home movie fans are equally fortunate with their first results with the new film system, there's no doubt that it will find immediate and enthusiastic public acceptance.

Unborn Infant Has Transfusion To Stay Alive

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A ten-day-old baby girl went home Saturday after receiving a life-saving transfusion while she was still in her mother's womb.

She is Kathi Lynn Tomlinson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tomlinson of Salem, N.Y.

A spokesman at Albany Medical Center Hospital said Kathi — an "RH-baby" — would have been stillborn had she not received the transfusion. Her blood type is RH-negative, like that of her mother.

She was given RH-negative blood to counter-act the blood-cell destruction that would result because her father has RH positive.

The Tomlinsons' first three children are living, but each suffered severe medical difficulties because of the RF factor, which becomes increasingly worse. The last child was stillborn.

Reunion Is Held Near Jonesville

A Wallace Lake campsite near Jonesville was the scene of the recent family reunion of the descendants of the late Henry Lee Rutledge.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Russell and son and Mrs. Irene Rutledge Roberts of Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rutledge of Imperial, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rutledge and sons of Shreveport, Mrs. Louella Tarpley Rutledge, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rutledge and children, Ervin Renfrow, Mrs. Ludie Renfrow Bordelon and children, Bill Renfrow, B. G. Renfrow, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rutledge, Miss Joyce Montpelier and Sam Renfrow, all of Jonesville; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Bonner and daughters of Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Wilson and children of Houston, Tex., Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rutledge and child of Vidalia, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Carroll and child of Jennings, Mrs. Lena Tarpley of Utility, Mrs. Ida Renfrow of Harrisonburg and Mrs. Belle Renfrow of Natchez, Miss.

Astronauts Fear Space Marooning

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — To be marooned in space is a thought that strikes terror in an astronaut's heart.

It hasn't happened yet, as far as is known, to either United States spacemen or to Soviet consmonauts. But with manned space flights steadily increasing, the possibility increases.

What is being done?

Martin Co., makers of the powerful Titan rocket boosters which are now hurling Gemini astronauts into orbit, the Air Force and the Manned Spacecraft Center have been studying the matter for some time.

One plan is to train a special crew to man a Titan 3C rescue rocket. It would be cocked and ready to fly at a minute's notice, poised for any emergency, on a launching pad at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

This plan has been advanced by Martin Co. It is being mulled over by U.S. officials in Washington. If it is accepted, it isn't likely to be operational for some time because the Titan 3C only completed its maiden flight last month.

The Manned Spacecraft Center assistant director for engineering and development, Max Faget says a Titan rocket ready for rescue work would be like putting lifeguards on a beach where practically nobody goes swimming.

A Gemini two-man space capsule fits perfectly on the Titan rockets. In fact, they were developed for each other.

Times when a spaceman might need to be rescued include a collision with a meteor, a puncture of the tough, metal skin of a spacecraft, interla power failures, or loss of petro-rockets — which slow the spaceship down as it passes through the dense atmosphere to land.

Or an astronaut could become sick, and a rescue ship could remove the ill spaceman and allow the mission to continue.

Faget, who says he is not against space rescue — "We will need it someday" — maintains that money spent on a rescue system could be better used to perfect the spacecraft and its systems so that rescue wouldn't be needed.

"We have included so many backup safety systems in the spacecraft," he says, "that an astronaut in space flight is safer than when he is driving his own car."

Martin officials point out the value to U.S. prestige if a Soviet cosmonaut were marooned in space and this country's rescue system could save him.

As one space official said, "It is like that old saying, 'You don't need to fix the hole in the roof when it isn't raining.' But when it does rain — watch out."

Funds Earmarked

ROME (AP) — The government Saturday earmarked $39,680,000 in emergency aid for north Italian areas hit by a killer tornado last Sunday.

The tornado, combined with a blistering heat wave in the south, took 25 lives. Homes, crops and power lines were destroyed or damaged in the tornado area.

Ouachita Mosaic

Summer Slump Saluted

BY ROBERT SIMONTON
World Satff Writer

Summer slump — that seems to be an adequate way to describe the current lull in Ouachita Mosaic activities.

People apparently get into a sort of lazy mood at this particular time of year, turning to the not so strenuous tasks of basking in the shimmering sun or relaxing in the soothing shade.

Organizations meet less, schools are closed, folks are on vacations and there are fewer cultural events worthy of note.

Regardless of how much we slow down our motors in summer, one thing it takes little energy to enjoy is the profusion of colors in the Twin Cities area.

Just take time to look about and enjoy the flowers and shrubs and blossoming trees with which the Mosaic is so richly blessed — the result is stimulating.

Included among these are majestic magnolias, lavish japonicas, frilly crepe myrtle, proud cape jasmine (gardenia), pink powder puff mimosa, mauved wisteria and varities of delicate roses all fringed by the leafy lace of trees.

While on the subject of flora, it is interesting to note the kudzu vines growing in abundance along the banks of the Ouachita River and elsewhere in the area.

These vines, with large green leaves, are attractive, but have a tendancy to be a nuisance in many cases. The story is that the kudzu was introduced to the United States from Japan in the early 19th Century and was originally used to prevent soil erosion. It was later planted in gardens as ivy, but hardly domesticated. Kudzu is a parasite and will choke the existence out of plants if not checked.

Potpourri: The music department of Louisiana Tech will present "Kiss Me Kate," July 15-16, at 8 p.m. in Howard auditorium and the Tech Theatre will present "George and Margaret," July 26-27 at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre. Both events are worth the trip simply because Tech is noted for splended productions . . . . Even though the Ouachita Valley Museum will soon move into the parish school board location on St. John, it has not been moved yet despite notions to the contrary. The space in the new home for old curios will be ample and parking facilities excellent — but the museum still needs more local backing and a new sign to place at the entrance, please! . . . Jeanne Moreau, the immensely talented French actress may be seen at either the plush new Eastgate Cinema in "The Train," or at the Jim Theatre in "Yellow Rolls Royce." And, if you're not particularly interested in one of the most exciting young film stars of the times, both motion pictures offer a great deal more that might interest you . . . . From New York comes word that "Fiddler on the Roof" has won nine out of 19 Broadway "Tony" awards, including best musical play. "The Subject Was Roses," which also won a Pulitzer Prize, was rated best play. Hollywood is interested in both these productions — so, perhaps we'll be able to at least see the film versions . . . . . Fun time is anytime spent at the Bernstein Park Zoo and it's an ideal outing for the entire family. Who knows, you might see your reflection in a mirrow. . "Mr. Popper's Penguins," a play jointly sponsored by the Little Theatre of Monroe and Northeast Louisiana State at Strauss Playhouse has a final performance today at 2:30 p.m. It's guaranteed to snap that summer slump!

Record Sales Of Cars Business Bright Spot

NEW YORK (AP)—The average American's love affair with the automobile warmed the business picture during the week.

Despite talk of an economic slowdown, Americans are buying new cars at a record pace.

The auto industry said dealers sold 805,000 new U.S.-made cars in June.

The June figure boomed the industry's six-month sales to nearly 4.6 million cars—14 per cent more than in the first half of 1964.

The month's sales were surprising as well as impressive. Car sales usually hit their peak in May, slacken in June, then drop in late summer.

One explanation for the record June rate: The month marked the end of sales contests at several automobile divisions.

The sales also may have reflected stockpiling by dealers of used cars as a hedge against a possible seel strike and halted new car output.

General Motors' Chevrolet Division said its dealers delivered 231,206 cars last month, a record. Buick's June sales were its best since 1955. June also was Ford's best month, prompting one company executive to predict 1965 would be Ford Division's "finest year." Chrysler's June sales of 126,606 cars marked a 21 per cent gain over June 1964.

In Washington, government economists issued more figures indicating that federal income tax cuts have worked essentially the way the government intended. Despite last year's big tax cut, the Treasury's total cash receipts in the fiscal year ended last month rose nearly $4 billion from the year before.

The tax cuts were aimed at increasing spending and leaving more profits to corporations for expansion.

Despite lower tax rates, bulging company profits pushed the government's tax collections from business up $1.8 billion. The Treasury got less tax money from individuals because of the lower tax rates but all other government income rose.

Stockholders during the week approved one of the biggest corporate mergers in recent history.

The merger would make Pure Oil Co. part of Union Oil Co. of California. Combined assets of the big oil firms total nearly $1.7 billion.

Pure has been sought by several major companies. Pure owns more than 4,000 oil and gas wells in five countries and distributes its products in 25 states.

Government antitrust investigators have not yet taken a stand on the prospective marriage of the two companies.

Since 1950, the nation's 200 largest manufacturing firms have acquired more than 2,000 other companies through merger.

The nation's steel mills apparently chalked up a production record in the first six months of 1965. Figures for the period through June 30 were not available but output through July 3 came to 71.6 million tons — a gain of 15 per cent over the same period a year ago.

The threat of a steel strike has kept steelusers stockpiling. The steel industry still faces a Sept. 1 deadline in working out a new contract with the United Steelworkers Union.

The National Association of Purchasing Agents reported a slowdown of U.S. business during June.

The association blamed this on widely scattered strikes, vacation shutdowns and a "wait-and-see attitude that appears to be developing in some quarters."

France's split with the rest of the European Common Market also worried economic observers.

Uncertainty over the future of the six-nation economic union could cripple world trade. The Common Market is the world's biggest customer for goods. It spent $26.8 billion last year on imports.

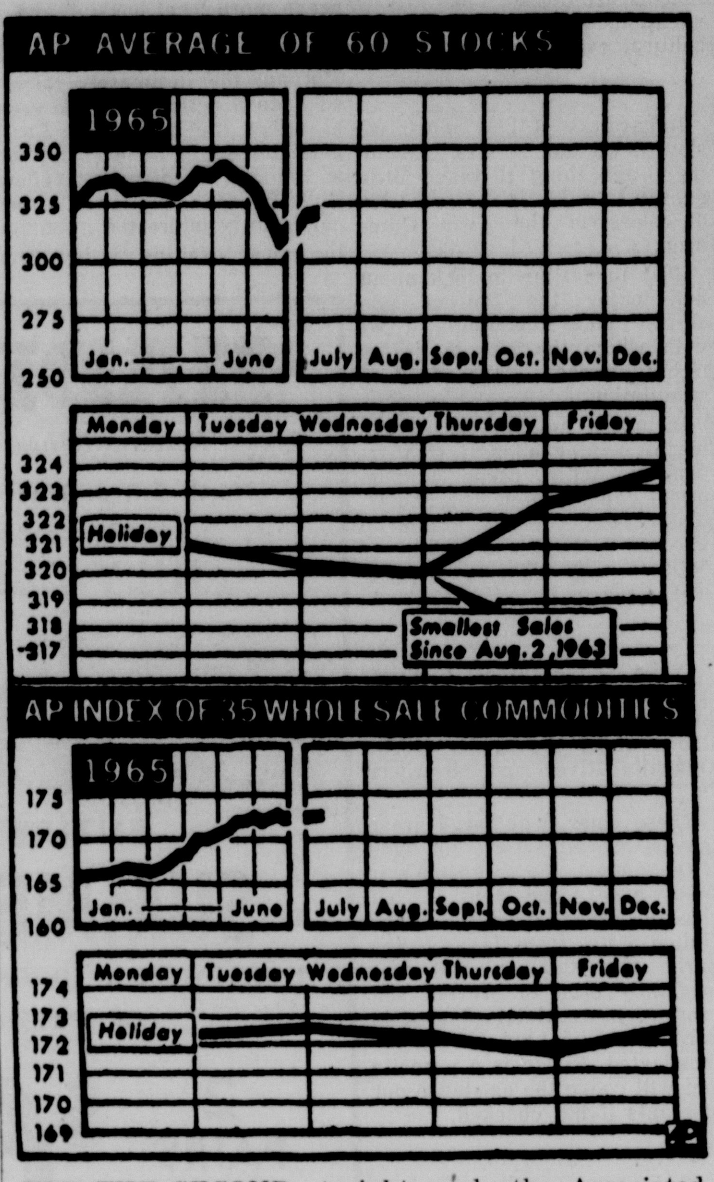
French President Charles de Gaulle has ordered a boycott of Common Market activity and during the week withdrew France's permanent representative. The member nations have been unable to agree on trading of farm products, one of France's biggest industries.

Consumers added a seasonally adjusted total of $670 million to their installment debt in May. Borrowing to buy new cars accounted for $275 million.

Automobile production during the week was estimated at 159,351 cars, a drop of 17 per cent from the previous week's 190,917 and 2 per cent less than the 163,113 cars turned out in the corresponding week a year ago. Auto factories were closed Monday for the Independence Day holiday.

TO EXPLAIN POLICY

PARIS (UPI) — Undersecretary of State George Ball arrived Saturday to explain U.S. policy in Viet Nam to its Atlantic allies at a special meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council of ministers on Tuesday. Ball will meet with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville on Monday.



FOR THE SECOND straight week, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing Friday at 323.7 from 321.1 a week earlier, as shown above. Led by livestock, the commodity index advanced for the second straight week, closing at 172.5 from 172.4 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Oil, Gas District Activity Declines

Activity in the Monroe Oil and Gas District was not on a par with previous recent weeks, although generally the weather was fair and other favorable conditions existed.

In the weekly report issued by District Manager Duncan S. Cook, there were ten completions compared to a range of 12-16 during June.

Only 23 applications for permits to drill were recorded for the week ending July 8, whereas the week before 36 new locations were logged.

Two of the completions were in the Monroe Gas Field of Morehouse Parish: Americana Oil and Gas Prop's. HSU 510, Anderson et al No. 5B, gauged, MCF gas; and Clarence Kenyon's Spyker No. 1, gauged, MCF gas.

Other completions were scattered over the district area: Catahoula Parish-Utility Field, Concordia Parish - Lake St. John, Jackson Parish - Calhoun, LaSalle Parish - Nolan's Bayou and Rapides Parish - Big Island.

Multiple completions were recorded only in Union Parish, all wildcat fields. (See listings below.)

There were three new locations in the Monroe Gas Field. One was in Morehouse Parish, Americana Oil and Gas Prop's. Domino No. 1, and two in Ouachita Parish, Primos Oil and Gas Corp's. Wood No. 2 and White No. 1.

Concordia Parish led the way in new locations, with 11. There were three in Catahoula, four in LaSalle and one each in Rapides and Tensas. (See Listings below.)

There were a total of 103 locations, with 35 active, 79 inactive and 22 abandoned.

Three recompletions logged were: Concordia Parish, South Rifle Point Field — Caruthers Operation Company Inc's Learned-Peabody No. 3, recompleted 6-26-65, 60 BOPD, 12 MCF gas, 6010 feet; and Caruthers Operation Company Inc's Learned-Peabody No. 4, recompleted 6-25-65, 50 BOPD, 12 MCF gas, 4139 feet; Tensas Parish, Glade Bayou Field — Sun Oil Company's Ferr SU, Hyde Ut "A" No. 1, recompleted 6-30-65, 31 BOPD, 21 MCF, 8150 feet.

Stocks Post Small Gains During Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market failed in this holiday-shortened week to follow through on last week's strong rally.

Trading fell off sharply and the averages managed to post only small gains for the week.

For most of the week institutional demand was lacking and investors nursed their war scares as the fighting in Viet Nam escalated.

Volume for the four-day week totaled 15,618,870 shares against 33,860,195 for the previous week and 25,594,771 a year earlier.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 2.6 for the week to 323.7. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 4.23 for the week to 879.49.

On Wednesday, the market dragged through its most lethargic session in nearly two years. Volume fell to 3.03 million shares, lowest since 2.94 million shares changed hands Aug. 2, 1963.

The market showed its only spark of the week on Thursday, when it pulled out of the doldrums with a sudden sharp rally in late trading. Institutional buying and short covering were credited for the gain.

The five most active stocks this week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Polaroid, up 5½ at 65 on 306,800 shares; Fairchild Camera, up 5 at 47; Control Data, up ⅞ at 39; General Motors, off 1 at 97⅛; and Chrysler, off 1 at 46⅜.

The five most active stocks this week on the American Stock Exchange were:

National Video, up 1½ at 42⅛ on 130,500 shares; Syntex, up 4¾ at 79½; Asamera Oil, off 1-16 at 1 13-16; New Idria Mining, off ⅛ at 3⅝, and Computer Sciences, up 6⅞ at 57½.

Cotton Futures Prices Mostly Steady, Firmer

NEW YORK (AP)—Domestic cotton futures through the July, 1966, delivery were steady to firmer this week, but the two most distant months continued to decline.

For the week ended Friday domestic contracts were up $3.75 to off $3.75 a bale on the New York Cotton Exchange.

The nontraded foreign contracts were up 50 cents to off 50 cents a bale.

The July, 1965, domestic contracts, in which trading expired July 8, went off the board up $3.50 a bale from the previous week's close. The comparable foreign contract was not quoted.

The strength of the spot month reflected short covering. The weakness of the most distant months reflected a continuing adjustment to lower levels that might result from enactment of proposed cotton legislation.

If enacted, the Cooley cotton bill, as approved by the House Agriculture Committee, would result in a 1965 crop loan rate of 21 cents a pound and a subsidy payment of nine cents. In addition, growers would receive acreage diversion payments. To participate in any price-support benefit a grower would have to reduce his effective acreage allotment by 15 per cent and could reduce it as much as 35 per cent.

Exports during the week ended last July 6 were only 40,000 bales, against 85,000 a week earlier and 99,000 a year ago.

For the current season through July 6 exports were an estimated 3,757,000 bales. To the same time last season they totaled $5,058,000 bales. If shipments from now to the end of the month were to equal those of a year ago, a season export total of about 4,360,000 bales would be in prospect.

Sears To Spend Over $80 Million For Advertising

Sears, Roebuck and Co. expects to spend more than $80 million for newspaper advertising this year, it was announced by George H. Struthers, vice president in charge of merchandising.

The estimate is based on preliminary reports and forecasts from the 780 Sears retail stores across the nation.

At the same time, Struthers disclosed that Sears expenditures for newspaper advertising in 1964 rose 17.1 per cent over the previous year to a new record of $76,350,900. The 1963 expenditure was $65,166,000.

"This year is the 40th anniversary of Sears' entry into the retail business and, therefore, it is particularly appropriate that our newspaper expenditures should reach record proportions," Struthers said.

"From the day our first retail store was opened in Chicago on February 2, 1925, we have maintained a close working relationship with the newspapers in those communities we serve. These newspapers have played a significant part in our retail growth."

In a report just completed, Marvin C. Lunde, national retail sales promotion and advertising manager of Sears, said the company's retail stores purchased 341.9 million lines of white space last year in 989 daily and weekly papers.

The report shows that the $76 million spent for newspaper advertising last year represented 70.4 per cent of Sears total retail media expense of $108,362,900. Advertising through circulars, magazines, radio and television, and miscellaneous media accounted for the remainder.

Crops Outlook Affects Grain Futures Market

CHICAGO (AP)—The outlook for production of major crops improved almost daily this week and imparted a generally bearish influence to the grain futures market.

Nearly all commodities were under selling pressure most of the time and finished with small to broad losses on the Board of Trade. The only net gainer was the July new standard grade wheat and it was up only a minimum fraction.

Most declines were a cent a bushel or more, with July soybeans particularly and induced a good deal of short selling in beans down 6 cents.

Reports of good rainfall over much of the Midwest improved the outlook for corn and soybeans particularly and induced a good deal of short selling in the pits. Moreover, a private crop report early in the week confirmed opinion of most traders that the yields probably would average as good or better than in 1964.

At the end of the week, soybeans were 1¾-6¼ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, July $2.87-87¾; new standard grade wheat ⅛ higher to ⅝ lower, July $1.42¾-⅝; corn 1½-2½ lower, July $1.28⅞; oats ½-⅞ lower, July 67¼ cents; rye ⅞ to 1 cent lower, July $1.10⅝.

Shell Testing Smith County Wildcat Well

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Shell Oil Co. was reported to have resumed testing Saturday at its Smith County wildcat after running a squeeze cement job to shut off water in a perforated interval below 16,300 feet.

The well is reported to have flowed in excess of 400 barrels of oil per day with large water content after perforations in the Smackover lime zone were acidized.

Operators released no information on the potential deep discovery northwest of the Bay Springs field. The well failed to log the 14,500 foot oil sand productive in the Bay Springs field but is reported to have logged a number of possible productive zones in the Smackover below 15,500 feet.

In Yazoo County Sinclair Oil and Bateman Exploration Co. tested on pump their new discovery northeast of the Bentonia oil field. The well is reported pumping in excess of 200 barrels of oil per day from perforations at 8,885-91 feet. Operators installed pumping equipment for permanent completion after the well flowed 150 barrels per day with low flowing pressure on initial test.

In the Bay Springs oil field of Jasper County, Skelly Oil Co. recorded a flowing test of 1,106 barrels per day from its well during testing period before completion. The allowable for the field is 500 barrels per day per well with all six of the producers capable of flowing in excess.

Drilling activity at Bay Springs currently lists six-well drilling. Skelly is below 10,100 feet in its Sims No. 1, and below 8,100 feet in its Gallman No. 1. Skelly's third test, the Hall No. 1, is below 4,500 feet. Shell and Pan American are below 10,200 feet in the Alexandria No. 1, and below 7,100 in the Sims No. 1. The same operators third test, the Blakeney No. 1, is below 6,300 feet.

Also in Jasper County, Shell Oil is below 10,500 feet in its wildcat northeast of the Bay Springs field.

Placid Oil Co. has opened the first Smackover lime oil pool in the four-year-old Pool Creek field of Jones County. The well is flowing 600 barrels per day from perforations in the Smackover at 12,750-70 feet. The Pool Creek is northeast of Laurel.

Army Still Not Weakening In Hunger Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The weakening Saturday in a showdown with a Fort Monmouth, N.J., private who is conducting a hunger strike in order to obtain an honorable discharge.

A top Army spokesman said military authorities were determined not to yield in the dispute with Pvt. David Ovall of Los Angeles. Ovall began the fast June 20 after he was informed his request for discharge as a conscientious objector had been denied.

Ovall claims to have lost 42 pounds in 20 days. The Army questioned this because Ovall weighed only 122 pounds when inducted and was found to weigh 121 a week after starting his fast. He now is being forced-fed at the post hospital at Fort Monmouth.

Maj. Gen. George V. Underwood Jr., the Army's public information officer, told UPI in an interview that the Army had no intention of giving in to Ovall.

According to Underwood, the Selective Service ruled that Ovall did not qualify for his requested discharge as a conscientious objector. Ovall had not sought deferement as a conscientious objector before he was inducted into the Army Aug. 16, 1964, in Los Angeles.

The Fort Monmouth hospital reported Ovall had regained some weight since forced feeding was started Thursday. Underwood said the lowest weight recorded for him was 115 pounds on July 8.

Quotes

By United Press International

JOHNSON CITY, Tex.—President Johnson, praising Congress for passing the controversial voting rights bill:

"We have been awakened to justice by the sound of songs and sermons, speeches and peaceful demonstrations, but the noiseless, secret vote will thunder forth a hundred times more loudly — inspiring the faithful, summoning the reluctant, and strengthening a nation in its search for the promises of equality."

SAIGON — Retiring U. S. might be forced to discuss peace terms for Viet Nam by the end of the current monsoon season:

"They can't win in South Viet Nam and, furthermore, they're going to continue to take losses from our bombardment in the north. If, at the end of this rainy season, they have lost on both fronts, I would think indeed that it would be time for stocktaking in the north."

CORFU, Greece — King Constantine, commenting on the birth of his first child, a 9-pound, 12-ounce daughter:

"She has black hair, but the color may change, the doctors tell me. Her eyes are blue. How shall I say it . . . she is very beautiul."

Beer Stacked For Cuba Rally

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Countless cases of beer are being stacked at Santa Clara and facilities there are being prepared to welcome 500,000 Cubans who will celebrate the Castro regime's main Holiday July 26.

Havana radio described preparations Saturday. A broadcast monitored at Miami said 3,500 persons are converting the Las Villas Province capital to a rally site.

July 26, 1953, was the date Fidel Castro's small group attacked a Cuban army post near Santiago de Cuba and thus struck the first blow of the revolution which took over Cuba in 1959.

"If need be, we'll make every tree a school!"

Mexico's Minister of Education made this bold statement of an ambitious program in 1958.

In Mexico, where lumber is scarce and trees are protected with stringent modern forestry programs, the statement has even more meaning.

And Mexico has put that meaning into action. Our modern neighbor spends a quarter of its national budget on education. Mexico is in the middle of a program to build 39,000 new classrooms and train 67,000 new teachers by 1970 . . . and they're well ahead of schedule.

From 3,000 years of civilized traditions, Mexico has built a strong present . . . and they're teaching the youngsters how to build a strong future.

Skirl Of Bagpipes Heard In Mountains

GRANDFATHER MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — The skirl of bagpipes floated through North Carolina mountain meadows Saturday as thousands in Scottish dress joined in the nation's largest salute to the tartan.

The eerie music set the mood and the magic for the 10th annual Highland games and gathering of Scottish clans at Grandfather Mountain in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Tartan kilts and Balmoral bonnets dotted Macrae Meadows for the two-day show where a Scottish burr is more prized than money in the bank.

Folks of Scottish ancestry claim it is the biggest Scottish gathering in America and the biggest held any place outside Scotland.

The U.S. Air Force bagpipe band, making its first appearance at the gathering, is a featured attraction this year. Dozens of other pipe bands in colorful costume — including the famed Carnegie Tech and Miami pipers — also paraded.

Lassies bounced and whirled in such Highland dances as the Fling, the Sword Dance and the Seann Truibhas while stalwart young men competed in track and field events such as the tossing of the caber and the sheaf and Highland wrestling.

Piping contests and much parading and serenading was climaxed Saturday night with the annual Tartan Ball. A community type songfest of Scottish songs left many tearful.

N. J. MacDonald, president of the games and vice president of the Saint Andrews Society of New York, welcomed fellow Scots and non-Scots to the festivities during midmorning ceremonies.

The thousands attending the weekend gathering represent some 100 different clans from throughout the United States. Last year, participants registered from 23 states, New Zealand, Scotland and Canada.

And more and more gather at Grandfather mountain each year.

Sixteen clans sponsor the festival, which was founded in 1956, and traditionally includes a Sunday parade and exhibition of champions following an outdoor morning worship service.

Uganda Official To Visit Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda left here Saturday after a five-day official visit and talks with President Tito and other Yugoslav officials.

A communique signed before his departure disclosed that a credit of $11.2 million had been authorized by Yugoslavia for Ugandan purchase of equipment in Yugoslavia.

Nixon Backing Viet Nam Policy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday he supports U.S. policy in Viet Nam and added:

"America must speak with one voice when the security of America is involved. The United States today is not speaking with one strong voice. The President owes it to the nation to repudiate . . . the critics in his own party."

Addressing the 48th annual convention of Lions International, Nixon advanced other suggestions he said might help strengthen foreign policy. He said the United States should:

—Fight on the sea and in the air and avoid a "Korean-type war."

—Step up sea and air attacks on military targets and not rule out bombing of North Viet Nam military installations for fear of Soviet retaliation.

—"Stop exporting anything to Russia as long as they export revolution."

Nixon also advocated formation of an alliance of free Asian nations to assume collective responsibility in Asia.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S desk located in the Presidential Suite of the new Federal Bldg. in Austin, Tex., was shown to the press for the first time Saturday. Thant Says Three Powers Interested In Cease Fire

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General, U Thant said Saturday the United States, Britain and France were "very much interested" in his proposals for a cease-fire in Viet Nam and a new Geneva conference.

Thant pressed his Vietnamese peace offensive in talks with officials during a week's visit to Europe, including two meetings in Geneva with Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

"Of course," Thant told newsmen. "There was no official reaction yet." His assessment of Western reaction, he said, was based on his talks with diplomats and officials.

He also said he had not yet presented his ideas to the Soviet Union, Comunist China or North Viet Nam, but added he would do so "at the appropriate time." In addition, he will confer with South Vietnamese, Cambodian and Laotian officials, Thant added.

The secretary-general returned to New York on Friday night from a trip apparently designed to revive the Geneva conference to settle the Vietnamese war. He discussed Viet Nam with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville in Paris and with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart in London.

Earlier this year, Thant tried unsuccessfully to set up talks to prepare for another Geneva confernece. The first, in 1954, freed Indochina from French colonial rule, carved out the new states of the area, including North and South Viet Nam, called for the withdrawal of all foreign combat troops and proposed eventual unification of the two Viet Nams through free elections.

In statements in London on Friday and in New York on Friday night, Thant directly appealed for a new Geneva conference to discuss ways of implementing the 1954 agreement. He said "there must be a cease-fire" to save lives and protect property.

In April Thant said he would only urge a cease-fire when he considered the prospects good for acceptance of such an appeal.

His latest statement, therefore, puzzled some diplomatic observers, since neither side has shown any indication of halting the hositilities in the midst of the Viet Cong's monsoon offensive.

Peace-Feelers Sent To North Viet Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has on "more than one occasion" sent written peace-feelers to Communist North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi, officials disclosed Saturday.

One was sent last May as the United States paused for five days in its bombing of North Viet Nam.

Text of the message was delivered to authorities in Hanoi by the British counsel-general. It notified the North Vietnamese of the bombing pause and sought a response from them toward reducing hostilities.

Hanoi quickly returned the message to the British, along with Britain's covering note, with no comment or explanation. Meanwhile, over the public Hanoi Radio, the government denounced the pause as a "trick of deceit."

This is the only occasion where it can be demonstrated by public record that the United States has tried to communicate in writing with Hanoi. But well qualified U.S. sources say other such messages were sent there at about the time of the bombing pause which took place May 13-17.

They would not say whether any have been sent since.

Existence of any written communication with Hanoi has been intentionally clouded with obscuring by Washington. One reason is the political sensibilities of the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese government at Saigon. It regards any act which might remotely imply there is a "government" in Hanoi with much the same feelings West Germans have about Communist East Germany.

In a speech last June 23, Secretary of State Dean Rusk said only that the bombing pause "was made known to the other side to see if there would be a response in kind."

In a television interview recorded June 24 and broadcast by the U.S. Information Agency abroad July 4, Rusk went a bit further and said: "We've asked the other side on more than one occasion what else would stop if we stopped the bombing" — meaning whether North Viet Nam would halt its infiltration and attacks in the south. Rusk said "we've never had any reply."

First word of any written communication came very belatedly through the unlikely source of Hansard, the British equivalent of The Congressional Record. On June 21 it reported a parliamentary question put to the British government asking what response had been received "to the overtures made through her majesty's consul-general in Hanoi before, during and after" the bombing pause.

Hansard reported this written reply to the question by British Foreign Affairs Secretary Michael Stewart: "At the request of the United States government, and in order to explore all means which might help towards a peaceful settlement in Viet Nam, her majesty's government authorized her majesty's consul-general in Hanoi to deliver to the authorities there the text of a message from the United States government."

Stewart went on to relate how the message had been sent back without comment.

Somehow this British public report has virtually escaped notice in the United States. State Department spokesmen at first were instructed to have no comment on it if asked by newsmen, which they weren't. Later, they were authorized to confirm what Stewart had said but to say no more.

U.S. officials declined to say exactly what heading is placed on U.S. messages to Hanoi. Presumably the heading is either blank or in some form which would not imply recognition of a Hanoi "government."

The problem of recognition is one of the difficulties in writing Hanoi. Authorities there recently bounced back a British message concerning the Commonwealth peace mission on the ground that Britain—which does not recognize Hanoi either — had not addressed them as a sovereign government.

Disclosure of the U.S. messages clears up one question frequently asked by newsmen at the time of the bombing pause which was never fully explained to the American public with some confusion. Some officials claimed it was merely "operational." Others said it had diplomatic purpose. Newsmen asked how Hanoi was supposed to know the pause was designed to elicit a response and was not merely "operational."

They were told merely that Hanoi had been made aware of the purpose through a channel which could not be disclosed.

New Air Force Chief Nuclear Age Veteran

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next civilian chief of the mighty U.S. Air Force is both a youthful prodigy and a veteran of the nuclear age.

For Dr. Harhold Brown will have just turned 38 in September when he takes over from Eugene Zuckert as secretary of the Air Force.

The young-looking Brown was less than half his present age when he was pretty well along toward cutting his scientific teeth on atoms at Columbia University.

He was a graduate physicist before he was old enough to vote and was lecturing and researching in the field of nuclear physics by the time he was 22, equipped with a Ph.D. degree and an intense interest in nuclear energy.

Young as he is, Brown will not be the youngest man ever to head one of the military services. That distinction still is held by John C. Calhoun who was only 35 when he became secretary of war during a career that lifted him to almost every top national position except the presidency.

Despite his lack of years and youthful appearance, Brown has been around and in the government for a long time. After lecturing at Columbia and at Stevens Institute of Technology, he joined the University of California Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley to work on neutron physics and nuclear reactors.

By 1952 he was on the staff of the government radiation laboratory operated by the University of California at Livermore. And within eight years he was boss of this key facility.

Brown's interest at Livermore was divided between improving reactors for peaceful purposes and advancing the application of nuclear energy to military weapons.

And until Brown came to the Pentaton in 1961 to become the defense establishment's director of research and engineering, he continued to work all sides of the nuclear problem.

He was a member of the Navy's special steering committee to guide the development of the Polaris, submarine-carrier ballistic missile. Later he was a scientific adviser to the Air Force and member of its advisory committee in intercontinental ballistic missiles.

While this was going on Brown found time to work on the problems of detecting nuclear explosions and served as an adviser at several sessions of the Geneva conference on weapons-testing and later helped the State Department in negotiations that led to the treaty banning nuclear detonations in the atmosphere.

Inclined to be retiring, Brown rarely makes much of a splash and sticks to the business at hand.

His close-cropped hair and full-rimmed glasses still give him the appearance of a man who would be more at home in an isolated laboratory than in the midst of the political and financial tugging and hauling that are part of the job of heading a military service.

Cabinet Given

ALGIERS (AP) — Col. Houari Boumedienne announced Saturday a 20-member Cabinet which includes only nine men from the Cabinet of President Ahmed Ben Bella which Boumedienne deposed in a military coup June 19.

Monroe Police Charge Suspect After Shooting

Monroe police charged a 23-year-old Monroe man in the shooting of another Friday night in the 1700 block of Grammont Street.

Charged with aggravated battery was Johnny Jackson of 1601 Wood St. Jackson is accused of shooting Dave Whitfield, 25, of 1723 Wood St., Monroe.

According to police reports, a man entered a residence at 1704 Grammont, fired two shots and then went out into the street. Whitfield approached and was shot in the right thigh. The weapon, said to be a .22 caliber pistol, was not found.

Whitfield was treated at Conwas Hospital. All involved were Negroes.

In other action, Twin Cities authorities booked seven with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Charged with DWI in Monroe were Edward G. Sloan, 43, of 200 S. 4th St., Monroe, apprehended at South Fourth and Layton Streets at 11:30 p.m.; Burt M. Campbell, 45, of Jackson, Miss., apprehended at North Second and DeSiard Streets at 12:10 a.m.; E. E. Jackson, 23, of 511 Natchitoches Rd., West Monroe, apprehended at Ninth Street and Texas Avenue at 1:10 a.m.; and Woodrow W. Brown, 40, of Bastrop, apprehended in the 100 block of Sixth Street at 1:30 p.m.

Booked on the count by West Monroe officers were Algie Hicks, 37, of 1009 N. 8th St., West Monroe, apprehended on Cypress Street at 12:40 p.m. Wilmer J. O'Neal, 27, of Bernice, apprehended at Mill and Cypress Streets at 5:15 a.m.; and Ezell Smith, 29, of Bogalusa, apprehended at 10:33 p.m. on Cypress Street. All three were also charged with reckless driving.

Booked with simple robbery Saturday in Monroe was Tim Bradley, 29, of 1506 Washington St., Monroe.

Dan Webb, 23, of Channelview, Tex., was booked with theft by check. Webb was arrested on warrant Saturday.

Booked for reckless driving in West Monroe were James A. Colvin, 18, of 407 Chickasaw St., West Monroe; Jerry E. Coleman, 32, of 507 Ferndale St., West Monroe; and Luther R. Richardson, 38, of Rt. 5, West Monroe.

In other action, a hacksaw blade found in the colored female section of the city jail prompted two arrests by Monroe police.

Charged with assisting escape were Justine Garner, 18, of 32B Carroll Dr., Monroe, and John M. Cole, 31, of 305 Congo St., Monroe.

Acting on a tip, police found the blade on an inmate in the jail Friday night. Under questioning, police learned that the blade was slipped into the jail from an alley on the south side of the building.

The arrest of the Garner woman followed. She later implicated Cole, naming him as her accomplice, police said.

Booked by Monroe police for simple robbery was John Lee, 28, of Alexandria.

Ticketed in Monroe following a minor accident were David L. Barrow, 22, of 310½ Virginia St., Monroe, and Kathryn B. Moses, 28, of 4009 Halsell St., Monroe. Both were charged with negligent driving.

Max Dean, 17, of 1207 S. 2nd St., Monroe, was arrested on warrant for speeding.

Booked for theft and disturbing the peace in West Monroe was Mack Taylor, 37, of No. 2 Ross Alley, Monroe. He was arrested late Saturday.

Bank Robbery Pleas Entered

EL DORADO, Ark. (UPI) — Two Louisiana men accused of robbing the Taylor branch of the First National Bank of Magnolia, Ark., pleaded guilty Saturday to federal charges of bank robbery and kidnaping.

Bobby Holmes, 23, of Bossier City and Jack Gibson, 26, of Springhill entered the plea at an arraignment before U.S. Commissioner J. G. Ragsdale.

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents from Little Rock and Texarkana escorted them from the Columbia County jail at Magnolia to the arraignment.

They were charged with taking $8,862 and Mrs. Billy Nations, the branch manager, and Mrs. Joe Hoyle, an employe. The women were released unharmed near Plain Dealing, La., and Holmes and Gibson were arrested at a roadblock near Benton, La., Friday.

The money was recovered.

INCLUDE HH IN YOUR BUILDING PLANS!

WHY?

1. BECAUSE . . . when you own a home by Holiday Homes you can rest assured that you have a house of the utmost quality . . . with special attention paid to every detail! . . . Built to last your lifetime!
2. BECAUSE . . . you save through quantity buying! Yes, Holiday Homes maintain their own lumber and supply yards . . . and buy directly from the manufacturers. You, in turn, save the "middle man's" profit!
3. BECAUSE . . . you save on the lot! Yes, Holiday Homes own their own lots in 5 Great Subdivisions in Monroe, West Monroe, Bastrop, and El Dorado, and are able to sell directly to you at great savings!
4. BECAUSE . . . all Holiday Homes are "Medallion Homes" . . . earning this distinction through their "Total-Electric" kitchens, flameless air conditioning, and many other electrical features.

WE WILL CONSIDER A TRADE!

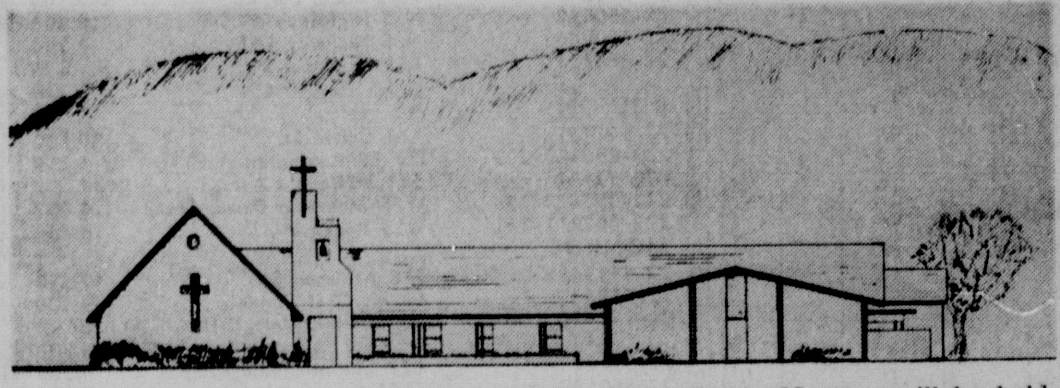
There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

God's love never ends.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.



OPEN HOUSE for the new Children's Building, shown at right in sketch, at Southside Methodist Church, 1623 South 4th St. in Monroe, will be held this afternoon as a part of the 13th annual homecoming observance there.

Homecoming Scheduled At Southside

The 13th annual homecoming will be observed today at Southside Methodist Church, 1623 South 4th St., Monroe, with the pastor, the Rev. Lea Joyner, presenting the message at 8:30 a.m. and 10:50 a.m. services.

The pastor is starting her 14th year with the church.

Members of the church will provide food for all of those in attendance at noon.

Musical Program

A musical program, starting at 1:30 in the afternoon, will be directed by Jack Hesketh and J. E. Boozer, and will feature the church choirs, quartets, and other special music.

Colored slides of the activities of the church during the past 13 years will be shown during the afternoon session.

Open house will be held for the new Children's Building following the afternoon program. This new addition brings the valuation of church property up to $245,168, with an indebtedness of $46,201. The membership is now 1,113.

Grace McPherson is homecoming chairman, Guy Gannaway, official board chairman, B. A. Hynum, chairman of trustees, Pete Medak, church lay leader, and C. E. Vaughan building committee chairman.

Rev. Mitchell Guest Pastor

The Rev. A. T. Mitchell, who last Sunday completed a tour as interim pastor at Faith Baptist Church of Monroe, today will be guest speaker at a church where he was pastor 25 years ago.

He will preach at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Bernice. He came from the Bernice church 25 years ago to West Monroe, to establish Ridge Avenue Baptist Church.

THE PASTOR of the West Monroe First Baptist Church, Dr. Clifton Tennison, at right, talks with Gregory Walcott, actor - producer, during the recent Baptist World Alliance in Miami. They discussed Walcott's production plans for a movie, "Bill Wallace of China," based on the life of the Tennessee medical missionary who served in China.

Local Pastor Told Plans On Religious Film

While attending the recent Baptist World Alliance sessions in Miami, Dr. Clifton Tennison, pastor of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe, and his wife, visited a movie display in the exhibit area and heard plans for a film production.

They talked with Gregory Walcott regarding plans for a movie, "Bill Wallace of China."

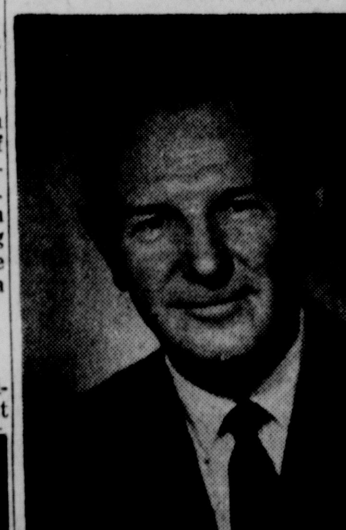
The movie will be based on Jesse Fletcher's biography of the Tennessee medical missionary who served in China. His medical skill and Christian witness became a legend among the people of south China. He died in 1951, a martyr, in a communist prison cell.

Title Role

Walcott, former vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention will enact the title role. The actor is familiar to the public as Detective Haviland in the 87th Precinct television series.

The wide screen color film is scheduled for production in October on location in Knoxville and Hong Kong, with a budget of $1,600,000. World wide release is set for early summer 1966.

Dr. Tennison and the actor-producer have been friends for several years. Walcott spoke at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe in November, 1963.



REV. E. P. NICHOLS

Rev. E. P. Nichols Is Guest Speaker At Church Here

The pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Alexandria, the Rev. E. P. Nichols, will be guest speaker at 11 a.m. services today at the First Presbyterian Church of Monroe.

Rev. Nichols studied at Davidson College and served for 12 years as clerk of court in North Carolina before entering Columbia Theological Seminary to study for ministry.

He served four pastorates in Georgia before coming to Alexandria in June, 1960. He has two married daughters and two grandchildren.

New Challenges In Ministry Study

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "The same challenges of old yardsticks" that brought revolts to college campuses are going on among students for the ministry, says the Rev. Dr. Duke McCall, president of Southern Baptist Seminary.

It hasn't shown in the same ways as on other campuses, says Dr. McCall, but seminary students "are no longer willing to swallow dogmatic statements. They no longer come in saying, 'I am a young theologian, teach me what Baptists think'."

Question Statements

The student questions any definite statement a professor makes, he said, because "he looks at the world and says the old answers have not solved all the problems and asks isn't there a better answer."

Dr. McCall, president of the oldest and second largest of six Southern Baptist seminaries, said this has forced a revision in the way sources are taught.

Seminary students want to change the world and are impatient with present progress, he said in an interview.

"If I make some small contribution to move the world a little bit closer to the ideal of peace on earth, I will be satisfied," he said. "The student wants to see all armies disbanded in his lifetime. He wants to solve labor-management problems his first Sunday in the pulpit. He is frustrated by differences of vested interest."

Channels Cluttered

Dr. McCall attributed a drop in enrollment at seminaries to the fact that "channels of change are cluttered." Many in the Peace Corps are seminary graduates, he said, and many more will be entering social work with the increase in federal welfare programs.

These may provide the best short term answers, Dr. McCall said, "but in the long term, the answers are religious answers because you change the basic attitudes of a comumunity and this takes a long time, some miracle work and the grace of God."

Students no longer enter the ministery to escape worldly problems, he said. "The civil rights movement has taken care of this. They move to the eye of a hurricane that can tear a community apart.

"They are more likely to ask, 'Is this the place I am most likely to get involved or can I be more effective as a politician or social worker?

"We thought the church provided the answer. The young theologian is not sure the institutional church is the answer. He is frustrated by the differences in the ideal church and the actual church, between what we preach and what we practice."

Commendation Given Church For Its Work

The West Monroe Methodist Protestant Church, 232 Lilac St., recently was given an honorable mention commendation by the Mississippi Annual Conference meeting at its Bible Camp at Collins, Miss.

The Rev. Ken Renfrow, pastor, said the commendation stated: "For the faith manifest by the members of the West Monroe Methodist Protestant Church . . . we express our appreciation for the things achieved by them for the building of the Kingdom of God during the past year. Among the accomplishments of the church during the past year are the following list of items:

"1. Support of the Methodist Protestant faith. 2. Increased membership by 13 during the conference year. 3. An active Sunday school program. 4. Have purchased land valued at $5,000 to be used as site for church building which will be constructed in the future. 5. Support of the church college, Whitworth, by giving $525 to that cause.

"We trust that the church will accept our recommendation and in the years to come their work will be even greater in the Kingdom of God."

News Briefs In Religion

Trailer Church

ELKTON, Ky. (AP) — Members of the Elkton Catholic Mission attend services in one of the most unusual structures in Kentucky.

The mission is housed in an air-conditioned trailer, 50 feet long, 12 feet wide and with a seating capacity for 48.

The trailer was custon built and donated by a mission society in Cincinnati.

Theology Under Reds

BERLIN, West Germany (AP) — Newest statistics issued by the neighboring East German government indicate that one out of every 200 students enrolled in universities or colleges in the Communist ruled part of Germany is studying for the Protestant ministry. The figure was 592 out of a total of 115,673. It compares with 554 the previous year.

Bar Removed

NANTES, France (AP) — Although the French Reformed Church has previously allowed the ordination of women only "in exceptional circumstances," its national synod has now opened the door to their ordination on the same conditions as men. The synod turned down a stipulation that women ministers must be unmarried.

Kids Help Missionaries

NASHVILLE (AP) — Children of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (southern) have collected $6,983.14 to buy bicycles and motorbikes for missionaries in rural areas overseas who have had to travel among their congregations on foot. The project for grade schoolers was suggested by the church's board of world missions.

Council Names Cohen

NEW YORK (AP) — The newly elected president of the Synagogue Council of America, an agency including the Reform, Conservative and Orthodox wings of Judaism, is Rabbi Seymour J. Cohen, of Anshe Emet synagogue, Chicago. He succeeds Rabbi Uri Miller of Baltimore.

Racial Lines Erased

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Nearly 200 Negro Methodist churches and about 370 white Methodist churches in this southern peninsula region have merged into a single integrated Methodist annual conference, ending separate administrative jurisdictions for the two groups. It was the first actual merger in a process for eliminating segregated jurisdiction throughout the denomination.

Salute To Missioners

MARYKNOLL, N.Y. (AP) — A huge 114-year-old bell, which once called Buddhist monks to prayer at a temple in Japan, rang out here in mid-June, marking the departure of 47 newly ordained priests as Catholic missioners in foreign lands. The bell, a landmark at the Maryknoll Major seminary here is rung only once a year — on "Departure Day."

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

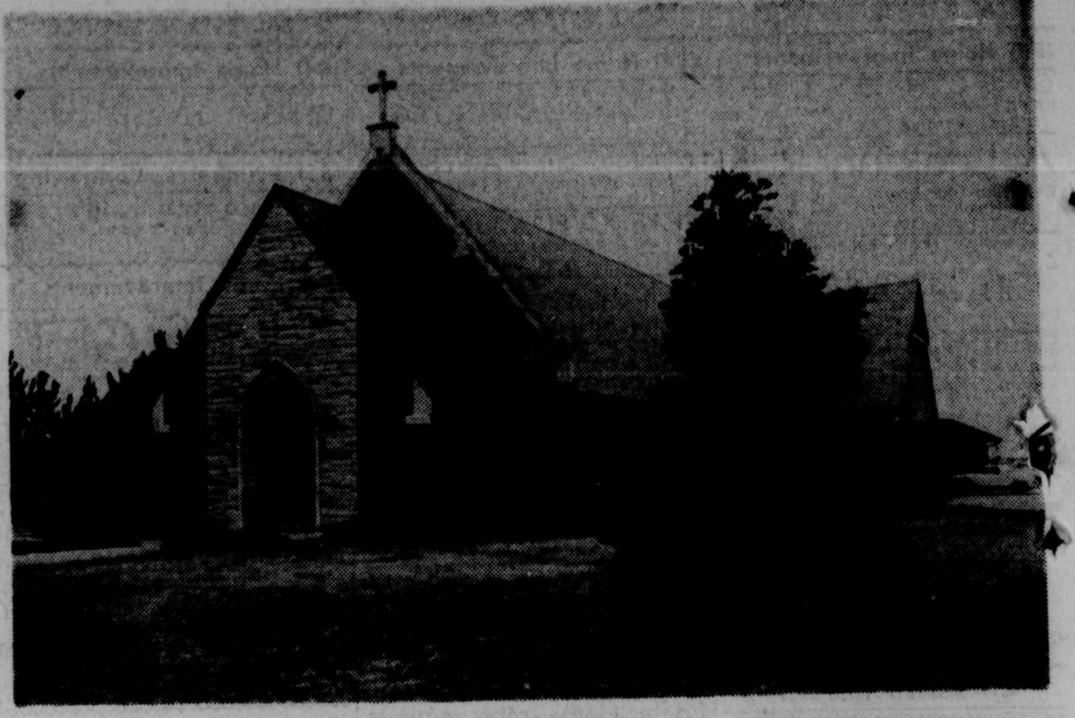
QUESTION: My family says that I worry about nonessentials, and they have branded me "the worrier". But, I don't believe that I worry. Rather, it is concern. I am of a rather serious turn of mind, and I am tremendously concerned over my family's health and welfare.

H.B.

ANSWER; A bassoon player came to the great conductor, Toscanini, with furrowed brow, and complained that his instrument would not sound the high E-flat. Toscanini smiled and said: "Don't worry. There is no E-flat in your music tonight." The musician was "concerned", but needlessly. Many of our worries are like that — they are unfounded and unnecessary.

Two suggestions for you. First, learn to trust God. One who trusts never worries, and one who worries never trusts. The Bible says the "very hairs of our heads are numbered" by the Lord. Someone took the trouble to count the hairs on a man's head, and came up with the figure 135,168. So important are you to God that He has tabulated every hair of your head. If He has done that, how much more is He concerned about our sorrow, our anxiety, and our burdens.

Second, develop a little sense of humor. You say "you are serious." But, don't take yourself or your troubles too seriously. A joyful person adds to the music of life, but a kill - joy brings discord. Other people have had more trouble than you and didn't make such a big fuss over it.



Covenant Presbyterian Church, Milton Street at Orell Place, Monroe

Many Activities Centered At Covenant Presbyterian

Covenant Presbyterian Church, Milton Street at Orell Place in Monroe, was organized by Red River Presbytery on February 20, 1952. It was the result of efforts by a number of members of First Presbyterian Church, who felt there was need for another Presbyterian church in Monroe, with its location being on the northside.

Following the organization of Covenant, its members began holding regular services in Brown Auditorium of Northeast State College, with various ministers officiating until a pastor could be secured for permanent assignment to the post.

Purchased Land

The congregation purchased a block of ground from the Cole Estate as the first step in having its own building. Later, an additional block was bought, providing adequate land for many years to come.

A lot for the location of the manse was purchased across the street from the site for the church building.

The manse was constructed in 1953 and the first unit of the church plant was constructed in 1954 with an additional unit being added in 1959. Church officials said that it is anticipated that more rooms will be added soon to increase Sunday school space, which is greatly needed.

The building is a meeting place for many groups and there is a lot of activity there. Besides the regular meetings of the men, women, youth groups and study groups of the church, there are meetings of Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies, and other organizations.

Many Services

"We are a church which seeks to serve, and we do serve in many ways," said the Rev. Wayne W. Gray, who has been minister of the church since January 1, 1953, and is now in his 13th year there.

The church is governed by the session, which is composed of 12 elders elected by the congregation. Members of the session are Fred Brownlee, T. A. Calloway, Dr. H. H. Davis Jr., Billy Edmonson, Dr. Walter J. Ernst, R. D. Farr Jr., R. L. George Jr., Bruce Gregg, Jesse D. McDonald, R. Fred Petty, James M. Simmons, and M. G. Ward.

The property and finances come under the responsibility of the deacons, of which there are 14. They include Charles A. Albright, Richard T. Bright, W. J. Chapman Jr., William J. Herring, Graham Humble, Robert H. Hurst, Jack P. Mabray, Fred C. McCall, Bill Oliver, Herman H. Rymer, Bob Pribble, Frank P. Smith, Bob Tucker, and J. B. Young.

Rev. Gray said, "Our budget for this year is just over $50,000, of which $10,000 is designated for benevolences, work beyond our own congregation. Our membership is 380."

He explained that the church has a day kindergarten and this fall will also conduct a day nursery. It also has ample playground equipment and a ball diamond which are used by neighborhood children.

The director of Christian education is Mrs. Howard C. Morland, who works with the Sunday school and youth groups. Miss Mamie McNeill is the church secretary, Mrs. Loydelle (William J.) Herring is choir director, and Ronny Brothers is organist.

Rev. Gray first pastored in Clarendon, Ark. from 1929 to 1934. He went from there to Caruthersville, Missouri, during the period of 1934-49. During five years of that time in World War Two he was on leave serving as an army chaplain, first in Puerto Rico and then on Okinawa. His next pastoral assignment was in Knoxville, Tenn. From there he went to Memphis, where he served prior to the Monroe assignment.

The pastor studied at Southwestern in Memphis and attended seminary in Princeton, N.J. He is married to the former Christine Edmonds of Bernie, Mo. They celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last December 24. They reside in the manse at 1811 Milton.

COVENANT'S MISSION

That you may be filled with all of the fullness of God.
Ephesians 3:19

A great many people do not understand the purpose of the Church. There are those whose names are on the membership roll who have a very limited conception of the spiritual ministry and mission of the Church. They would make the Church an agency for every pet project and an avenue for the promotion of self. The attitude of many church members does not indicate a very deep conviction that the Church has something to say that should be heard. The Church is an "elective course" for them, something they can take or leave as they wish. There must be a requickening of the sense of the true mission of the Church. What is that mission, our mission?

1. The first task of the Church is to know God and God's will and make God known as He is revealed in Jesus Christ.

Viewpoints

There are those people who may say: "Well, aren't there more important things than that for the Church to do?" What about the hungry who need food, the sick who need medicine, the social ills which need correcting and countless other wrongs in the world which need righting? Sure, all these need doing but these things will never be done until people come to know God and feel a personal responsibility to Him and give themselves to the carrying out of His will as revealed in Jesus Christ. There is nothing more important in all the world than the bringing of people to know the living God. We need to have our lives oriented to Him.

Moses had no commission as the emancipator of his people until he came to know God at the burning bush of Horeb. Ezekiel begins his prophecies, as he begins his new life of personal consecration to the Divine Will, with the statement: "The heavens were opened and I saw visions of God." Saul of Tarsus beheld God in Christ on the fateful journey to Damascus, and the experience remade him into Paul the Apostle by giving him the right answers to the two greatest questions that the human spirit can ask itself: "Who art Thou, Lord?" and, "What shall I do, Lord?" "My most passionate desire," said Tennyson, in that noble confession that voices the best aspirations of his own heart and the deepest need of every soul, "is to have a fuller and clearer vision of God." It is the task of the Church to help people know God.

Deepest Need

Dr. John Rathbone Oliver is right: "The deepest need of this confused, unhappy, and unbelieving world is to know more about God." That is the task of the Church. If you can tell me of any other organization in the world that assumes this responsibility, I should like to know its name. There are other organizations to do many other things but the Church exists to bring men and women to God, for He alone gives unity and meaning and purposefulness to existence and makes life worth living.

2. The second task of the Church is to develop a Christian growth among her members, both individually and collectively, so that they will be Christian in all relationships.

The obligations of membership in the Church are taken very lightly by all too many members. The term "Christian" is one which is often loosely applied to half-way decent people without any reference as to whether they even attempt or not to meet the requirements of the Bible and live as Jesus taught us to live. Many persons profess the Christian faith without having the least idea of what it means to be a Christian. Furthermore, you and I know that even among those who know what it means to be a Christian and who profess to be Christians, there are many with whom religion is a form. It lacks vitality, reality, honesty, and sincerity of purpose.

Quality of Character

Nothing would so powerfully influence the world, the unsaved and the unchurched, as that the people of the churches should manifest a quality of character and life that would set them apart from their fellow-men by their kindliness, their generosity, their un-selfishness, their integrity and morality — in short, by their Christ-likeness. It is the task of the Church to develop this Christ-likeness in the lives of her members.

What a transformation would come over our work-a-day world if parents and children in the home, teachers in the classroom, pupils in school, workers at their jobs, employers in their responsibilities, professional men in their professions, yes, if all of us were each to pause in the morning at the threshold of our labors and pray: "What I do today may I do it for the glory of God, for the welfare of my fellowman, in the Spirit of Jesus Christ, and may the blessings of the Almighty God rest upon it!" and then seek to so live. It is the task of the Chruch to develop such a life in the world, through her members.

It is our task here at Covenant to seek to develop a distinctive quality in the life of our people, and we believe this will become a full reality only as we know God and His Will as revealed in Jesus Christ, and as we develop in Christ-likeness. It is our prayer that we be used for this mission.

REECE RUGG

Special Fete Arranged For Elder R. Rugg

A welcome home program for Elder Reece Rugg of Sterlington, who returned recently from two years service in the California mission field for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will be held today.

Scene of the program at 5:30 p.m. will be the Farmerville Branch Chapel. Elder Rugg, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Errin Rugg of Sterlington, will be featured speaker at the event. Elder Charles Rugg, his cousin, also will be on the program.

Elder Rugg, who returned home June 16, began his missionary work in Whittier, Calif., later working in Long Beach, Inglewood, the San Fernando Valley and in Phoenix, Arizona. He then was called back to Whittier as district leader, and later served as zone leader in Arizona and Las Vegas, Nevada.

Elder Rugg was attending Northwestern State College in Natchitoches when he received a call from the Shreveport Stake to do missionary work. He plans to return to college this fall.

WOW! I DON'T MIND BEING A CAB DRIVER WHEN I HAVE TWIN FARES LIKE YOU
WHERE TO, LADIES? THE OPENING OF THE OPERA?
GERRY'S HOUSE ON FIELDSTONE ROAD
IT'S A SUPER SWISHY HOOT
AH, HAH! NOW I KNOW WHY YOU WASHED MY CAR FOR A CHANGE
EEK! DON'T OPEN THE WINDOW, DADDY!
OH, YES, I FORGOT! THE HAIR!
LOOK, I'M SUFFOCATING IN THIS CAR! HAIR-DO OR NO HAIR-DO, I'VE GOT TO OPEN THESE WINDOWS!!
OH, IT ISN'T OUR HAIR, DADDY
IT'S JUST A WAY TO IMPRESS THE KIDS
HOW? BY ARRIVING IN A TRAVELLING SAUNA BATH?
WE WOULDN'T BE CAUGHT DEAD WITH OUR WINDOWS DOWN REALLY, DADDY, YOU MUST KNOW ABOUT THESE THINGS
WE HAVE TO THINK OF OUR IMAGE!
WHEN PEOPLE HAVE THEIR WINDOWS DOWN, IT'S A SURE SIGN THAT-THEY'RE COMFORTABLE??
NO, THAT THEIR FAMILY CAN'T AFFORD AIR-CONDITIONING!!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Do you need an emergency ice pack?

Roll a few ice cubes or some crushed ice in a face cloth and dip this in cold water. Wring excess water out. Place these in a plastic bag and twist the bag.

Now here is the clincher:

Use an old nylon stocking and stuff the ice-filled plastic bag down into the leg of the nylon stocking (making sure the ice cubes lie flat), fold or tie the nylon stocking so that the cubes don't slip, and then tie your perfect ice pack in place with the ends of the stocking!

The plastic bag keeps the ice from dripping, the wash rag holds the ice in place, and the ends of the stocking can be tied around any part of the body (neck, arm, leg, etc.) and it holds your ice bag in place.

Jean Morgan

CHINA CLOSET COVERS

DEAR HELOISE:

I use inexpensive shower caps to cover good dishes that I want to store away for a while. They are wonderful for large meat plates and save the trouble of having to wash the dishes the next time I am ready to use them, because the shower cap protects them from dust.

Marjorie Stachnik

CONCRETE PLANTERS

DEAR HELOISE:

You can make attractive planters from hollow concrete blocks.

They can be arranged along walks, or around the edge of a patio or porch.

Plants grow beautifully in these hollow concrete blocks. Specially darling with ivy, etc.

Maria

YARN THAT POURS

DEAR HELOISE:

I read your suggestion for using bleach bottles to hold knitting yarn or crochet thread. May I offer another idea?

I had a beautiful old teapot that I didn't use, so I put my yarn in it, threaded the yarn out the spout, then put the lid on the teapot. Now, the yarn stays clean and in place.

The teapot makes a lovely ornament no matter where I want to place it . . . on a coffee table, end table, or on the floor.

Nanny B.

AUTOGRAPH BLOUSE

DEAR HELOISE:

My eight-year-old daughter spilled some paint or nail polish on a white blouse. Since I was unable to remove the spots, she thought her blouse was ruined.

However, I took a ball point pen and wrote her friends' names all over the blouse. Now it is her favorite.

Frances Hainey

LEFTOVER BISCUITS

DEAR HELOISE:

For those who find they have a few dried-out sweet rolls, buns, or biscuits . . .

Dampen a paper towel, wring it out real well, and wrap it around the dried-out bread. Then cover it with a plastic bag.

When stale bread, biscuits or buns are wrapped this way and left 24 hours in the refrigerator, they become moist and fresh again.

EVERYTHING MATCHES

DEAR HELOISE:

I fold my bath towels, hand towels and washcloths, and store them in sets—the way I want to use them. I place the set inside the bath towel.

This way I don't have to go through the whole stack to find mates.

NEVER LOCKED OUT

DEAR HELOISE:

I tie the corner of a handkerchief to my key ring.

The handkerchief is always visible in my purse, and now no more rummaging through my purse looking for the keys!

Pauline

TOOTHPICK TIP

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a good idea for keeping lunch bags closed . . .

After the lunch is packed, fold the bag shut and poke two holes through the fold with whatever is available, such as a paring knife or ice pick. Then weave a toothpick through the holes, and the bag will stay neatly shut.

DEAR HELOISE:

I roll up all my extra blankets, quilts and comforters before I put them away. Then I pile them one on top of the other on the closet shelves. I find this takes up much less room.

Ethel Osborn

We have held this letter for five months while we tested Ethel's method.

I rolled up my comforters (down or synthetic filled), and if I could squash them enough, I put rubber bands around them; if not, I tied them with a string.

The thing I find best about Ethel's idea is that when you need a quilt, comforter or something you do not use often, you can pull it out of that particular closet shelf without spilling the whole kit and kaboodle.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My baby's food and milk always dribbled down his chin and neck and ran behind his plastic bib, until I realized that he needed a blotter.

Now I fold an old washcloth diagonally and slip it around the baby's neck before putting on his plastic bib.

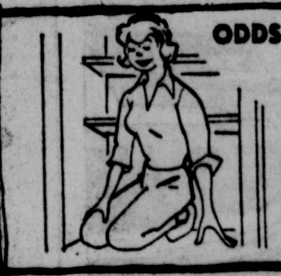
MUD-PIE SHOES

DEAR HELOISE:

I discovered that plastic chore balls make good mud scrapers for children's shoes. They don't scratch the leather, but rub the dried mud off nicely.

Mrs. W.

ODDS AND ENDS



DEAR HELOISE:

Inexpensive scraps of linoleum carpeting are good to put in the bottom of kitchen closets, broom closets, etc. Makes for easier cleaning.

IT'S LATE, ANYWAY...
...YES, BUT BEFORE YOU GO, YOU MUST SEE OUR VIEW! THE MOON IS JUST RIGHT! OOPS! ...THE PATH IS A BIT TRICKY IN THE DARK—GIVE ME YOUR HAND!
...I...I DON'T THINK I...
OH, COME, COME! GIVE ME YOUR HAND! THERE! DOES THAT HURT?
N...NO...
...AND WHAT'S THIS, LITTLE SISTER?... SO YOU'VE MANAGED TO DRAG THE SHY, ELUSIVE MR. MAXIMUS ONTO THE MOON-DRENCHED BEACH...
...NOT BAD FOR A QUIET HOMEBODY, ELSPETH!... WHAT IS THERE ABOUT THIS SITUATION THAT CAUSES ME TO HEAR THE DELICIOUS CRINKLE OF CRISP BANK NOTES?!!...
